Eagle soars on tricky Atlantic flight

Sarmont starts long solo flight from Farmingdale —AP

FARMINGDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Suspended from a red and yellow motorized hang glider named The Spirit of California, Eagle Sarmont took off from Republic airport Friday in his attempt to make a solo crossing of the Atlantic.

In a trip reminiscent of the famous New York-to-Paris flight by Charles Lindbergh, Sarmont wobbled off the runway and headed for the Statue of Liberty, his official starting point two hours away.

He had perfect weather for takeoff but was delayed almost two hours, partly because of a leaky battery but mostly because of a crowd of more than 75 film crews, reporters and spectators who hampered last-minute preparations.

Wearing a T-shirt with the name of the craft emblazoned across the back and sitting in a hammock seat under the glider, Sarmont waved to his girl-friend as he lifted off.

It will not be a non-stop venture like Lindbergh's aboard the Spirit of St. Louis 50 years ago.

Sex bias erases draft sign-up

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The U.S. government's draft registration of men, scheduled to begin Monday, is unconstitutional on grounds it discriminates against women, a federal court panel ruled Friday. The court "permanently enjoined" the government from requiring the registration of any male.

It means the government cannot proceed with registration unless it obtains a stay of the ruling from a U.S. Supreme Court justice pending an appeal to the entire Supreme Court.

"Complete exclusion of women from the pool of registrants does not serve important governmental objectives," ruled Appeal Judge Max Rosenn and District Judges Joseph Lord and Edward Cahn.

A U.S. justice department spokesman, Robert Stevenson, said in Washington that the government filed a notice of appeal and a motion for a stay of the court's ruling but Lord denied the request.

Mississippi Democratic Representative G.V. Montgomery, chief sponsor of the peacetime draft registration bill, said in Meridian, Miss., the court's action could "be a disaster for the security of our country."

In Boston, meanwhile, a federal judge refused to block next week's scheduled registration of 20-year-old men but referred his decision to an appeals court for review.

"Women do serve a useful role in the military and provide important skills," Cahn wrote in the 41-page Philadelphia opinion.

"Congress could not constitutionally require registration under the Military Selective Service Act of only black citizens, or only white citizens, or single out any political or religious group simply because those groups contain sufficient persons to fill the need of the selective service system," he said.

Registration of four million men was to start in post offices across the U.S. on Monday. Failure to register was punishable by up to five years in prison and a fine of $10,000.

The challenge to the registration law was brought by the American Civil Liberties Union on behalf of two former draft resisters —David Sitman, 26, and Robert Goldberg, 27—and Owen Jones, 19, who intervened on behalf of current draft-age men.

In Boston, lawyers for three college students argued before U.S. District Judge Walter Jay Skinner that peacetime registration amounts to an unconstitutional invasion of privacy. They also raised the issues of sex and age discrimination, the legality of a draft when there are no hostilities, and the justification for a government intrusion that could lead to death.

Europe soaked and shivering

LONDON (UPI) — An advertisement for antifreeze in a London street market said it all: "Mix some with your suntan oil."

As much of the southern United States blisters in 40-degree sunshine, Europe is suffering one of its harshest summers in recent memory.

Rain and low temperatures damaged vineyards in France and West Germany, delayed the grain harvest in Britain, clogged mountain passes with snow in Austria and Switzerland and ruined thousands of summer vacations across the continent.

Olympics athletes find it too cold to train in Moscow.

It is France's coldest summer in 22 years. Beaches are half empty and hoteliers are facing a 30 to 50 per cent drop in business.

West Germany's rainfall is 130 per cent above normal and its hours of sunshine 30 to 70 per cent less. Temperatures have barely made it to 15 degrees.

Even the birds are leaving. Ornithologists report that migratory birds already have begun flying south, apparently because the rain is washing away many insects they eat.

Britain, with one of its wettest summers on record, has been given a forecast no better than "unsettled" conditions. Wheat and barley crops are three weeks behind schedule.

For only the third time in 70 years, Swiss farmers have brought their cattle down from summer pastures in the Alps because of heavy snowfalls.

Rations of beer dry up

They put a two-dozen limit on beer at the government liquor stores Friday, but by evening it didn't really matter. There wasn't any to be had.

With the uncertainty of the brewery dispute still hanging over its head, a thirsting public hit the stores early in the day once again and—like some giant vacuum cleaner—sucked up whatever supply there was.

"It's unreal," said a harried employee long after the Foul Bay store had gone dry. "Lately this store has sold four times its normal amount.

"Talk about your hoarders. Once they say the stuff is rationed everyone wants it, even people who never drink it.

"Pretty soon the little old ladies who normally sip white wine will be coming in for the beer just because there's a limit on it."

The two-case limit, imposed by the B.C. Liquor Distribution Branch, matches a situation that existed in the industry shutdown two years ago.

But the difference this time is that there hasn't even been a shutdown.

The three major brewers —Labatt, Molson and Carling-O'Keefe—are in a position to implement a lockout, but haven't done so. The Victoria local of the Brewery, Winery and Distillery Workers Union has a strike mandate, but hasn't been in a hurry to serve strike notice.

The distribution branch says liquor stores throughout the province have been told they are to impose the two-case limit if their supplies are well below normal.

The Gorge store on Tillicum put the two-case limit into action during the day but still sold its one shipment of 2,000 cases in 90 minutes.

The big McKenzie Avenue store remained without beer all day. It was hoping for a delivery today. Most stores didn't know whether they would be receiving anything.

Workman dies, hit by panel

A 55-year-old worker at the site of the new Helmcken Road hospital was killed in an industrial accident Friday.

The man, whose name was withheld pending notification of next of kin in West Germany, was operating a scissors hoist to handle decking panels used in pouring concrete floors at the hospital, Colwood RCMP said.

The operation involves pushing the hoist platform against the panel, removing scaffolding which normally holds the panel up, and then lowering the panel.

As one of the forms was being lowered it flipped over and hit the hoist operator.

Inflation hits 10%, no action till fall

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers, faced with price increases above 10 per cent for the first time since late 1975, have to wait until fall for measures from the Liberal government to combat inflation, Prime Minister Trudeau indicated Friday.

After Statistics Canada released figures earlier in the day showing an annual increase of 10.1 per cent in the June consumer price index, Conservative leader Joe Clark challenged the prime minister in the Commons to produce an economic statement by the end of August.

Instead, Trudeau promised a budget before the end of the year which would do more than the defeated Conservative budget to bring down inflation.

However, a fall budget would only affect the economy in 1981 when prices were expected to rise less quickly following an end of the current recession.

A 2.2 per cent month-to-month jump in food prices is the sharpest rise in the over-all monthly increase of 1.1 per cent in the index, a commonly-used but not fully accurate measure of inflation.

The combined effect of higher import costs and domestic factors such as poor weather conditions, especially a drought in western Canada, created a worrisome outlook for food prices in months ahead.

● In Washington, officials said the U.S. economy plunged at an annual rate of 9.1 per cent from April through June, matching the worst quarterly drop since the Second World War.

The steep downturn, as measured by real gross national product—the inflation-adjusted output of goods and services —was widespread and steeper than the administration expected.

About 90 per cent of the second-quarter drop was attributed to two sectors of the economy, the auto and housing industries.

● Britain's annual inflation rate fell by nearly one per cent to 21 per cent in June, the first significant drop for two years, the government said Friday.

Odd parade to Olympics

MOSCOW (AP) — The opening ceremonies today of the Olympic Games—the world's most famous sports fashion show—will have an odd look. (See also Page 25)

The name boards of 81 countries are expected to be carried in the parade. But for 10 of them, there will be no athletes marching, and 29 will not carry their national flags according to tradition.

This is all part of the reaction to the Soviet military action in Afghanistan, which has prompted 36 countries to boycott the Moscow Games. Many national Olympic committees which decided to support the Games did so in defiance of their national governments.

The Australians, one of the last delegations to make up its mind, decided Friday to march in the parade as usual. But they will use the flag of the International Olympic Committee—the symbol with the five rings—and not their national flag.

A similar gesture is planned by 28 other countries.

Six months ago this would have been a breach of the Olympic rules. But last February at Lake Placid, N.Y., the IOC—for reasons that had nothing to do with Moscow and Afghanistan—changed the rule about flags in the opening parade.

This was a manoeuvre to try to bring the two Chinas into the Games for the first

Bakhtiar stalking ends in shootout

PARIS (AP) — A three-man assassination squad posing as journalists made it as far as Shahpour Bakhtiar's apartment door Friday, but their attempt to kill the former Iranian prime minister collapsed in a wild shootout that left a French policeman and a woman neighbor dead.

All three gunmen were captured, one of them wounded, police said. Three other policemen were also reported wounded in the battle.

The 65-year-old Bakhtiar, leader of Iranian exile forces opposed to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary regime in Iran, was unharmed in the attack, which he blamed on "professionals that the government in Tehran sent to France."

Police said the captured trio all claimed to be Arabs —a Syrian, a Lebanese and a Palestinian—but they could not be immediately identified. The Iranian revolutionaries have established close relations with some Arab militants.

B.C.'s export-tax salvo may signal referendum

By JIM HUME
Colonist staff

B.C. fired another salvo at Ottawa Friday, charging that plans to impose an export tax on natural gas "attacks the very fabric of Confederation."

The man pulling the trigger was again provincial Energy Minister Robert McClelland and some observers viewed his latest outburst in the war between the west and Ottawa as the opening shots in a campaign which could lead to a fall referendum.

Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed is already on record as saying that unless east-west energy differences can be amicably solved he would not "hesitate to present a particularly-worded question" to the people of Alberta.

That "particularly-worded question" would undoubtedly be in the form of a referendum seeking public support for Alberta's stand on higher oil prices and against the export tax on natural gas.

PREMIER Bennett has not yet followed that line but has admitted that such a show of strength from the people could be a possibility.

In an "open letter" Friday to all newspaper editors in B.C., McClelland added fuel to the fires of speculation.

From a bold first statement that "the federal government intends to impose an export tax on all energy exports from this country" to a closing accusation that Ottawa was attempting to rob the provinces by "offering dimes for dollars," McClelland gave full vent to his concerns.

His opening statement that the imposition of an export tax was already a fait accompli came as a surprise to reporters who only a few hours before had been writing that Ottawa had still not decided whether to go ahead with the tax or to drop the idea.

McCLELLAND left no doubt that as far as he was concerned the tax would be imposed and that "the direct impact on this province will be severe and will do irreparable damage to the unity of Canada."

Accusing the federal government of confusing energy and constitutional matters, he said the export tax would cost B.C. taxpayers a loss of $750 million a year.

"Make no mistake," he said, "any tax on exports will skim off the cream and drink up most of the milk as well."

In the strongest language yet used in the east-west fight for control of provincial natural resources and the export of excess energy, McClelland said the loss of $750 million a year in revenue to B.C. would have serious repercussions in the provision of services to all British Columbians.

"In the current budget $750 million would pay

practically the whole operating expenses of all hospitals in British Columbia," McClelland said, "$750 million would pay for all post-secondary education in the province and all income assistance under the G.A.I.N. programs; $750 million would finance all resource and land-use management in the province for the year, all grants to municipalities, all lands, parks and housing projects and all apprenticeship training and employment programs in B.C., and then some.

"THAT IS three quarters of a billion dollars, more than 10 per cent of the total B.C. budget for 1980. What would we do without that money?"

But, said McClelland, the revenue loss was not the only problem the taxpayers of B.C. would face.

"A federal energy export tax would place the people of British Columbia in double jeopardy," McClelland said. First they would have to choose between paying significently higher taxes to make up for the $750 million, or facing severe curtailment in services which most citizens have come to regard as essential.

Secondly, he said, the government's energy development strategy would be seriously undermined because without export revenues "we will not be able to go very far toward energy security through government support . . . and permanent and irretrievable damage would be done in the private sector."

McCLELLAND said the export tax would create a shambles in the oil and natural gas industry with small Canadian-owned firms the chief victims. He added that the tax would create "a domino effect throughout our petroleum industry, an industry the federal government says it wants to strengthen."

The minister charged that Ottawa had been "fostering the myth that the extra money flowing to Ottawa will come out of American pockets, not from the provinces. That is not so. The money will come directly from existing revenues. Not one extra cent will come from the Americans. Make no mistake. Any tax on exports will skim of the cream and drink up most of the milk as well."

McClelland said he understood Ottawa's need to try to reduce the big deficits brought about each year by spending more than is taken in, but he asked, "Why should the provinces bear the burden of federal folly? Why should we hand over the bulk of our resource revenues to retire the federal deficit when the federal government is doing next to nothing to solve its own problem of overspending?"

HE SUGGESTED that Ottawa could start reducing its deficits by cutting expenditures, "not politically easy, but necessary nonetheless.

"There are better, more reasonable ways than at the expense of the provinces. Better ways than a blatant federal money grab of provincial revenues, masked by deliberate federal confusion of energy issues and the constitution."

McClelland pointed out in his letter that provincial ownership of natural resources had been guaranteed under the constitution since 1871 when B.C. joined Confederation. He also noted that under provincial control it had always been agreed that Canada's energy and other resource requirements must be met first with only surplus energy or surplus resources sold to other countries.

"The federal government's proposed tax on energy exports attacks the very fabric of Confederation," McClelland said. "It is in direct conflict with the guarantees of provincial resource ownership. It undermines the long-standing principle of federal-provincial co-operation in meeting Canada's energy needs. It takes away from the people of the province a source of revenue that is rightly theirs.

"SUCH A proposal can only cause fragmentation and alienation."

NDP leader David Barrett termed McClelland's latest attack on Ottawa "purely political," although he said his party was also strongly opposed to imposition of the export tax on energy.

Federal Energy Minister Marc Lalonde, target for earlier McClelland barbs, declined comment, and energy officials in Alberta were "unavailable for comment."

McClelland took particular exception to statements made recently by high-ranking Liberal party officials that provincial resources comprise "the biggest pile of free money lying around."

"That money is not free," said McClelland. "It is the very lifeblood of our province and the basis for our future."

He dismissed Ottawa's suggestion that if the export tax is imposed a portion of the tax would be returned to the producing provinces.

"THERE WILL be precious little left after the deficit has taken its toll and the federal bureaucracy has laundered the rest," McClelland said. In fact, the federal government intended to take away from B. C. and other provinces a large measure of control over its own money.

GOP buries the hatchet

DETROIT (Reuter) — A hoarse but jubilant Ronald Reagan on Friday celebrated his victory as Republican presidential nominee by declaring the party's new-found unity "a dream come true" and a vindication of his 12-year quest for the job.

In a gesture underscoring his claim, Reagan's hard-core conservative backers abandoned their attempt to unseat the chairman of the party's national committee, Bill Brock, a moderate, and instead re-elected him by acclamation to a third term.

Euphoria over party unity was in the air when Reagan and running mate George Bush appeared before the committee to reassert that despite the hasty assembly of the ticket, they had buried all differences.

"It's a dream come true for a great many of us who over the years worried about . . . the divisions that so often embittered various segments of the party and left us a little less than united," Reagan said in reference to party unity.

Bush, who has taken more moderate positions on abortion and women's rights than the conservative-dominated convention adopted, pledged to support the platform and urged reporters not to look for differences between him and Reagan.

Reagan kept his remarks brief, saying he had lost his voice because he could not get fresh air in his "glass bowl" 69th floor hotel room, not because of his speech last night accepting the nomination.

The Republican candidate, in his acceptance speech, made almost no mention of the party's platform but called for disaffected Democrats and independents to join in a crusade based on a "new consensus" of common values.

He called for reduction of government waste, higher defence spending, reduced taxes and a balanced budget.

Reagan's ebullient mood may have been helped by public opinion polls showing him substantially ahead of President Carter.

The News published a poll saying that if the election were held now, Reagan would be the preferred candidate of 37 per cent of the electorate in the U.S. compared with 26 per cent for Carter and 18 per cent for independent Republican John Anderson.

Republican delegates lauded Reagan's acceptance speech as a catalyst for a party revival after the slump caused by the Watergate scandal and the resignation of Richard Nixon six years ago.

Only Bush sounded cautious, saying that the election in November was still going to be a tough fight.

Bolivia gets new president

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — Army Commander Gen. Luis Garcia Meza was sworn in Friday as president of Bolivia in a move he said ended "electoral adventures" and army units moved into mining towns to crush remaining resistence to the two-day military coup.

The ceremony was the first official act of the three-man military junta, which called itself the Government of National Reconstruction, and it came just hours after Lidia Gueiler surrendered her power as president during a radio address in which her voice choked with emotion.

Garcia promised in his first speech to carry out a revolution that will change Bolivia into "a modern and industrial society" and criticized communism and what he called "democratism," apparently referring to the Gueiler government.

In the speech, carried by the army's radio station Radio Battalon Colorado and monitored in Lima, Garcia said with the coup Thursday, "the electoral adventures have concluded in Bolivia. We will initiate a gradual recovery."

Canada call

Instead, after making a farewell pass around the Statue of Liberty in New York City, the 28-year-old Californian will head up the Hudson River to Albany, stopping in Canada, Greenland, Iceland and Scotland as he guides his craft the 9,600-kilometre trip which he hopes to complete in 22 days.

The craft is called an ultra-light airplane. It is powered by a two-cylinder engine and driven through the air by a propeller. It looks like a hang glider but Sarmont will not actually hang from it—his glider is equipped with a seat. Surrounding his perch is a lightweight metal frame attached to a chassis resembling that of a three-wheeled go-cart. The glider has a 10-metre wing span.

Sarmont expects "long dull hours with moments of terror.

"I love flying," he says. "I am addicted to it. The moods of the sky are fun. Sometimes they are incredibly peaceful and serene. Other times they are exhilarating and sometimes I've been very, very scared. But that's all part of the game."

The engine has a top speed of about 48 kilometres an hour. He will use it when needed, sometimes turning it off and gliding to save fuel.

He will be wearing a suit that can keep him afloat and carries a transmitter to help rescuers find him if he goes down.

Between Iceland and Scotland, a long over-water stretch, Sarmont will try to land on the tiny island of Faroe, more than 480 kilometres south-east of Iceland.

He hopes to fly 320 to 480 kilometres a day, making stopovers at night.

Dennis Curasi, 27, and Claudine Chuinard, 28, Sarmont's girl-friend, will follow him by car, train or boat. A chase plane will be available in case he gets into trouble.

A former aerodynamic engineering aide for the federal government, Sarmont runs a business in Santa Cruz, Calif. He 's been gliding since 1972 and has flown private planes since he was 14.

Born Joseph Whitmore, he adopted Eagle from friends who said he had an eagle's sense of aggression and Sarmont from the name of a mountain in a favorite science fiction story.

time. Peking always refused to allow its athletes to compete as long as Taiwan was using the flag of the old Republic of China. The IOC got around that by ordering Taiwan to use a different flag and amended the rules to suit the circumstances.

Lord Killanin, outgoing president of the IOC, said, "There is nothing in the rules that compels any athlete to march in the opening parade.

"The opening will be a little different from usual, but the opening ceremony is less important than the Games themselves. The important thing is to have good, healthy competition."

Athletes expected to stay away from the parade include those of Belgium, France, Britain, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, Holland, San Marino and Switzerland.

The Austrians had decided to parade as usual. But Philipp von Schoeller, IOC member for Austria, said Friday the delegation might yet change its mind.

The national Olympic committees of western Europe met Thursday night to talk about the opening parade and flags.

Raymond Gafner, IOC member for Switzerland, who was at the meeting, said, "We had a general discussion but we did not try to lay down a common policy. Each delegation will decide for itself."

Most of the delegations which use the IOC flag in the parade will also have the Olympic hymn played at the victory ceremonies if their athletes win gold medals.

Otherwise the opening ceremony will follow tradition. The Olympic torch, which has been carried in relay from the ancient site of the Games at Olympia in Greece, will be carried into the Lenin Stadium and the flame will be lit.

Pipe debate delays recess

● Pipe go-ahead hinged on Congress vow, union backing. Page 51

OTTAWA (CP) — The start of summer holidays for MPs was pushed back to at least sometime next week after the New Democrats blocked the planned recess Friday to protest the government's approval of early construction of southern sections of the Alaska natural gas pipeline.

The Commons will resume sitting as usual Monday when NDP leader Ed Broadbent plans to initiate a debate optimistically aimed at getting the government to change its mind.

Broadbent admitted his chances of success were slim but said his party planned to use debate on an amendment to the recess motion to publicize its opposition to the project.

Wave of protest dogs Thatcher tour of factories

CARDIFF (AP) — Young Welsh nationalists, protesting the British government's refusal to set up a Welsh-language television channel, bombarded Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's limousine with eggs Friday and threw themselves on the road in front of it.

Mrs. Thatcher was not hit, but several of her Scotland Yard bodyguards and police patrolmen were.

Security men grappled with the demonstrators outside an aluminum factory in Anglesey and several protesters were arrested.

When Thatcher drove to Holyhead, a major Irish Sea ferry terminal, port workers quit work to protest the Conservative government's plans to sell the Sealink ferry line and other interests held by the state-run British Rail system.

Following warnings of street demonstrations by nationalist and labor unions, Welsh police were on alert early Friday when Thatcher flew to North Wales, where most of the population speaks Welsh, to start a two-day tour of factories.

Earlier, police discovered two firebombs—one outside the Conservative party club in Cardiff and another in the home of Welsh Secretary Nicholas Edwards at Abergavenny, 50 kilometres north of the Welsh capital—after an anonymous telephone tipoff.

Both devices—small explosive charges attached to timers and gallon cans of gasoline—were defused by army experts. These resemble "fireball" incendiaries used by Irish Republican Army guerrillas and heightened speculation the Welsh extremists have IRA contacts.

Thatcher condemned the bombing attempts "totally and utterly" and declared "this is no way to conduct politics in Britain."

The protests were among the angriest Thatcher has faced from British citizens since the Conservatives came to power in the May, 1979, general election.

The chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Geoffrey Howe, architect of the government's tough economic strategy to streamline British industry is accompanying Thatcher on her tour and was booed and jeered by protesters when he visited a tax office in Cardiff.

Nationalist and union leaders said a major protest demonstration is planned in Swansea today when Thatcher and Howe wind up the visit by addressing the Welsh Conservative party's annual conference.

The protests come amid growing discontent in Wales, primarily over government-ordered closures in the state-run steel and coal industries, the principality's traditional lifeblood.

The language protest stems from the government's move last November to go back on the Conservatives' election pledge to establish a fourth TV channel in Wales exclusively for Cymraeg (pronounced koom-regg.)

Volcanic silica hits lungs

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — People working near Mount St. Helens in Washington state during two major volcanic eruptions in May were exposed to excessive levels of silica, which, if eruptions continue, could increase chances of lung disease, the U.S. Centre for Disease Control said Friday.

Although some workers were exposed to levels of silica which exceeded government recommendations, the federal study indicated the general population in the area did not receive excessive doses of silica, the CDC said.

Silica, a common constituent of the dust from volcanoes, is the name given to any compound of the elements silicon and oxygen.

The study, done June 3-13 by industrial hygienists from the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, focused on northern Idaho and the Washington state communities of Longview, Chehalis, Moses Lake, Yakima and Spokane.

The CDC said the study indicated cleanup crews, rubbish workers and forest workers were exposed to concentrations of a dangerous form of silica which exceeded the amount recommended by the institute "15 per cent to 31 per cent of the time."

Continuous exposure to such dust might cause silicosis, a chronic lung disease resembling emphysema, the CDC said.

Workers in seven categories received concentrations that exceeded the institute standards for silica, the CDC said. They were hand-shovellers and sweepers; sweeper truck or broom truck drivers; front-end loader operators; grader operators; rubbish workers; Idaho forest workers, and agricultural workers.

The CDC noted that not all silica dust can cause silicosis.

Heat toll tops 1,000

Associated Press

The early-summer heat wave in the United States has claimed more than 1,000 lives in 20 states.

An the Dallas-Fort Worth area of Texas on Friday broke a record of 25 consecutive days of temperatures of 38 degrees Celsius (100 degrees Fahrenheit) or more.

Forecasters said there was no relief in sight for Texas, and the National Weather Service in Arkansas said the heat wave affecting that state was expected to last until September, if not longer, with an occasional day of lower temperatures.

There have been at least 1,012 deaths in 20 states, an unofficial count by the Associated Press showed. Last Friday there had been more than 330 fatalities.

More than 400 have died of heat-related causes in the three states whose governors have declared a state of emergency—Alabama, Georgia and Missouri.

In comparison, Missouri state health officials say they expect 10 heat-related deaths in a normal year, but that state's heat death toll by Friday was 237.

INDIA JOINS SPACE SET

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — India joined the exclusive space club Friday by putting a satellite into earth orbit, and moved closer to achieving intermediate range ballistic missile capability.

A 17-ton four-stage rocket carrying a 78-pound satellite payload lifted into space early Friday. Its purpose is to measure the performance of the launch vehicle.

India presses N-bomb plan

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Indian parliament should approve a nuclear weapons program to match the weapons that its traditional rivals, China and Pakistan, either have or are believed to be developing, the governing Congress party urged Friday.

The debate followed the departure of Pakistani Foreign Minister Agha Shahi who discussed the two neighboring countries' military strengths with Indian leaders during two days of meetings. Shahi said Wednesday that Pakistan was not developing nuclear weapons.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi said she rebuffed Shahi during his visit because of Pakistan's recent purchase of military weapons, but Shahi said Pakistan had not acquired any arms in the last three years.

Depressed Begin turns off Sadat

TEL AVIV (AP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was quoted Friday as saying he had cancelled plans for a summit meeting with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, citing "Begin's depressed mood, which was reflected in his wounding personal attacks on me."

The Israeli newspaper Yediot Aharonot quoted Sadat as saying he had planned to visit Israel soon to meet Begin.

But Israeli officials, expressing surprise at the paper's report, insisted no summit was planned and Sadat had not responded to Begin's longstanding invitation to visit Israel again.

Kenyan balk shelves Marine landing drill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States explored the possibility of staging a U.S. Marine amphibious landing exercise in Kenya, but decided against pressing the issue when the Kenyan government reacted coolly.

This was disclosed Friday by administration officials who said the question might be raised again if the political climate permits.

Although Kenya has granted the United States increased access to its air and sea facilities, it shares with other countries in the Indian Ocean-Persian Gulf region a reluctance to become closely identified with U.S. interests.

Carter administration officials, who asked to remain anonymous, said the diplomatic probe was aimed at determining whether Kenya would be receptive to a landing drill by an 1,800-man marine battalion now enroute to the Indian Ocean from the Mediterranean.

Pair named in air crash

SEATTLE (CP) — Authorities have identified Eugene Merkel, 55, of Everett, Wash. and Ronald Porter, 36, of Langley, Wash., as the two men killed Thursday night in a mid-air collision over Whidbey Island near Seattle.

Authorities said Friday the bodies of the two men were found in the wreckage of a Piper Cherokee which crashed in a clump of trees.

Freedom at last

The freedom of information bill introduced by the federal government late this week is the best political news since the Quebec referendum. In setting out a citizen's right to look at government information, it recognizes the neglected proposition that government is the servant of the people.

The bill, if not emasculated on its travels through the parliamentary process, should unlock many doors and the let sun shine into what is, after all, our own house.

Most important of its features are the provisions for appeal where a citizen has been denied access to information. We can take our case first to an independent commissioner, then to a federal court. In other words, government will really have to prove its case for keeping information secret.

Two aspects of this bill in particular require careful study. First are the exemptions it lists, the cases where government is specifically empowered to keep information secret. The second relates to letting the public know what information the government has that people might want to see.

Initial news summaries note, for example, that the government may keep information secret where disclosure would "expose sensitive areas of the internal decision-making processes" or where disclosure "might endanger (its) . . .economic interests." Depending upon the wording, those exemptions may prove far too general, giving government a roomy cupboard for hiding embarrassing information.

The government intends letting people know what documents are available and how to get them. That is an essential complement to this legislation. It's worth an extensive advertising budget. Otherwise the freedom of information act will be just another forgotten statute.

A pressing issue

That preoccupied expression so often seen on the faces of tourists as they wander downtown streets isn't, as we might fondly believe, the result of a total absorption in this city's urban architecture. Nor is it the meditative look of some big-city dweller captivated by our genteel Victorian ambience.

No, it's much more basic than that. It's the searching, rather disbelieving and unmistakably anxious expression worn by someone in need of relief — spelled TOILET.

But trying to find a public loo in Victoria is about as easy as discovering a genuine dissident in Moscow these days. There are precisely two in the central area. One is an antiquated and malodorous disgrace buried in some dank catacombs near the Causeway. The other is a more modern installation in Centennial Square, which the city seems to have disguised from public view as if the last thing it wanted was for someone to actually use the facilities. (It does save on cleaning and maintenance, of course).

Officials of the Visitor Information Centre recently appealed to City Hall to do something about this situation — preferably by providing more public washrooms or at the least by improving the present facilities.

The wonder is that such a request should be necessary. City fathers worry endlessly about the threat to Victoria's tourist image from street vendors, winos, panhandlers and the like, but seem content to ignore this more important aspect of visitor welfare.

To adapt a delicate North American euphemism, our lack of "comfort stations" makes life extremely uncomfortable for those unfamiliar with our city. And it's not good enough to expect hotels and department stores to provide this public service. Mayor William Tindall, his city council colleagues and their predecessors should flush with shame.

COMMENT/BACKGROUND

Republican right reluctantly accepts Bush

Martin Tolchin
New York Times News Service

DETROIT — Finally, after 16 years, they thought they had put it all together. From the outset, this had been the conservatives' convention. They had elected their delegates, paid their dues, spent the time, money and energy. They had fashioned a platform and drafted rules that made few concessions to the party's moderates.

But shortly after midnight Wednesday, it all changed. By a single stroke, the party's northeast Republican establishment was resurrected, placed on the national ticket by the man on whom they had pinned their hopes.

Worse yet, from the conservative point of view, a future party leader was anointed, a member of the Trilateral Commission, a supporter of the equal rights amendment and an opponent of a constitutional ban on abortions.

"Certainly I'm disappointed," said Representative John Rousselot, an extremely conservative member of Congress from California, "but I can live with it."

For Republican moderates, however, the selection of George Bush meant that they had a party once again. After being shut out all week, outgunned and outmanoeuvred in the manner that they had bested conservatives at previous conventions, the moderates walked away with more than they had expected.

"It's very reassuring," said Representative Barber Conable, a moderate from upstate New York. "It means outreach, and a campaign with a broader base than Reagan's primary constituency."

Similarly, Senator Jacob K. Javits of New York, long a symbol of the party's liberal wing, said it meant "a strong ticket that can carry our state."

For Senator Jesse Helms of North Carolina, the spiritual leader of the conservative convention, the selection of Bush was unpalatable. He had not campaigned for Ronald Reagan all these years, he said, to see the mantle of party leadership passed to a man that he considered unacceptably liberal.

All day, Helms and his conservative allies wrestled with a dilemma—Whether to go to the convention floor and battle vainly for conservative orthodoxy under the banner of a Helms vice-presidential candidacy, or settle for the half a loaf they had been given. Should they defy and embarrass their chosen leader, or respect his judgment and his decision to broaden the party's appeal?

The senator had pledged an independent campaign if Ronald Reagan turned to either Bush or Howard Baker. Several times this week he had said, "The question is not whether George Bush is acceptable to Jesse Helms; the question is whether he is acceptable to the American people."

When newsmen pressed him, Helms said, "I've been supportive of Governor Reagan too long to rush hastily into a decision involving the possible erosion of the very support that brought him the nomination."

There were indications that pragmatic politics had led conservatives as well as moderates to join ranks behind Bush.

"Bush will attract votes in the northeast," said Representative Jack F. Kemp, a conservative from Buffalo who was a candidate for the vice-presidential nomination. "It's good for New York to have George Bush on the ticket."

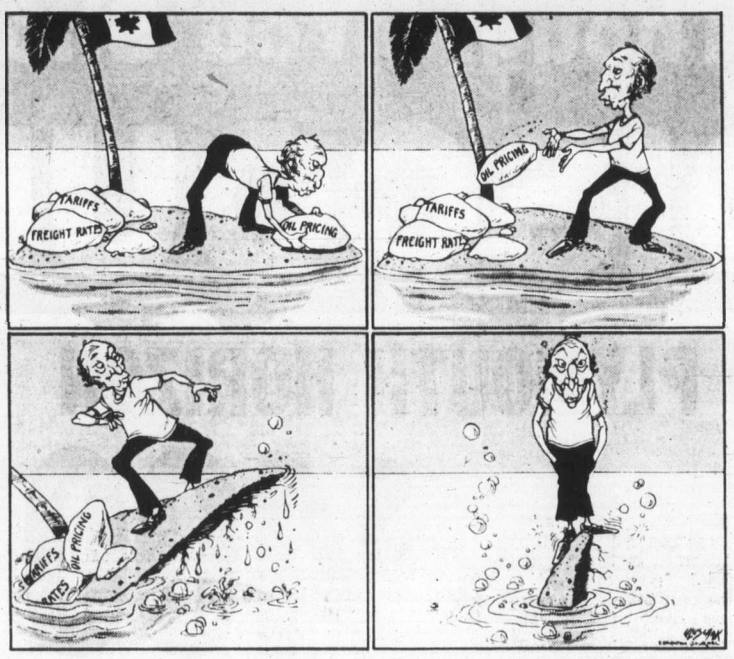

Similarly, Representative Barry Goldwater Jr. of California said that "The Trilateral Commission will be a thorn in the side of some diehard conservatives, but I'm not one of them. I'm a pragmatic conservative."

The Trilateral Commission consists of businessmen, scholars and public officials in North America, Japan and Western Europe, who discuss economic and foreign policy issues. Organized by David Rockefeller, it has been assailed by conservatives as elitist and internationalist.

Both conservatives and moderates also expressed relief that former President Gerald R. Ford had declined to join the ticket. Casper Weinberger, secretary of health, education and welfare under presidents Ford and Richard Nixon, said that the proposed diumverate "just wouldn't have worked."

"A shared presidency is not only unconstitutional, it is unworkable," he added.

The consensus was expressed by Representative Eldon Rudd, a conservative from Arizona. "Our job here is to win in November, for the sake of the nation and the survival of the nation. It's a winning ticket."

Introducing the people's car —a battery-driven Beetle

Darwin Sator

DAYTON, Ohio — A Dayton company that has been the dealership for Le Car electric automobiles for the past year has begun to manufacture its own electric cars using old Volkswagens.

The Dayton Electricar Corp. is planning a small assembly line in Ohio next year to turn out about 20 cars a day. The cars sell for about half the price of other electric models in the United States.

Owners Michael and Pat Zimmerman take the bodies of 1970-through-1973 Volkswagen Beetles and outfit them with eight-horsepower Baldor electric motors. The cars travel up to 50 miles without a battery recharge at up to 50 miles per hour—thus, the car's name is the Electricar 50-50.

Zimmerman decided to start manufacturing his own electric-powered vehicles because he found many people could not afford the $9,575 base price tag on the Le Car Lectric Leopard. There are about 30 other electric car makers in the United States, most of them selling vehicles in the $10,000 to $15,000 range.

By using well-cared-for shells of old VWs, Zimmerman has been able to bring the price of an electric car down to $5,895 plus tax, delivered anywhere in Ohio. That includes new radial tires, new brakes, reworked four-speed manual transmission, kerosene heater, batteries and built-in charger.

The Electricar 50-50 carries 12 batteries wired into a 72-volt system. Except for the loss of trunk space, the interior is as roomy as a regular Beetle. There is no change in the exterior.

The charger works either on 110-volt current, which takes about eight hours, or 220 volts, which takes only about two hours. With the rapid charger, it is possible to drive 50 miles in the morning, recharge at lunch, and drive 50 miles more in the afternoon.

Canada reaping more rewards from multiculturalism policy

Ben Malkin

OTTAWA — In an unusual action, the House of Commons has passed a motion reading: "That this House recognizes the contribution made to the Canadian mosaic and culture by the people of Chinese background."

Unusual for two reasons: it singled out a particular ethnic group, and it was a private member's motion, introduced by Ian Waddell (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway). It is rarely that a private member's motion comes to a vote, for it is allowed only an hour of debate.

It is even more rare for the Commons to focus attention on a single ethnic community.

Perhaps the vote was a sign of the times. Our politicians are conscious, more than ever, of the dignity and respect to which all ethnic groups are entitled. Within that framework, each person becomes judged as an individual.

During the Quebec referendum campaign, for example, Claude Ryan, leader of the "no" side, emphasized the equal worth of all cultural groups, and insisted that individual rights had therefore to be protected against a dominant collecti vity.

The federal multicultural policy aims at these twin goals: respect for the ethnic group's culture and history, coupled with the individual's right to equal treatment with all other individuals. Since the policy was put in place 10 years ago, much has been accomplished; Canadians have become more familiar with each other's cultural background, and this has undoubtedly led to an improvement in relations between ethnic groups and, therefore, between individuals.

It wasn't always so. Waddell pointed out that, while the first Chinese came to Canada in 1858, it wasn't until after the Second World War that they began to receive just and equal treatment. By that time, some Chinese were fourth generation Canadians.

Canadians of Chinese descent were not enfranchised by the federal government until 1947 while the the B.C. government left it to 1949.

That gave the Chinese community political equality; but it didn't eliminate prejudice, based on ignorance. Only last winter, the CTV program W-5 portrayed Canadian students of Chinese origin as foreign students, receiving an education at the expense of Canadians.

The network's management later apologized for the misrepresentation. But the ignorance behind the error can best be dispelled by the kind of motion presented by Waddell in the House, and by a multicultural program that makes the entire Canadian community more aware of its parts.

There is a role to be played, too, by the ethnic groups that have been subjected to discrimination. Waddell put it this way:

"I should tell this House of Commons that there is a renaissance, a growth today like never before in the Chinese-Canadian community. The community is alive, active and partcipating as never before in Canadian life. They are not about to take discrimination or stereotyping any more."

That is true, of course, of every other ethnic community in Canada. At least partly because of the multicultural policy, Canada's ethnic groups resist any suggestion that any of them can be categorized as second-class citizens. A person of non-French, non-Anglo-Celtic origin will integrate, as an individual, into either the English- or French-speaking society, or preferably into both. At the same time, he will demand for his group the same respect the dominant English- and French-speaking communities demand for themselves.

It remained for Steve Paproski (PC—Edmonton North), former minister for multicturalism, to give the Canadian mosaic a homely touch.

"As honorable members must know," he said, "we of Canadian Polish or Ukrainian background like our cabbage rolls, but during the last war we could not get the rice for them. We had many Chinese in our neighborhood, however, who received a weekly ration of rice and were good enough to pass it along to the Polish and Ukrainian communities so that they could have their cabbage rolls. In return, we gave them all the butter and anything else they wanted."

Or as the Canada Day slogan says, "Canada, it's you and me."

Today in History

Matthew Flinders, English explorer of Australia, died 166 years ago today — in 1814 — on the same day a book about his voyage was published.

Flinders, 40, had never recovered from effects of scurvy and shipwreck 12 years earlier or the six years he spent in a French prison.

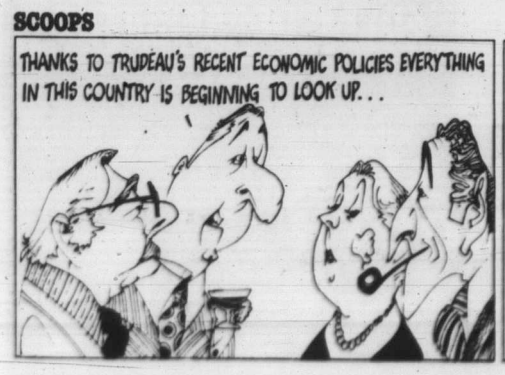

1845 — A fire destroyed 345 buildings causing $6 million damage in New York City.

1918 — German troops began their retreat across the Marne River during the First World War.

1937 — The first issues of new Bank of Canada bilingual currency appeared.

History lesson for Carrington

Dial Torgerson

JERUSALEM — In a blunt, mind-your-own-business statement, Prime Minister Menachem Begin lectured Britain's foreign secretary this week for voicing opposition to Begin's plan to move his office to East Jerusalem.

In the latest of a series of increasingly undiplomatic exchanges between Britain and Israel, Begin stated:

"The prime minister would like to make two points clear to Lord Carrington:

"It is not his business to advise the prime minister of Israel where his office should be in Jerusalem, the capital of Israel, as it is not the business of any Israeli citizen to advise Mrs. (Prime Minister Margaret) Thatcher on the same subject about London, capital of the United Kingdom."

The other point was a lesson in history, which Begin loves to offer:

"Jerusalem was the capital, a Jewish capital, long before London became the capital of the United Kingdom. When King David moved the capital of his kingdom from Hebron, where he reigned for seven years, the civilized world had not yet heard of the city of London."

Begin took offence at a statement by Lord Carrington for saying on Israeli television, in an interview filmed in Britain, that it would be a "great mistake" for Begin to move his office.

Begin has stated that he would move his office this summer from Jewish West Jerusalem to Arab-populated East Jerusalem, an area Israel took from Jordan in the Six-day War of 1967. Said Lord Carrington: "I think it will make things much more difficult for your friends and much easier for your enemies."

The British official was voicing much the same opinion as that of many diplomatic observers here, who fear that foreign governments will boycott a Begin office on the east side to avoid further problems with Arab states.

If Israeli-British relations get much worse, however, there may not be much said between the nations wherever Begin keeps his desk.

Begin started it last month when he accused Britain among other European nations (except Denmark and the Netherlands) of sharing a moral responsibility for the Second World War holocaust in which 6 million Jews died. Britain could have bombed rail lines to the Auschwitz concentration camp in Poland but failed to do so, he said.

When British Ambassador to Israel John Armstrong Robinson attempted to respond to that criticism at a Tel Aviv luncheon two weeks ago, he was heckled and later criticized for undiplomatic comments about his host nation. Carrington followed with some further comments critical of Israeli settlement policy, and Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir last week accused Britain of "wooing the Arabs."

A leader of the British Israeli community decried the Begin statement. "This does not reflect British-Israeli relations, or foreign policy, he said, "but solely the man who uttered it."

NOTES TO YOU. . .

I guess we should be thankful they are not on strike, that they are carrying out at least the major part of their duties. But I would suggest to the local policemen they have gained nothing in the way of public sympathy through their sloppy civilian attire gambit. Some of them appear as slovenly as many of the old-time hippies and I'm sure the late alderman, Bob Baird, would have had them "whipped and maced."

They are also not receiving public sympathy regarding salary. The public cannot and will not give sympathetic approval to a work action by a body of men who have been offered a yearly salary of $24,000 and more. The public sees that as a reasonably handsome offering from the public purse and I can't help but feel the policemen are receiving bad advice from their union negotiators . . .

SHOULD THERE be any surprise that the federal Liberals are toadying up to the NDP here in British Columbia? Should there be any surprise that Marc Lalonde would visit with Dave Barrett? They liked their game so much, I'm told, that each and every player on the team had to kick in $2,400 for the trip. In other words, no sponsorship and this must make them true amateurs in a sense that has been lost even to Olympic Games competition . . .

Getting our citizens into homes of their own should be a number one priority of all levels of government, with the federal government leading the way. But all we've received is bandaid help.

"Have you anything that won't upset my feminist friends?"

Feminists take extreme position

Edward Carrigan's article, Let's pay mothers to remain at home, Colonist July 6,) caught my interest as a feminist who supports the demand that women be paid for homemaking.

It is interesting to see that men are beginning to acknowledge the need for women to be paid for the hitherto unrecognized work we do as child-rearers.

There are some questions, however, that should be raised regarding Mr. Carrigan's analysis. He does not seem to have women's best interests at heart.

The expediency factor: The writer's support on this issue is based on economic expediency. High unemployment, the automation of office work and the high costs of institutionalized child care are the given reasons for this seemingly humanitarian suggestion. There are too many men out of a job, so, even though women have struggled since at least the Second World War for paid work, we are now to return to the home to work for our family allowance dispensation? Does this imply that lower unemployment and a more stable economy would mean that women would then provide these services for free again?

Tokenism: By suggesting that family allowances are the proper vehicle for channelling money to mothers, Mr. Carrigan appears to elect a simple, efficient method of payment. But let's look more closely. Family allowance is part of Canada's welfare system. Would we be true workers, integrated as part of the general work force, with the right to negotiate our wages, benefits and working conditions or would we be somewhat privileged welfare recipients, with no rights as workers? Token workers?

What about husband care? If we are to be paid for rearing children, then why not for rearing, I mean, caring for husbands? Indeed, society needs well-fed, clean-clothed happy men even more from a viewpoint of economic expediency than it does well-fed, etc. children. But maybe that's going too far. Feminists by definition go too far. And that's great, because it's the best place to bargain from. And I for one, Mr. Carrigan, am not willing to bargain with you until your analysis is a little more centred on the rights of women and a little less on economic expediency.

Bureaucrats join pay elite

OTTAWA — Back after a three-week break at home in western Canada. What have we missed?

Well, to begin with, a salary increase to top civil servants. Life in the upperreaches of the mandarinate now pays up to $85,700 a year, which means senior bureaucrats are among the few Canadians who can afford building lots in Calgary.

What else?

PIERRE TRUDEAU'S been abroad, where, some say, he feels most at home.

At home, he's maintaining his quest for a new constitution, an endeavor that has preoccupied him for some time.

We had forgotten how long until we ran across a reference he made in a recent interview to the late Liberal premier of Saskatchewan, Ross Thatcher.

Trudeau recalled that Thatcher liked to say: "In a list of 100, the constitution is still the 99th in my province."

Added Trudeau: "I never knew what the 100th was—probably the welfare of Torontonians."

Or the election of Trudeau Liberals?

OVER AT EXTERNAL affairs, we're told we've missed the machinations leading to a major reshuffling of diplomats. The department has apparently drawn in its horns over Trudeau government suggestions that former Liberal external affairs minister Don Jamieson be appointed ambassador to Washington.

That, we're told, means the fiesty Newfoundlander, who last led an unsuccessful Liberal effort to defeat Tory Premier Brian Peckford in his native province, will be sent across the sea to take up diplomatic duties in Dublin.

Shamrocks for a man who has devoted his life to the political shams of the Rock.

MEANWHILE, the operatives at external have decided to pay off Ambassador Ken Taylor for his daring rescue of the American Six in Iran as cheaply as possible by appointing him to the minor diplomatic job of consul-general in New York.

As ungenerous as this may seem considering the diplomatic and other benefits Canada has received from Taylor's exploits, it's comforting to know that there is now a standard reward for those involved in political escapes.

Taylor received a post equivalent to that given former Liberal MP Ralph Stewart by Joe Clark for crossing the floor to join the Tories—Stewart was made consul-general in Atlanta, Ga.

Or is the Atlanta territory larger?

SPEAKING OF REWARDS, that was some dinner given by a grateful government to retiring Auditor-General J. J. ('Just Call Me Jim') MacDonell last week.

Taxpayer-subsidized smoked salmon, roast beef and strawberries with creme from the parliamentary kitchens; free bar for 200 before and after dinner, red and white wine with, champagne for toasts, liqueurs at the end. Witty words from MPs of all stripes (Tory House Leader Walter Baker said grace; asked God to bless the food and help him learn to count). A charming printed program designed and produced by CHM Communications Ltd., of Montreal full of pictures and amusing cutlines of 'Value for Money' Macdonell in various poses.

(The one we liked best was that of a concerned Macdonell purportedly saying: "The office has lost or is close to losing effective control of the sherry fund." Another: A stern Macdonell saying of his past membership in the exclusive Rideau Club, "Since the Rideau burnt down, I am down to my last 17 clubs . . .")

Anyway, we only hope someone kept track of the costs of the dinner for the first report of the auditor-general who will replace Macdonell this September.

Just to see if the dinner provided the rest of us with value for the money.

INCIDENTALLY, AMONG those invited who did not attend the dinner was Privy Council Clerk Michael Pitfield, who fought Macdonell's successful effort to install a comptroller-general to help ride herd on federal spending.

Perhaps he was upset that no one gave him the same kind of send-off when he was turfed as clerk and senior mandarin by then prime minister Clark last year. (Macdonell's dinner was what most considered the first of its kind for a public servant).

Then again, Pitfield no doubt takes some comfort from the fact that, while he didn't get a dinner, he did get that $97,000 severence payment for the nine months he spent outside government before Trudeau reappointed him clerk.

Colonist-FP News Service

Burr under fed's saddle won't go away

With regard to Don Collins' article on western independence.

Either Mr. Collins doesn't bother reading this paper, or he has sacrificed fact for "wit." His information is as outdated as the picture of Mr. Christie. Had he read the report in the Colonist of Mr. Christie's talk in Penticton, he would know that one reason behind the very difficult decision to start again, was that the group in Vancouver is adamant that B.C. be the only province to separate, while we believe that the four western provinces as an independent nation makes much more economic sense.

Western independence is certainly a burr under Ottawa's saddle, as Mr. Collins states, but, as subsequent newscasts, statements by politicians, and polls on open line shows have shown, not one that is going to go away.

I'd strongly suggest that Mr. Collins have a good talk with Jim Hume, who seems to have a much more comprehensive grasp of the current situation in the west.

Shaken by words

I must take exception to your account of the debate that took place in the provincial legislature. You report the use of the words "f--- off" and note that "MLAs and the press were waiting to see how staid Hansard handles the clearly enunciated unparliamentary language."

One of my colleagues had the kindness to explain to me what f--- might stand for, and needless to say I was shocked and shaken. It is regretful that you did not see fit to exercise more restraint in your choice of words—surely you could have replaced "f--- off" with "desist" or "be off with you" or some milder expression.

It behooves you to remember that the Colonist sometimes comes before the innocent eyes of women and children. I should seriously consider cancelling my subscription to your paper, were it not for the fact that I do not subscribe to your paper. In the name of common decency I urge you to show more restraint in the future.

DAVID GREER,
Deputy Chief
Of Hansard.

Bill before borrowing

Recently Liberals shoved a demand for borrowing $12 billion through Parliament—and this, mark you, before they produced a budget. In ordinary life you can't stick someone up for sums of cash without presenting a bill first. But that's what is happening to you right now.

If the opposition is powerless when faced with this type of thing, I could come up with some suggestions about amending the constitution as to parliamentary procedure, and I hope the provinces will.

How long are you going to stand for this? We in the west had the sense not to vote them in. Your member is dependent on your vote, so has to pay some attention to your letters. Why not go to it?

MRS. P. HOKANSON,

Cordova Bay attacks undeserved

Recently a number of speakers at the Cordova Bay Community Plan meetings have come under attack. Basing my opinion upon what I heard these speakers say at the meetings I do not feel these attacks are warranted nor do they represent the positions taken by the speakers.

One of the objectives stated in the Cordova Bay Community Plan is "to maintain the semi-rural character of Cordova Bay." Another section of the plan proposes to more than double the current population of Cordova Bay. Once sewers are installed there appears to be little to prevent the area from being turned into a huge subdivision such as has occurred in other parts of Victoria. Not surprisingly many residents of Cordova Bay (as shown at the public meetings) are somewhat less than enthusiastic at this prospect.

That there is a sewage problem in Cordova Bay has never been seriously disputed at these local plan meetings. What is happening is that several speakers are refusing to be panicked into allowing the sewer issue to cloud the overall plan. Some very searching questions on sewers are being asked in an effort to see if there is not some way in which the problem can be rectified and still maintain the aesthetic values of Cordova Bay. Other questions seek to determine if the planned sewering program will correct the problem or is a significant amount of the effluent coming from areas outside the sections to be sewered; will sewering clean up the beach or is much of this pollution coming from the Finnerty Point outfall and, are there alternate methods of sewering this community which will not pour more raw sewage into the local waters?

KENNETH V. STRONG,

Victoria.

AT WESTCOAST SAVINGS, WE'RE LARGE ENOUGH TO SERVE YOU.

BUT SMALL ENOUGH TO CARE.

It seems everywhere you turn these days, the personal touch just isn't always there like it used to be. The corporate financial giants seems to be treating their customers like customers instead of like people.

At Westcoast Savings we refuse to believe that bigger always means better.

We're not a large financial empire stretching across the country. But we're large enough to offer you almost every service the banks can offer. And small enough to provide a few that they can't, services like:

Prime 55 - a chequing/savings account for those over 55 that pays competitive interest.

The Westcoaster - a chequing account especially for those under 55 with many benefits including monthly interest.

Insurance is available at every branch and Personal Counselling from your Branch Managers. All Deposits are fully guaranteed. We provide you with full inter-branch banking, six day service, and extended banking hours.

But the best part of our service is our people. All our staff try to be helpful, friendly and efficient - never too busy to help.

So, if you're tired of being treated like a number instead of a name, come and talk to us . . . we'll listen.

Esquimalt duo first warships for upgrading

Two Esquimalt-based destroyer-escorts will be the first of 16 ships on both coasts to be upgraded as part of a multi-million-dollar program to extend the life of Canada's fleet of warships.

Eight of the destroyers are under the command of Rear Admiral Michael Martin, commander of Maritime Forces Pacific, who retires next month after 35 years' service. Martin made the announcement in an interview this week.

THE HMCS Gatineau and HMCS Q'Appelle are to be upgraded at a cost of $18.75 million each.

In addition, the two ships are due for their regular $5-million refit which would bring to $47.5 million the total amount of money to be spent on the vessels.

THE UPGRADING, being done under the Destroyer Life Extension program covers replacement of obsolete equipment, rewiring and replacing electronics equipment.

"Sure it's a band-aid treatment but it gives us breathing space until they can be replaced by new ships," Martin said.

LACK OF new equipment was the number one complaint of servicemen, particularly the younger ones, he added.

"There's bitter disappointment in the fleet about the delays in getting new ships," he said, adding "our sailors are very aware of the aging ships they serve in."

THERE WAS a sense of frustration and "it's a significant factor in the number of men leaving the service."

Martin, who has served in the West Coast command since mid-1977, said Canada's war fighting capability was hanging in the balance.

CANADA'S small fleet was rapidly aging, her NATO commitment weakening, while potential enemies were rapidly gaining control of the oceans, he said.

He predicted an era of serious confrontations over energy resources in the 1980s with the problem of shortages as serious for the Soviets as for the West.

BECAUSE of Canada's geographic position and dependence on sea trade for imports and exports, Martin said, Canada's survival and that of its allies would depend on control of sea lanes.

"We are entering the most dangerous era since the Korean War. East-West dialogue is not as open and friendly as it was," he said.

CANADA'S military expenditures and personnel had exceeded only those of tiny Luxembourg among NATO countries, he noted.

"I'm concerned we're not putting enough money into NATO, only two per cent of the gross national product compared with four to six per cent by the United Kingdom and the U.S."

THE PACIFIC Ocean and Pacific ports were now as important as the Atlantic, he stressed.

"We face a two-ocean threat and I'm convinced our NATO force is too small."

Martin said he did not expect any major reposturing of the fleet until new vessels started arriving in five or six years.

THE LONG-awaited frigate program would move a step closer with a decision by cabinet "very soon" on awarding a design contract to two consortiums of shipbuilding companies, he said.

Martin, 52, plans to live in B.C. in his retirement.

Provincial Court

A 22-year-old man who broke into an Oak Bay grocery store and took caseloads of foodstuffs was given a five-month jail term Friday in Victoria provincial court.

Ronald Peter Klein, who told Judge Fred Green he lived in his van, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the Willo-Way Low Cost, 1480 Monterey, possession of a stolen citizen's band radio and eight-track tapes, and driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 per cent.

Crown counsel Wayne Smith told the court the events started June 14 when the grocery store was broken into and $150 in U.S. quarters, another $100 in change, $200 to $300 in cigarettes and foodstuffs valued at about $500 were taken during a break-in.

On June 29, Victoria police noticed Klein driving his van at Wharf and Courtney at about 3:30 p.m. because the vehicle seemed to be darting in and out of traffic. After a chase which reached speeds of 80 kmh, Klein was finally stopped in the AirWest terminal parking lot, where he stepped out of his van and a 40-ounce bottle of rye fell to the ground. Inside the van police found another drink with a cube of ice in it as well as some of the stolen foodstuffs. Also found were the stolen CB radio and tapes, taken from a vehicle June 17.

Klein was belligerent with the officers but submitted to the breath analysis tests which produced readings of .23 and .22, Smith said.

Smith said Klein had been convicted Feb. 4, 1980 in Williams Lake of driving with a blood-alcohol over .08 and was fined $250 as well as being placed on four months probation.

Duty legal aid lawyer Barry Mah Ming said Klein was in debt to the tune of $9,300 and that welfare was reluctant to help him. Mah Ming also stated that Klein borrowed money to get drunk for the first time in a month.

Green said the youth intended to live off the profits of the breaking and entering.

Klein was also given a five-month, concurrent sentence on the possession of stolen property and a 30-day, concurrent term for the drinking-driving offence.

A 33-YEAR-OLD man who defrauded the human resources ministry of $2,109.99 over a period of seven months was given a three-month jail sentence by Green.

Melvin Edward Remington, of 2206 Church, pleaded guilty to fraud and was ordered to make restitution to the ministry for the full amount.

Court was told the welfare fraud took place between October, 1979 and April of this year.

Smith said Remington applied for welfare at the Esquimalt office on May 16, 1979 and was granted funds until April of this year.

However, he began working in August for the Pay-N-Save gas station at 6429 Pat Bay Highway and continued collecting welfare benefits.

In January, Remington was fired from his job, but received unemployment insurance benefits and welfare from the Sooke office at the same time.

Remington made application for continuation of his welfare on April 10, 1980, and an investigation was launched. He admitted his employment and unemployment insurance benefits on April 25 after initially denying both when he applied for the welfare. He told investigators he needed the money to pay off bills.

Green said Remington was defrauding a public who pays enough in taxes and levies and he said the public demands—and the courts recognize—that so-called white collar criminals must pay the price.

TWO MEN WHO reacted angrily in licensed premises where given fines by Green.

Leslie Michael Nunn, 35, of 2072 Henry in Sidney, pleaded guilty to common assault and was fined $75, placed on three months probation and ordered to stay out of Fonzie's Cabaret in the Sidney Travelodge during his probationary period.

Court was told Nunn was requested to leave because he was drunk and hit the bouncer in the cheek.

Sidney RCMP were called and finally got Nunn to leave. But as he was going, Nunn hit the bouncer in the jaw with an open hand. He was grabbed by the officers and taken to the RCMP detachment where he was held overnight.

Ronald James Garrett, 25, of 1907 Chambers, pleaded guilty to mischief causing wilful damage to a popcorn machine in Prince George and was fined $50.

Garrett was in a beer parlor and was refused a round of beer about 1:20 a.m. because it was closing time. After being denied again when he went to the bar, Garrett picked up a chair on his way out and threw it into the popcorn machine, stating, "Next time, serve me a beer."

Defence lawyer Chris Considine said Garrett has made restitution of $186.96 for damage to the popcorn machine. Considine said his client had been missed on last call.

FINED $400 for driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 was 21-year-old Kenneth Roy Werner, of 677 Kent.

Future still foggy on Alert Bay care

Health Minister Rafe Mair told the Legislature on Friday that he was still finding it difficult to determine what future plans the federal government has for health care at Alert Bay.

Mair made the statement as he reported to the house on progress made since Alert Bay health care programs first came into public focus.

HE NOTED THAT there is now a second physician in the village on contract to the federal government for a short time. He also noted that for a four-month period the federal government has financed the hiring of a health administrator and three health board officials (not hospital board) at a cost of $57,000. The four are charged with the responsibility of reviewing all existing health services available to Indians and make recommendations on what future services should include.

The federal health ministry is also preparing a proposal for financing on a long term basis but so far Health and Welfare Canada hasn't been able to get approval from the federal treasury board.

MAIR SAID HE HAD sought clarification on Ottawa's plans and had been informed that a tentative meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, July 23, in Victoria to review outstanding issues.

"As you can see," Mair said, "it is very difficult for me to determine just what the future plans of the federal government are in relation to the provisions of health services at Alert Bay. I realize that everyone is aware that health is a provincial matter; however, the federal government is, in fact, involved in the provision of health services to native residents of this province."

MAIR REMINDED THE house that he had recently approved the planning for a new hospital in Alert Bay "subject to approval by the regional hospital district and the federal government on behalf of the natives."

The new hospital will have 10 acute-care beds, two extended-care and three intermediate-care beds. It is also hoped that the hospital will have a detoxification unit but Mair said details had yet to be worked out.

MAIR SAID HE HOPED his summary of events "will indicate that I take the provisions of health care to all citizens in this province very seriously. The involvement of the federal government in the provisions of certain services to our native residents does complicate the situation."

Strange downtown fire listed 'cause unknown'

Last week's $1.5-million, three-alarm fire which destroyed a heritage building in downtown Victoria has been classified as "cause unknown" despite some strange circumstances.

The blaze, discovered about 1 a.m. last Friday, knocked out seven businesses and threatened an adjacent apartment block before firemen from Victoria and Oak Bay were able to put it out.

Preliminary indications were that the fire started at the rear of the Continental Men's Hair Salon in a washroom, but Deputy Fire Chief Mike Heppell of Victoria said it has now been determined that it started about two metres away.

Heppell said the fire had been burning for at least an hour before a passerby spotted it.

Flames broke through a false ceiling and spread quickly through the two-storey building.

A city electrical inspector checked the ruins but could find no wiring problems or electrical faults.

However, no incendiary materials could be found, nor was there any indication of a break-in. However, there were electrical appliances such as hair dryers, curlers, shampoo heaters, and clippers in the area where the fire is believed to have started.

Toronto trading

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market gave its best performance in more than two weeks Friday as investors applauded the federal government's decision to prebuild Canadian portions of the Alaska Highway pipeline.

Analysts said the fall in Canadian bank and prime lending rates Thursday and an announcement the same day that U.S. housing starts rose 30.4 per cent in June were still favorably affecting stocks in that group.

David Ekmekjian, a broker with Pitfield Mackay Ross Ltd. of Toronto, said the decision to go ahead with prebuilding the southern legs of the pipeline was largely anticipated and to some extent already discounted by the market.

MARKET REPORT

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned in another strong showing in heavy trading Friday, closing out its best week in three months.

Forest-products stocks and other issues with links to the building industry generally fared well following the government's report Thursday that housing starts jumped 30 per cent in June from the month before.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed to its highest close since it stood at 924.10 on June 27, 1977.

In all, 20 of the Dow average's component stocks gained ground, while five were unchanged and five posted losses.

Analysts said the market continued to benefit from hopes for an early end to the recession.

The government reported Friday morning that economic activity plunged at a 9.1 per cent annual rate in the second quarter.

The exchange's composite index rose .31 to a new high of 69.84.

Among Canadian issues on the NYSE, McIntyre Mines was up 2¾ to $71¼, Canadian Pacific 1 to $37¼ and Genstar ⅞ to $30⅛.

Farmers to reap lower profit

OTTAWA (CP) — Net farm income actually received by farmers is expected to decline 14½ per cent to $3.2 billion in 1980, Statistics Canada said Friday, led by sharp drops in Alberta and Ontario.

The revised forecast of farm income, receipts and expenses, which takes into account the effect of drought conditions in the Prairies, shows realized net farm income will decline more than the 10.7 per cent drop forecast six months ago.

Earlier projections of an increase in net farm income received by Saskatchewan and Alberta farmers have been reversed and now show sharp declines.

The agency said realized net income in Saskatchewan is expected to decline 10 per cent this year after earlier predictions of an increase of 25 per cent this year.

While there are little or no drought problems in Alberta, lower receipts for livestock production along with higher operating expenses are likely to cause a 24.9 per cent decline in net farm income actually received.

The effects of the drought in Saskatchewan and Manitoba will be offset partly by crop insurance payments and lower year-end grain inventories, the outlook says. But it also warns growing conditions remain uncertain in the two provinces and forecasts could change substantially.

In the latest outlook produced by the agency and Agriculture Canada, farm cash receipts for this year are predicted to increase 4.7 per cent to $14.8 billion. Farm operating expenses are expected to increase 11.6 per cent to $11.8 billion.

Ontario net farm income is expected to drop 29.3 per cent from 1979. While cash receipts are likely to rise 5.4 per cent, operating expenses will be higher by 14.7 per cent.

British Columbia and Quebec are bright spots with increased net farm income of 6.8 per cent and 19.9 per cent respectively.

Little change is recorded from earlier projections for the Maritimes with net farm income for Prince Edward Island down 39.2 per cent, Nova Scotia up two per cent and New Brunswick down 27.9 per cent.

Consortium shuffles deck in bid for naval frigates

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — In a move to make its bid more predominantly Canadian, a consortium bidding to build at least six new frigates for the Canadian Forces has moved up Saint John Shipbuilding and Drydocking Co. Ltd. to the position of prime contractor.

Shipyard president Andrew MacArthur said his company has replaced Sperry Inc. of Ottawa as the major contractor in the consortium, one of three competing for the $2 billion frigate contract.

Sperry Inc. has become the prime subcontractor, MacArthur said in a news release Friday.

"The realignment of contractors was in keeping with the government's desire to maximize the participation of Canadian firms in the Canadian frigate program," he said.

"The (new) Saint John-Sperry proposal calls for this company, a wholly owned, controlled and managed Canadian company, to be the prime contractor and manager in the program."

Saint John Marine Consultants ltd., the local shipyard's design company, will still handle the design of the new ships, with subcontract design work going to Gibbs and Cox Ltd. of New York, he said.

The federal government is expected to award the contract this fall. A Toronto consortium and a Longueuil, Que. consortium are also bidding for the frigate contract.

Sperry Systems and Sperry Univac Defence Systems of Winnipeg, would design the combat and electronic systems for the proposed ships and would "assist in managing the entire program," MacArthur said.

Marine Industry Ltd. of Quebec and Burrard Yarrows Corp. of British Columbia will provide technical assistance during the "contract definition" stage of the bid, he said.

Davie Shipbuilding Ltd. of Quebec would also provide assistance and build some ships too, MacArthur said.

Other subcontractors include Spar Aerospace Ltd. of Toronto; Leigh Instruments Ltd. of Ottawa; DAF Indel of Mississauga, Ont.; Miller Communications of Ottawa; and others.

Dollar more for CP fare

VANCOUVER (CP) — One-way economy fares for CP Air domestic flights go up today by 0.8 per cent, or about $1, to offset last week's federal fuel tax increase, a company spokesman said Friday.

Other fares, based on the economy rate, will be increased proportionately.

The hike is subject to federal government approval.

Wheat crop to drop

WINNIPEG (CP) — United Grain Growers of Winnipeg predicts Prairie farmers will produce 20.6 per cent less wheat this year than in 1979 because of dry weather.

In its first crop output report of the year, the grain co-operative estimated Friday red spring wheat production this year would be 439 million bushels, down from 553 million last year.

The drop is expected even though farmers have seeded almost 23.4 million acres, almost one million more than in 1979.

The firm also predicted production drops for all other crops except barley, with durum output down by as much as 20 per cent, oats 25 per cent, rye 37 per cent, flaxseed 41 per cent and rapeseed 45 per cent.

Almost 2 million acres more than the 10.9 million last year is seeded in barley but predicted low yields could hold the overall production increase to only six per cent.

The worst slump in wheat production is predicted in Manitoba where yields may drop to 15.5 bushels per acre from 25.8. Saskatchewan yields could be 15.2 bushels per acre, down from 22.8.

In Alberta, good rains and cooler temperatures have boosted the yield potential substantially, the output report said. Wheat yields of 30.2 bushels per acre are expected, compared to 26.0 in 1979.

$1.15 billion in bonds coming from Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — The government plans to issue $1.15 billion in non-callable bonds, the finance department announced Friday.

The issue, to be dated and delivered Aug. 1, will be used to redeem $267 million in bonds maturing on the same date and to pay for general government expenses.

The maturities consist of:

- 10½ per cent bonds due Feb. 1, 1983.
- 10¾ per cent bonds due Oct. 1, 1985.
- 11¼ per cent bonds due Dec. 15, 1989.
- 11¾ per cent bonds due Feb. 1, 2003.

The government is offering to pay one-half of one per cent more on both the short-term and long-term maturing bonds because of a weaker market.

The 11.75 per cent bonds will be issued in a maximum amount of $450 million.

The Bank of Canada will buy a minimum of $350 million of the new bonds with a minimum of $85 million of the 2003 maturity. The central bank holds $92 million of the Aug. 1, 1980 bonds.

The new 11.25 per cent bonds are in addition to $325 million worth of 11.25 per cent bonds, now outstanding, due Dec. 15, 1989. The new 11.75 per cent are in addition to $1.25 billion worth of 11.75 per cent bonds, now outstanding, due Feb. 1, 2003.

Prices for the new bond issue will be given Monday.

Friends scarce in bank circles

OTTAWA (CP) — The wildly-fluctuating interest rates of the last few months probably have not made new friends for the chartered banks.

Consumers deferred major purchases and businessmen shelved expansion plans as the cost of money soared to through early April.

And accusations of gouging by the banks have intensified as interest levels began falling in subsequent weeks at a pace well behind the rate set weekly by the Bank of Canada.

Yet the public image of bankers is not the only casualty of the current round of ups and downs in interest rates.

Financial analysts say the banking industry is in its worst slump in years and isn't making windfall profits at the expense of its clients.

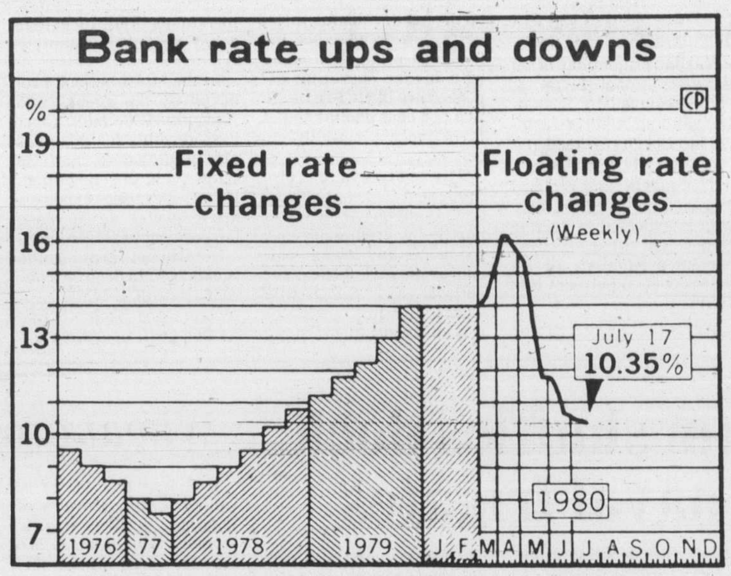

"It's a classic example of perception versus reality," says Hugh Brown, a banking specialist with Burns Fry Ltd. in Toronto.

Here's how Brown and other experts respond to some of the questions raised by the continuing debate on bank profits and interest rates:

How can banks complain about hard times when they make hundreds of millions of dollars a year in profits?

The experts agree bank profits look mind-boggling to the average Canadian but they say it's clear profits haven't kept pace with the growth in domestic assets of the banks.

Burns Fry Ltd. expects the after-tax domestic earnings of the 11 chartered banks to fall to $690 million this fiscal year from $276 million last year. Domestic profits for 1981 are likely to improve to $900 million.

Floating central bank rate back down to 1978 levels

That bright forecast looks somewhat different, however, when measured against the ever-growing domestic assets of the banks.

John Mitchell of Greenshields Inc. of Montreal predicts the largest bank, The Royal Bank of Canada, will see the return on its domestic assets climb to 0.51 per cent in fiscal 1981 from 0.42 per cent this year. Both figures are well below the 0.61 return of 1978.

Projections for the next four largest banks are much the same.

Why were the banks quick to raise interest rates earlier this spring and why are they so slow about lowering them now?

The banks are said to be trying to improve the spread between what they earn on loans, mortgages and other investments and what they pay on deposits and their own borrowings in the money markets.

There seems to be no simple way, however, to calculate the spread of a particular bank from the interest rates that prevail at any given time.

That's because the mix of assets and liabilities of the banks changes all the time. Some transactions carry fixed interest rates while others rise and fall with the prevailing market.

The experts don't all agree the banks were squeezed severely as interest rates moved up to record levels earlier this year. But the consensus in the financial community is that the squeeze is on as rates fall during the current quarter.

The banks began the quarter chained to short-term funds they borrowed when interest rates were still high. As those funds are replaced by lower-cost money, the banks will be in a better position to lower the rates they charge on loans.

Most analysts see the rates on all kinds of loans falling in the coming months and the profits of banks improving as a result.

"If we had to give a rule of thumb, it is that rising rates hurt the banks and falling rates help the banks," says Victor Koloshuk of McLeod Young Weir Ltd. of Toronto.

Why don't the banks follow the Bank of Canada's lead on interest rates more closely?

Until recently, the rates the banks charged to their best corporate customers was three-quarters of a percentage point above the Bank of Canada rate.

That relationship has changed drastically since April, and one reason for the change is the federal government's decision to move to a floating rate.

The central bank's weekly rate remains an indicator of the cost of borrowing funds for 90 days, but that's only one kind of money the chartered banks borrow.

Brown of Burns Fry says members of the general public and politicians alike don't realize the significance of the change to the floating system.

"They see the bank rate coming down and think everything should be coming down like that."

B.C. stumpage plan wins plaudit

VANCOUVER (CP) — A government white paper on timber pricing is a good step forward toward a better pricing system, says Tony Shebbeare of the Council of Forest Industries.

The paper makes several recommendations regarding stumpage prices, the rate the government charges companies for timber on Crown lands.

Chairman Bob Robertson of the Interior Lumber Manufacturers' Association said: "I think it's a very positive report because it opens the door to adressing the problems of Crown land timber pricing."

The report recommends an "end product" system for coastal timber operations. This system, similar to that used in Interior appraisals, bases prices on the value of lumber, pulp and chips.

Currently, stumpage prices are based on the value of logs sold on the Vancouver log market.

Colin Fraser of the Independent Logging Association said an end-product system "would not be an insurmountable problem."

A spokesman for the Cariboo Lumber Manufacturers' Association said the great variety of timber on the coast would make such a system too complex and expensive to adopt.

One load of scrap to go

MARINE NEWS
By JIM BRAHAN
Colonist Marine Reporter

The 35,000-ton Monrovian-registered bulk carrier Pacemporer is expected to anchor at Royal Roads early today to await orders pertaining to cargoes and destinations. However, the 607-foot long ship is expected to take on part of her cargo at Victoria, the bulk of which is scrap metal destined for Japan.

The Bahamas is planning to amend its ship registration laws to encourage more ship owners to use the country as a flag of convenience.

More than 170 ships have come under Bahamian registry since the Bahamas Merchant Shipping Act was passed four years ago. Bahamian registry is open to all vessels of more than 1,600-tons, if they are no more than 12 years old.

In 1976, The Bahamas became the first country to simultaneously ratify all 10 conventions on safety and pollution control laid down by the Inter-Governmental Maritime Consulative Organization.

Since then The Bahamas has been competing with other flag of convenience countries such as Liberia, Panama, Singapore, Cyprus, Honduras and Somalia which together account for about 30 per cent of world shipping.

The changes being contemplated by The Bahamas registraion laws include:

- Allow ships smaller than 1,600 tons to be registered.
- Set a ceiling of $100,000 on fees for large ships.
- Offer discounts for fleet registration.
- Exempt ships with automated systems from complying with normal manning levels.

Forest products tonnages shipped through the Port of Alberni during June increased by 14,090 tons compared to shipments made during the same period last year, accoring to the port's Harbour Commission.

Paper shipments to the U.S., Japan, and Asian points accounted for much of the increase. Last month there was a total of 35,755 tons of paper shipped as opposed to 11,513 tons during June 1979.

Plywood also contributed to the increase, with shipments to the U.K., Japan, and Denmark totalling 4,555 tons in June as compared to a total tonnage of 1,850 shipped during the same period a year ago to the U.K.

Lumber shipments to the U.S., Japan, United Kingdom, Australia, and Morocco, dropped to 35,755 tons from 46,884 tons during the same period last year.

The total tonnage through the port June this year was 81,118 tons. During June 1979 the port's total tonnage was 66,209 tons.

Eight of Canada's 18 shipyards will be out of work by the end of this year and only one still will be operating by the end of 1982 if the government does not quickly produce a new program to help them win orders, a Nova Scotia MP said earlier this week.

A Liberal government spokesman replied that a new program would be announced before the end of the year.

Michael Forrestall, Progressive Conservative MP for Dartmouth-Halifax East, said the government soon must move to replace subsidies for Canadian shipbuilders, which were cut to nine per cent from 20 per cent on July 1.

Delays now mean workers could be out of the work in the future because of the time it takes to win new orders and get projects under way, he said.

The subsidies help the Canadian industry compete with foreign operations.

Forrestall said two Montreal shipyards have laid off 1,400 workers in the last eight months. Six more yards would run out of work by January and another eight would wind up current contracts next year.

During a recent interview, Don Challinor general manager of Burrard Yarrows Corp. Victoria division, said the Esquimalt shipyard was in good shape for work for the remainder of this year and also forecast a good work-year for the yard in 1981.

Women MBAs find places in top jobs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Women executives are entering master of business administration programs in their search for senior management positions.

At the University of B.C., 82 women — 25 per cent of the total class — were registered in the current academic year. The university offers a two-year, full-time MBA program as well as part-time evening studies.

For four years after Simon Fraser University's MBA program began in 1968, no women enrolled, but now women constitute about 20 per cent of the class.

A fairly wide variety of women are showing interest in the MBA program for a number of reasons, says Roger Vergin, director of the Simon Fraser course.

"There are some who have the background and the capability to move into executive positions, but because of prejudice or whatever within the business world, they have not been able to do so," he says.

"IN A LOT OF OTHER CASES, they have been advanced to management positions without formal training and are seeking to obtain it," he adds.

The Simon Fraser program, called an executive MBA program, is designed specifically to prepare mid-career individuals for senior management.

The program demands a great deal of motivation, Vergin says.

"They (students) probably are putting in 20 to 25 hours a wek in classes and assignments in addition to their full-time jobs which are often quite responsible positions."

WOMEN ENTERING the program are basically the same as the men, says J. D. Claxton, director of UBC's masters degree studies.

"I felt I needed the concepts that the course would give me a broader, more in-depth business knowledge than I had," says Barbara Rae, the first woman accepted into Simon Fraser's program in September, 1972.

Then 42, she was general manager of Office Assistance (Canada) Ltd., a Vancouver-based personnel consulting firm.

"I also thought the MBA designation would be very helpful to me in my professional career development because I would be seen as a professional," says Ms. Rae, who has since become president of Office Assistance.

THE PROGRAM demands a great deal of motivation, Vergin says.

"They probably are putting in 20 to 25 hours a week in classes and assignments in addition to their full-time jobs which are often quite responsible positions."

"I took the MBA program in large part for my ego," says Vera Piccini, 33, who began in September, 1975, while in her sixth year in management with a large department store.

"I wanted a masters, I always felt that I wanted to go one step further with my academic career. The MBA program was a deliberate choice for me.

"IT IS A GOOD DEGREE in order to be treated seriously as a senior management candidate. It provides you with far more leverage in your future career."

Ms. Piccini now manages the personnel department of First City Trust, reporting directly to the president.

"I think there is a lot of effort on the part of business executives to consciously search for and recruit women into their management," says Ms. Rae.

Ottawa wants advance word

Oilmen consider request for northern well results

CALGARY (CP) — Oilmen aren't worried about a request by the federal Indian and northern affairs department to have advance notice of oil and gas discoveries in the north, information which wouldn't be available to shareholders of the public at large.

The request came in the form of a letter from G. N. Faulkner, assistant deputy minister in the department headed by John Munro.

It said: "Without advance consultation, the minister and senior officials may be placed in a potentially embarrassing position," by seeming reluctant to comment on northern ventures in the House of Commons and to the news media.

The department asked companies exploring for oil and gas in the north to release the text of planned announcements to Indian and northern affairs 24 hours before public release.

The letter has raised arguments the government's request potentially violates securities laws by divulging confidential information on the success of explorations before it is available to the public, especially company stockholders.

John Porter, executive manager of the Independent Petroleum Association of Canada, said the request would be discussed with Munro. Officials from the Alberta securities commission are also studying the request.

Another industry official who had no quarrel with giving the government advance notice questioned an apparent provision to circulate the information widely throughout the department, causing a greater risk of leaks.

"The whole thing is a storm in a teacup," said William Richards, president of Dome Petroleum Ltd. of Calgary.

"The government has a right to have someone on the boat," because of its extensive interest in oil and gas rights in the north. He said the northern affairs department generally has access to project material on an on-going basis. All it now wants is the company's summation.

Richards said Dome will try to comply with Ottawa's request "as long as circumstances permit us," but would avoid making information available that could be put to "inappropriate use." He said in some cases a quick-developing situation might not allow Dome to provide advance warning.

Charles Hetherington, PanArctic Oils Ltd. president, said his firm generally provides about 12 hours' notice, teletyping the text of an announcement to Ottawa the afternoon before its release. But he said 24 hours may be difficult to handle.

"That's a little much," said Hetherington.

The problem is complicated by the fact many northern ventures involve more than one company.

"First of all we have to notify our joint-interest owners," he said. "In the Arctic Islands group we have something like 12 participants."

Porter and Ian Smyth, president of the Calgary-based Petroleum Association of Canada, wondered about the legal ramifications of the request.

"I form the distinct impression some securities control agencies would consider that illegal," said Smyth.

"I can understand the desire of federal officials to have foreknowledge of things under their jurisdiction," he added, terming the request an innocent one.

"If I had as much regulation and control as that particular agency (northern affairs), everything that happened would be of great interest to me."

But the rationale of helping ministers avoid embarrassment could be applied to all sectors of industry, said Smyth. For example, the industry, trade and commerce department might request advance notice of moves by Chrysler Corp. so Herb Gray could avoid being caught off balance in the House.

"There are hazards in every business and embarrassment in the House of Commons, I guess, is a hazard of that business," said Porter.

—PAYOFF PUZZLE—

Correct Answers to Last Week's Puzzle

CLUES ACROSS:

4. FUSE not fuss. One's natural anxiety to have the lights OK again is hardly mere "fuss."
6. RENOUNCE not denounce. "Remorse" is apt to lead him to RENOUNCE (his own) sinful ways, rather than to denounce them in a general sense.
7. LOAM not loaf. Complainingly, one says that a loaf is stale, rather than altogether "too dry," as the garden soil (LOAM) may be.
8. STIR not star. Regarding "STIR," paralysis, coma, etc., is "tragic" indeed. Inability to star, specifically, is not of paramount concern.
11. DEAL not meal. People generally go where they can get a better DEAL, whether or not it's a question of a meal. Also, a better meal can well be expensive and not especially popular.
13. DUST not rust. Aptly, certain places are inaccessible to DUST. It's a question of rust being unable to occur (rather than "get") in certain places.
15. FLOW not glow. Electric current is understood to FLOW, of course, but electricity in itself does not have any glow.
16. FEW not new. His having "new things to say" is a positive sort of quality; this tends to clash with the undecided nature of the clue's phrase "give one the impression." Also, since the expression "new things to say" implies approval anyway, there is no reason for the clue to add: "that are really worthwhile."
17. LIMPS not lisps. The clue refers more aptly to a condition that can sometimes be quickly corrected (though in a "bad" case, presumably, not by the very next day); this idea suits LIMPS, since one assumes a lisp to be more or less permanent anyway.
19. ARAB not drab. The clue has a certain air of referring to noticeable clothing, which might draw the comment that it is, in fact, no more than appropriate. This favors ARAB, since many gentlemen are soberly dressed normally. In any case, there is little real association of ideas between a drab personality and clothing to match.
23. INVENTIONS not intentions. Intentions are not always "thought out" at all (much less as well as they might be).
24. TRY not toy. One may indeed have to keep TRYing, whether or not with different toys.

CLUES DOWN:

1. RESTITUTION not destitution. Destitution is a state of financial distress, rather than "has" any effect on one's financial situation (as RESTITUTION has, in the usual sense of recompense or redress).
3. KNOT not knit. On an occasion when your fingers happen to be numb with cold, you "can't very well" KNOT things, while the question of "knitting things" (which takes hours, weeks or more anyway) is simply not applicable to the situation and would not and could not be attempted.
4. FELT not fell. An employee who actually fell ill (i.e., overtly) would hardly be liable to have any pressures placed on him by a considerate boss. The idea of not "knowingly" applying "too much" pressure, links up better with FELT.
10. HAVE not save. "Some" of the things you HAVE to do, yes; but all the things you save to do involve what is, to you, a good deal of money, otherwise you wouldn't need to save up in order to do them.
14. TAP not top. Aptly, a too-tentative striker of the ball might need to be urged not to merely TAP it. There would be no call to "urge" her not to top the ball.

Court martial verdict upheld

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada has upheld by a 5-to-4 margin the court martial conviction of Private Robert Cameron McKay for trafficking in marijuana.

McKay had appealed his 1977 conviction in Esquimalt, saying the court martial violated the Canadian Bill of Rights which guaranteed him an independent and impartial trial.

Mr. Justice Roland Ritchie said that argument "was difficult to sustain" because if McKay thought his rights had been violated, he could have his case reviewed by a panel of federally-appointed judges who are not members of the armed forces.

And Ritchie upheld the validity of courts martial under the National Defence Act.

"In my view . . . a separate code of discipline administered within the services is an essential ingredient of service life," he said.

But Chief Justice Bora Laskin disagreed with the decision of his colleagues.

Laskin said the act subjected members of the armed forces to a different and more onerous liability for breaching ordinary law as applicable to other persons in Canada.

Levesque attacks preamble stance

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Rene Levesque left the provincial capital Friday for about two weeks vacation but not before taking parting shots at Prime Minister Trudeau and Quebec Liberal Leader Claude Ryan.

A letter sent by the prime minister this week to Quebec newspapers was an "aggressive" plea in favor of the preamble Trudeau has proposed for a new Canadian constitution, Levesque tod a news conference.

The premier said the letter clearly illustrated Trudeau's "old war against everyone who doesn't share his centralist views, and particularly his refusal to recognize the reality of the Quebec nation, its aspirations and collective rights."

When Trudeau released the preamble last month, Levesque denounced it for failing to take into account the existence of Quebec as a nation and Ryan said it should be completely rewritten.

The preamble proposed by Trudeau refers to "the Canadian people." This wording touched off a storm of controversy in Quebec, with federalists and Quebec nationalists joining to attack Trudeau.

Trudeau wrote the letter to clarify his position, arguing that while Quebec is the "centre of gravity" for the French-speaking community in Canada, the concept of two nations in Canada does not correspond to the reality of the country.

Levesque also said that Trudeau is trying to "reinterpret" the significance of the May 20 Quebec sovereignty-association referendum and keep for himself leadership of the federalist forces in Quebec.

"This is a direct challenge to the provincial Liberal leader, Claude Ryan, and other no backers," he said.

During the referendum campaign, Trudeau told Quebecers that a no vote would lead to constitutional change, but didn't provide any details.

"Ryan should have asked for something more than Trudeau's blank cheque," Levesque said.

The premier said that in the current constitutional talks, which move to Vancouver next week, the federal government is proposing that federal powers be increased,

Hopes raised for 12-pack

TORONTO (CP) — The second consecutive week of constitutional negotiations ended Friday with federal and provincial governments still far apart on key economic issues but satisfied with progress on less controversial topics.

Spokesmen for both levels of government appeared slightly more optimistic than they have been in recent days that solutions can be found to 12 items being discussed during the travelling, summer-long talks.

Saskatchewan Attorney-General Roy Romanow, chief provincial spokesman, jokingly suggested that he might have been outnegotiated by Jean Chretien, federal justice minister, on the key economic questions.

"I'm just a Prairie boy from Saskatchewan," the self-declared rookie said.

ACTUALLY, BOTH HAVE considerable experience in politics—Romanow entered the Saskatchewan legislature in 1967 and Chretien became an MP in 1963.

Both Romanow and Claude Morin, Quebec intergovernmental affairs minister, said the biggest controversy so far was whether the federal government should be granted control of the interprovincial flow of capital, labor and goods.

This issue has broad implications—ultimately deciding which level of government will control natural resources, labor laws and even aspects of social policy.

At least eight provinces have expressed dissatisfaction with the federal economic proposal but rejected a bid by Romanow on Thursday to remove the topic from their agenda.

CHRETIEN MAINTAINED that there was progress "on the acceptance of the federal view" and that the problem was more one of semantics than of principle. Ministers from Ontario and Manitoba agreed.

Chretien has invited the provinces to redraft the federal proposals and continue the discussion next week when the talks move to Vancouver.

"I think Vancouver needs to be a time of some shifting of positions," Romanow said.

Helen Chesnut's Garden Notes

It appears to be the practice of most home gardeners to wait until autumn to take cuttings from favorite plants for indoor rooting. Actually, in my view, the latter part of July is a better time because if you root cuttings now outdoors they will be less prone to some of the adverse conditions that cause failures indoors.

I suppose geraniums are among the most popular plants for cuttings. Geraniums put on a beautiful display in the garden almost without fail and it is natural to want to repeat that lovely show next season. Making cuttings is a relatively quick and easy method for the home gardener to renew and increase his stock of geranium plants. The results are quick and cuttings always give plants that are true to type.

You can easily pinch a whole load of small shoots from your geranium bed now, without in the least marring its appearance for the rest of the summer season. Simply snap off small shoots from the back or sides of the plants, which will be large and bushy by now, and a small shoot or two stolen from each plant will not even be noticed.

Snap off about six inches (15 cm) of young, green shoots. Be sure it is not a flowering shoot though, for the flowering shoots do not root as well. You'll find that the fresh green shoots break away from the parent plant very easily.

Next, break off the bottom leaves and make a clean cut with a very sharp knife just below a stem joint. Dip the end in a rooting powder and it is then ready to insert in your rooting medium which you should have ready ahead of time.

Here, you have a choice how you will root your prepared cuttings. You can insert them in an open, sunny spot in your garden if you have such a free spot—in our garden, there's a variation of Parkinson's law in which our plantings expand to fill the bare soil that is available.

Or, you may insert the cuttings in five-inch pots containing sterilized potting soil, setting four or five of them around the edge of the pot. Geraniums are relatively easy to root in any warm, light place but care must be taken to keep them a bit on the dry side.

You will not have such good luck if you wait till the weather turns cool and damp to carry out this operation. Geraniums are quite unlike most other types of cuttings which do well with plastic bags or inverted glass jars over them. Geraniums definitely object to a too moist atmosphere and will begin to rot at the soil line, a very common malady when this fact isn't appreciated.

Once the geranium cuttings have rooted, either in pots or in the garden plot, they can be individually potted in three or four-inch pots and set into the garden until fall brings cooler temperatures.

They are then brought indoors and set in a sunny-window. Usually, around February or March they are large enough to take more cuttings from, so that by planting time next spring you will have a good stock of new geranium plants for your flower beds. This can bring immense satisfaction to your gardener's ego and considerable easing on the pocketbook upon those springtime visits to the nurseries and garden centres.

If you feel encouraged and enthusiastic about this quick and easy method of producing new plants, you may wish at the same time to scour the garden for more plants to propagate by cuttings. For example, if you have set your houseplants outdoors for a summer vacation, as I suggested in an earlier column, there will be some to take cuttings from.

I like to start new ivy plants from the old ones set into the garden. The young shoots usually root quite easily and make much fresher, greener and more attractive plants for the house than the old parent plant. The same is true for that old favorite, Wandering Jew.

Too often, I'm afraid, novice gardeners think that such activities as taking cuttings are only for the old hands with more experience. Stuff and nonsense. With a little care, the rankest amateur can succeed.

Leonard Wibberley

The other day I was thinking about newspapermen and wondering whether there is something in their temperament that makes them just a little bit crazier than mankind in general.

Years ago you had to be a little crazy to work on a newspaper because the pay was so poor that one often had to borrow the price of a beer or a taxi fare from some sane, sensible regularly employed person like a janitor.

It was my view then that almost any newspaperman had suffieient intelligence to run any government better than those who were trustingly given the job by the public at large.

This, of course, was in the time before press officers and ministries of information had softened up the reporting business a bit.

Nobody, particularly in an official position, wanted to give a reporter any information.

Considerable intelligence, insight, cunning and imagination had to be used to cover a story adequately. This, however, didn't necessarily give newsmen very much common sense and when I look back on those I knew they were all of them—well, odd.

There was one, de Gruchy (he came from the Channel Islands), who had a dream of England as a garden of flowers. Whenever he had to take a train anywhere, he took along not only his ticket but a suitcase full of flower seeds of all kinds. As the train huffed and puffed through the countryside, he sowed seeds out of the window, ignoring his fellow passengers who became more and more intrigued with him.

When the seeds were all sown, he would shut the window and interview the passengers, often getting good human interest stories. He was fired when it was discovered that some of the seeds he was sowing were what is now known as "grass."

And then there was Pat Murphy, who was more of a feature writer than a hard-core reporter. He was assigned to interview the singer Fyodor Chaliapin who came of humble stock and in his youth in Tsarist Russia had sung in village taverns, being repaid in free glasses of vodka. Returning to his hut once after a night of singing, he decided to sleep in a snow bank and was saved from freezing to death by a chance passerby.

Murphy's job was to get Chaliapin's life story and he was plainly the wrong man to send, for, like the singer, he rarely turned his back on a full glass and was a renowned barroom vocalist.

Chaliapin was living in Switzerland and Murphy went off with plenty of expense money in his wallet.

Not a word was heard from him for five or six weeks when he cabled from Berlin: "Chaliapin delighted with my tenor. Send more money." He was recalled.

There was a photographer I knew on the Los Angeles Times who for many years following the Second World War carried on an earnest correspondence with whatever department of the army is responsible for accounting for lost trucks.

I will not give his name lest the correspondence be revived but when I knew him he was a news photographer and he later went into movie-making and did very well for himself.

According to his story, he was given a truck bulging with food to drive up to the American lines around Cassino. On the way he came on the remnants of a small town which had been subject to very heavy fire. There were several thousand people living in the place but they had no food.

The truck was surrounded and the mayor explained that they were starving. Could a little food be spared to help at least the children?

I think the penalty for giving away essential army supplies in time of war is 20 years in Levenworth or something equally depressing. My friend solved the problem neatly.

"I'm going to take a walk about the town and smoke a couple of cigarettes," he said. "I'll be gone maybe half an hour."

"May God and His Holy Angels walk with you," said the mayor. The citizens then fell on the truck and stripped it of everything it contained. My friend came back, told them to get rid of the truck somehow, walked on to Cassino and reported that a Stuka had divebombed him and the truck was wrecked.

The Stuka was his mistake, for army intelligence got hold of the report and asserted that there had been no German planes in the neighborhood for several weeks.

My friend got a form letter pointing this out and asking for a comment. I think he blamed it on the Italians, the British, the French in successive reports by which time the war was over and he was discharged.

Still the forms kept coming to him for clarification and finally in a moment of inspiration he got rid of the whole thing.

"The truck and all supplies aboard were taken by God and His Holy Angels," he wrote. That report is lying around somewhere in the army archives. And I think, on the strength of it, my friend would have made a good senator or even a good president.

Arthur Hoppe

"Excuse me. You are, I believe, a cow?"

"Yes, that's correct. I am one of Governor Reagan's cows. There are 22 of us living here on his 680-acre Rancho del Cielo in beautiful Santa Barbara county."

"It's lovely. And this is your grazing area here?"

"Yes, each of us cows has 30 acres. Careful, don't step on my buttercups."

"Thirty acres seems like a lot of grazing land for one cow."

"Well you have to realize that this is a working ranch. And I must say it's working very well."

"As a ranch?"

"No, as a tax shelter."

"I thought this was the governor's and Mrs. Reagan's private Shangri-la where they come to get away from it all. What are you 22 cows doing cluttering up the place?"

"Because if we weren't here, the governor would have to grow crops, which is a lot of work, in order to make this a working ranch so that it qualifies as an agricultural preserve."

"An agricultural preserve? That sounds nice?"

"It is. The property's valued at more than $1 million. But by declaring it an agricultural preserve, under state law it's assessed for only $20,423 and the governor pays a mere $900 a year in taxes."

"That's less than a lot of two-bedroom houses pay."

"Yes. The county assessor says that if it weren't a working ranch, the taxes could amount to as much as $42,000 annually."

"But that's silly to call this a working ranch. No rancher could make money on a 680-acre ranch with only 22 cows."

"I don't know. The governor's making $40,100 on us a year."

"Golly, that's almost $2000 a cow! You must be very proud. Not many cows bring in that kind of money."

"Frankly, it's awfully lonely out here. I miss the bright lights of Hollywood. I used to be in pictures, you know. I broke in playing the cow that kicked over Mrs. O'Leary's lantern to start the Great Chicago Fire and I co-starred with the governor, himself, in Cattle Queen of Montana, although I didn't get the title role. And now he's put me out to pasture. I don't think he respects me anymore."

"How can a valuable creature like you think that?"

"Well, when he rides by in his cowboy boots and white cowboy hat, he never looks me in the eye. Oh, if just once he'd put his arms around my neck and sing one of those old cowboy songs like, Home, Home on The Tax Shelter or Git along, little taxdodge, yippee-aye-ay!"

"'No offense, but I don't see how you can defend him on this issue. 'Way back in 1966 when he first ran for governor, he came right out and said flatly that 'taxes should hurt.' "

"I know. But he never said whom."

Mayor rejects planning probe

Victoria Mayor William Tindall says he won't appoint a committee to investigate recent charges that city council's Advisory Planning Commission was being manipulated.

The request for an investigation came from Ald. Ronald McKenzie in response to a casual remark by Ald. Robin Blencoe that the planning commission was subject to manipulation.

But in a memo to the aldermen, the mayor says Blencoe's remarks were intended to convey concerns about the procedures governing commission meetings.

He says he discussed the matter with Blencoe and subsequently received a letter of explanation from the alderman.

"In light of the statement from Ald. Blencoe, I do not propose to strike a committee as requested by Ald. McKenzie," the mayor's memo says.

Ex-chief of RCMP dies here

Rivett-Carnac
. . . 36-year career

A former head of the RCMP died Friday morning in Victoria.

Edward Charles Rivett-Carnac, who was commissioner of the RCMP from April 1, 1959, to April 1, 1960, died at about 4 a.m. at the Royal Jubilee Hospital. The 78-year-old retired officer had been rushed to hospital from his home at 1035 Belmont.

He is survived by his wife, Lee, daughters Beverley Griffin and Frances Beeney, and a granddaughter, Brenda Griffin, all of Victoria, and a sister, Mrs. E.M. Temple, in Eastbourne, England.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday at McCall Bros., 1400 Vancouver. RCMP officers will be pallbearers and cremation will follow. A service will be held later at the RCMP barracks at Regina, where the ashes will be placed in the RCMP cemetery.

Long career capped by wilderness book

Rivett-Carnac's 36-year police career began in July, 1923, and his first posting was a voluntary one to the Arctic the following spring.

He was transferred to Penticton on Aug. 1, 1926, and was promoted to sergeant Feb. 1, 1931, and to the commissioned rank of inspector a month later.

On Sept. 1, 1942, Rivett-Carnac was promoted to superintendent and was in charge of the intelligence section of the Criminal Investigation Branch in Ottawa when the famous Igor Gouzenko espionage case gained world-wide notoriety. The defection of Gouzenko, a cipher clerk at the Soviet embassy in Ottawa, led to the arrest of a Canadian MP and a subsequent royal commission.

He became an assistant commissioner Nov. 16, 1947, and was officially in charge of the RCMP's "E" division in B.C. on April 10, 1951, leaving that post in 1956.

Promoted to deputy commissioner on Sept. 1, 1956, Rivett-Carnac went to headquarters in Ottawa where he became the chief of the force as well as a vice-president of Interpol, the international police organization.

After his retirement, Rivett-Carnac returned to Victoria and published a book, Pursuit in the Wilderness.

Volunteers ask for patrol car

A volunteer patrol association in the Malahat district has written to Highways Minister Alex Fraser asking for a proper patrol vehicle.

The Malahat Safety Patrol Association, a non-profit group which operates between Goldstream and Mill Bay on weekends from 6 p.m. Fridays to 2 a.m. Saturdays and on Sundays from 2 to 10 p.m. in the summer, told Fraser in a letter that the vehicle was needed to properly identify the volunteer patrol service.

James Cooper, who wrote the letter, said that members have been using their own cars at accidents or other mishaps and that a properly identified vehicle would reduce the hazard and confusion.

Port blackmail? 'Dribble'

B.C. Industry Minister Don Phillips said Friday that Senator Ray Perrault's complaint that the B.C. government is using political blackmail on Ottawa by delaying the Roberts Bank coal project is "claptrap and dribble."

Perrault was quoted as saying the provincial government was demanding a $20-million land payment for Roberts Bank, even though the courts had not decided who owned the property south of Vancouver.

Phillips would not comment on the negotiations.

"I would suggest that Senator Perrault shouldn't comment on them either because he doesn't know what he's talking about," Phillips said.

Perrault had suggested that B.C. tried to hinge the proposed northeastern coal deal on the federal government recognizing the province's claim to $20 million.

But Phillips said the $20 million had nothing to do with northeastern coal.

Legal bill probe urged

B.C. Attorney-General Allan Williams has asked the federal ministry of Indian affairs to examine a Fort Nelson lawyer's reported $5-million legal bill.

The bill is for negotiating a natural gas revenue-sharing agreement between the provincial government and the Fort Nelson Indian band.

Williams told the Legislature that he didn't know how much money Andrew Schuck was to be paid until he read newspaper reports earlier this week in which Band Chief George Dehn complained about the size of the bill.

The government and the band signed an agreement in January to share equally revenue from natural gas fields beneath band land in northeastern B.C. The band expects a windfall of about $100 million.

Red Cross in blood surplus

The Red Cross wound up this week's blood donor clinics in Greater Victoria with a total of 997 donors, 172 over its original goal.

A short clinic was held Friday at Albert Head naval reserve and training centre with 79 donors attending.

A spokesman for the Red Cross expressed gratitude for the unexpected surplus, saying "it couldn't have come at better time."

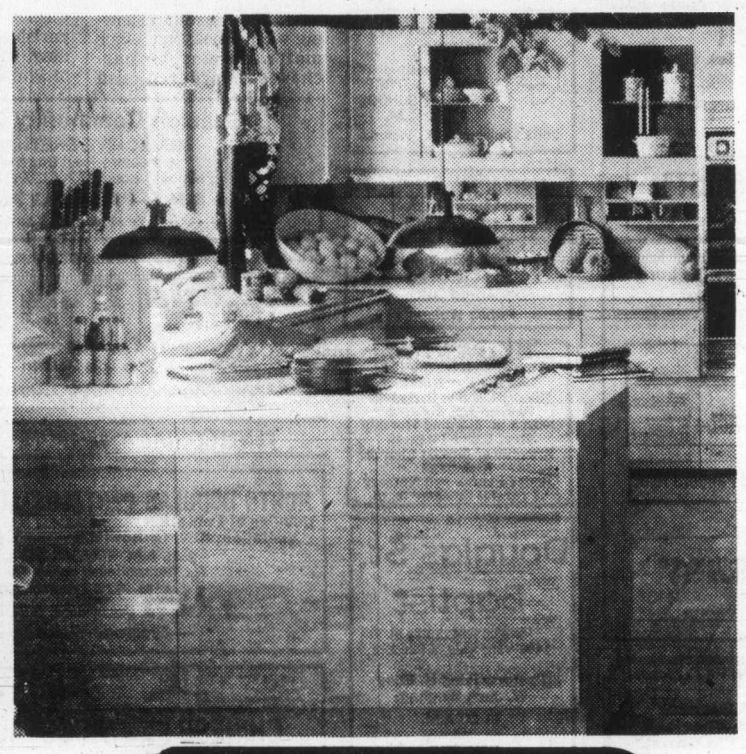

Normally July and August are difficult months for obtaining donors, with many people being out of town.

This week's clinics have helped compensate for a shortage in the previous two months.

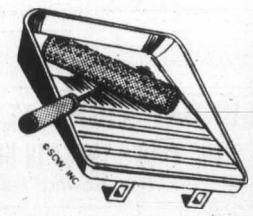

The next clinics start Aug. 11

Sorrento Centre opens appeal

The Anglican Church's Sorrento Centre, which for years was a marginal economic proposition, has been running in the black financially for two years and this summer promises to be among the best yet.

The centre, on Shuswap Lake, midway between Vancouver and Calgary on the Trans-Canada Highway, is owned by the church's ecclesiastical province of B.C., in co-operation with the dioceses of Calgary and Edmonton.

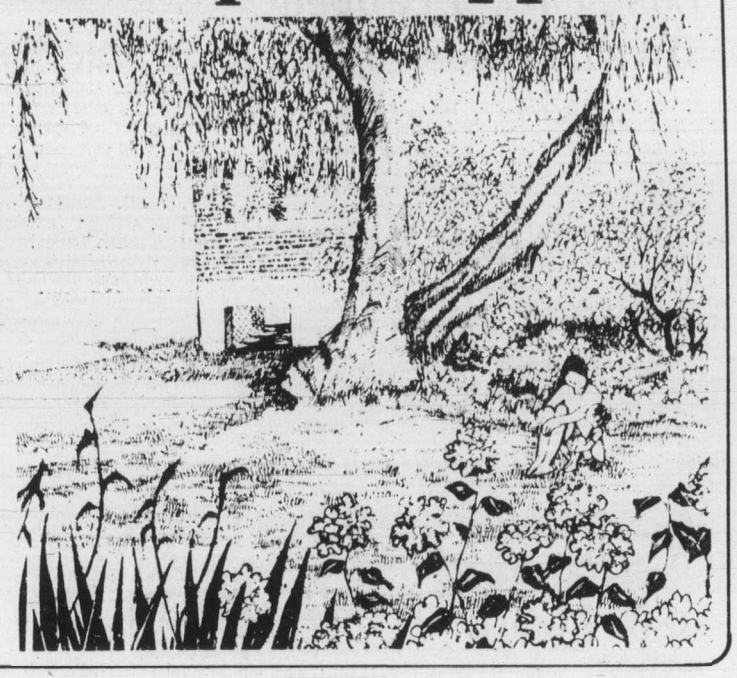

Courses are offered year-round to people of all faiths, but July and August are special family months. Brochures with detailed information are available by writing to Sorrento Centre, Box 89, Sorrento, B.C., V0E 2W0.

Although the past two years have been a financial success, a special appeal is under way to raise $50,000 to erase the past operating debts, a church spokesman said. The money would also help start a small development fund.

"We want to put the past behind us and begin a new decade with strength and confidence," the spokesman said.

Throughout the year, the centre offers a variety of programs and workshops in which people may discover, enrich and fulfil their vocations as Christians in the world.

"Our standard is that there be a loving, caring community providing an atmosphere in which people may experience joy, support, affirmation and challenge without being pressured or manipulated to conform to a particular belief or lifestyle," the Sorrento spokesman said.

Perspectives

By Rev. John A. Davidson

Faith, as it is understood in the New Testament, cannot be defined with exactness, with no loose ends. But it can be described, although any description may raise as many questions as it answers. Here I wish merely to discuss three main dimensions of faith which my study of the New Testament suggests to me are essential but which do not completely describe the nature of faith.

The first dimension is belief as a matter of assent my the mind. Here I treat belief rather narrowly as the intellectual acceptance of the central Christian declaration that in Jesus Christ God came in a unique and decisive way into our history for our redemption, and that he has reality in the experience of those who choose to follow him and in their community of faith. This implies acceptance of his teaching and his way in life as final wisdom for our lives.

But this is not simply an intellectual matter, something you can sort out in your mind while you sit in an easy chair. We sometimes fool ourselves about what we think we believe. Believing, any kind of believing, is easy enough if it doesn't make any real difference to the ordinary course of your life. As Bernard Shaw said, "What a man believes may be ascertained, not from his creed, but from the assumptions on which he habitually acts."

This leads to the second dimension of faith, commitment. This is a matter of living by what you accept with your mind. But Christian commitment is not commitment to an idea or a system; it is commitment to a person, commitment to Jesus Christ.

Commitment is not merely a decision to do something about what you believe; it is also a means of clarifying and deepening belief. Commitment is in itself a way of knowing. No one can adequately understand Jesus' teaching and way in life without the commitment of himself or herself to Jesus' purposes.

H.G. Wells, in quite another context, explicated something of the nature of Christian commitment when he wrote this: "The first sentence in the modern creed must not be 'I believe', but 'I give myself'." Christian commitment is in the trustful giving of oneself to Jesus Christ.

Inevitably we come now to the third dimension of faith, obedience. This is a word I hesitate to use. I once heard an advanced thinker say that anyone who uses the word "obedience" except with respect to the training of dogs probably has fascist tendencies. Unfortunately I cannot find a nicer-sounding word to take its place. It is a word that points to a necessary quality of the life of faith.

Christian obedience carries commitment one step further, adding act to decision, adding practice to profession, adding performance to will. It is in the putting of one's belief and one's commitment to work, in striving to serve the will and purposes of God as they are made plain to us in a special way in Jesus Christ. Obedience is the validation of belief and commitment.

These three dimensions of faith overlap one another. As it was put by Dietrich Bonhoeffer, "Only he who believes is obedient, and only he who is obedient believes."

(Dr. Davidson is minister of Dominion-Chalmers United Church, Ottawa.)

Three to honor key composer

Three performers will be presented as part of the Healey Willan Centennial recitals at Christ Church Cathedral's summer recital series at 4 p.m. today.

Featured will be Norma Selwood, soprano, and Norman Hurrle, piano, in secular songs for high voice and piano, and David Hamilton with a miniature suite for organ.

The five-week series commemorates the centennial of the birth of Canada's most famous composer, Healey Willan, and has been organized by Norman Hurrle, a former pupil of Dr. Willan's.

The seventh in the series of 13 Christian gospel services this summer will be held at the Cameron Bandshell, Beacon Hill Park, on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. The Victoria Citadel Corps of the Salvation Army will be in charge.

Colonel John Nelson will conduct the service and deliver the gospel message. He will be supported by the Citadel Band under bandmaster Larry Corbett, and the Citadel Songsters with Joy Zwicker as leader and vocal soloist.

There will be a scripture reading by C.S.M. (Retd.) Max Chalk, prayer by Capt. Ray Moulton, and testimonies by youth director Larry Corbett and Evelyn Bent, Pianist will be Mrs. Art Leech. A band prelude will start at 6:45 p.m.

Librarians to explore ways of passing Word

Bruce Larson, author of several popular books on Christian living, will be speaking at a conference and workshop for church and synagogue librarians.

Lutheran Bible Institute in Issaquah, Washington, is the setting for the conference Aug. 15-17.

It is being jointly sponsored by two interdenominational volunteer organizations—the Congregational Libraries Association of B.C. and the Pacific Northwest Association of Church Libraries.

Another featured speaker will be Prof. Spencer Shaw of the School of Librarianship, University of Washington. Shaw is an authority on library services to children.

Mrs. Evelyn Kingston, an enthusiastic and talented church librarian from Fort Langley, will deliver the opening speech on the conference theme Climb the Heights.

Workshops on a wide variety of topics will range from the basics such as beginning a congregational library, cataloguing of all types of material and publicity through to sessions for more experienced people including copyright, care and feeding of volunteers and music resources.

Many of the speeches and workshops should be of interest to committee members, religious education workers, clergy, group leaders and other library and resource centre users as well as to library workers.

Bookstores and publishers will have exhibits showing where books and other materials may be purchased or ordered, and there will be display and promotional ideas on view.

Advance registration is necessary. Registration brochures and further information may be obtained from Mrs. Olive Pennock, 3902 St. Georges Ave., North Vancouver, V7N 1C7 (985-4814) or Mrs. Jennifer Hanna, 3008 Cadboro Bay Road, Victoria, V8R 5J9 (595-7501).

Target set

A Roman Catholic population that has doubled in less than 15 years and urbanization of the Fraser Valley has led to a five-year, $7.5 million fund-raising drive by the Vancouver archdiocese.

Archbishop James F. Carney said members of 73 parishes will be asked to meet a first-year goal of $1.5 million for 11 projects.

St. Luke's church nearing centenary

Picturesque St. Luke's Anglican Church at Cedar Hill and Cedar Hill Cross Roads bears unmistakable mark of English heritage, brought by early settlers from Britain a century ago. Recently declared a heritage building by Saanich municipality, the church was designed by Edward Mallandaine. Its foundation stone was laid in October, 1887, although parish was actually founded in 1860. When built, it was a simple cross-plan church with a steeple at the side of the east end. North aisle was added in 1942 and nave was extended to present length in 1951. Extensions were carried out in sympathy with original scheme and materials. Also designated a heritage site was the adjoining graveyard.

Theologians 'scapegoat' of Vatican

One of Roman Catholicism's most prominent theologians, Rev. Edward Schillebeeckx of the Netherlands, says Vatican condemnations of innovative church thinkers "make no sense in modern times."

Schillebeeckx is quoted by the Associated Press following a New York news conference during his first visit to the United States since being subjected to Vatican interrogation last December about his writings. He says theologians are "being made a scapegoat" for restiveness in the church.

"THERE IS unrest among the faithful but it's not because of what the theologians are saying but because of cultural change," he says. "Without the theologians, it would be the same. But some people need a kind of scapegoat for the unrest."

Theologians are being singled out for that "scapegoat" role, he adds, citing condemnations of Rev. Jacques Pohier of France and Rev. Hans Kung of West Germany and current investigations of others.

He says freely pursued theology must "accept supervision of the magisterium," the bishops, but better means must be found for it.

"SOME admonitions, yes, but no condemnation" he told the news conference sponsored by Seabury Press, publishers of his new 1,000-page book, Christ: An Experiment of Jesus as Lord.

He suggested that theological exploration should be treated like literature. "The bad fades away. The best comes above, rises to the top."

Schillebeeckx, 66, a Dominican priest in gray suit, was asked if any of his or Kung's writings diminished the concept of Christ's divinity.

"NOT AT all!" he emphasized. "But we've also stressed his humanity to bring him nearer to people."

He said most of the Vatican's doctrinal officers who questioned him "are amateurs" in biblical scholarship and repeatedly misconstrued his writings "because of their scholastic thinking."

"They are unable to understand phenomenological thought," he said. "To them past statements of concepts are immutable and must be repeated the same way."

HE SAID "they're now in trouble," with the outcry against the condemnation of Kung as not teaching Catholic faith for advocating reinterpretation of the dogma of papal infallibility on faith and morals.

That was the reason for the action against him, not his interpretation of Christ, Schillebeeckx said.

"Kung is teaching Catholic faith. There's not much difference in Kung and me in our Christology. But there is a personal difference—he's more aggressive, 'l'enfant terrible'."

Schillebeeckx said his impression is that Pope John Paul, who came from Poland, is trying to apply worldwide the "Polish model" of a monolithic-type church.

"IT WAS the right thing for Poland in a special situation, with a monolithic-bloc church up against a monolithic communist state, but as a model for the Western pluralized world, it doesn't work," he said.

Asked if the pope's efforts tended to reverse reforms of the Second Vatican Council of 1962-65, Schillebeeckx said, "In his opinion, it is not a reversal. But in my opinion, it is."

Salvation Army and friends aiding refugees

Canadian Salvationists and friends of the Salvation Army have provided much needed funds for the support of special services to Indo-Chinese Refugees in Hong Kong.

More than $70,000 has been sent to support the salvation Army Daily Assistance Program at the Argyle Street Departure Camp, Kowloon, and the Classification Centre, Chimawan, Lantau Island.

A recent commendation by the security division of Hong Kong's Government Secretariat named the Salvation Army Education Centre the best equipped and operated among the seven refugee camps in Hong Kong. Added to the English and Western orientation classes are similar classes in German for those refugees bound for West Germany.

Salvation Army staff members spend two hours a day doing a bunk-by-bunk visitation of the refugees. This helps build a relationship which reduces fears and identifies specific needs sometimes purposely hidden.

For example, a family in a Hong Kong transit camp for 17 months had successfully hidden a five year old boy whose legs had been blasted away at the hips by a landmine in Vietnam.

Because they were too frightened to request help for the boy, he spent the whole time sitting on a bunk through 90 degree heat, high humidity and the cold of winter.

Having detected the problem, the Salvation Army staff were able to arrange for him to attend school until he left with his family for Canada where he will be fitted with artificial legs and taught to walk again.

Each day during the mid-morning break at school each child is given a drink of vitasoy (soya-bean milk) and a piece of fruit.

One hundred and fifty women meet weekly with volunteers in knitting and conversation classes while another 60 work on dressmaking using six new electric sewing machines recently purchased.

Since Hong Kong's humane acceptance of refugees seems an opportunity to fulfil their dream, the flow of refugees from Vietnam has again increased.

TV actors may strike

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — California members of the American Federation of Television and Radio Actors have authorized union leaders to call a country-wide strike next week, a union official said Friday.

Union locals in San Francisco and Los Angeles unanimously adopted resolutions recommending a strike Monday if a contract settlement is not reached by midnight Sunday, said Mark Farber, union assistant executive secretary.

Union officials in New York could not be reached for comment. Management representatives also were not available.

A strike by the 90,000 actors could paralyse the U.S. television industry as it prepares its fall programming.

Despite the local resolutions, the national board will still have to vote before calling a strike, Farber said in Los Angeles.

Members of the Screen Actors Guild authorized a strike in voting earlier this week. AFTRA voting began Thursday night.

The two unions are involved in joint negotiations with management that includes the three major networks, independent productions and studio productions.

The actors are seeking a 40-per-cent pay increase plus a percentage of the producers' gross in the fledgling pay-TV market in a three-year agreement.

The strike would affect only the prime-time dramatic programming field, Farber said. Game shows, soap operas and other daytime programming would not be affected, he said.

Current scale provides $225 U.S. for a one-day player and $785 for a one-week player, Farber said.

Got nine months? Come and get born.

You've lived for 17 to 21 years and you're wondering when life's really going to begin? Katimavik may be for you. Katimavik is an action-learning challenge for young Canadians, funded by the Federal Government. Being a Katimavik volunteer is a grow-up-fast deal. You travel and live in three different parts of Canada (one of them French-speaking) over a 9-month period. You discover your country.

You serve on community projects, doing hard physical work aimed at protecting the environment. You do social work with people. You live with a group of young Canadians from all parts of the country and learn friendship and French. You may choose to spend 3 of your 9 months learning military skills. You're responsible to your group for a fair share of the cooking and the cleaning.

You grow like crazy. And you love every minute of it. No pay. Just $1 a day plus living and travel. And $1,000 on completion of the program. If you're aged 17 to 21, single, and if you're looking for more meaning in your life, come live. With us. Coupon us immediately for full details and an application form for this year's program.

ENTERTAINMENT

They filled in for Scarlett

COVENTRY, England (CP) — It's a classic situation. The small audience trickles into the Coventry Town Cinema, munching hot buttered popcorn and sipping cold drinks through tall straws.

The patrons settle in and chat amiably until the lights dim for the umpteenth screening of the 41-year-old film Gone With the Wind.

Then, 227 heart-wrenching minutes later, hankies are poised in mid-air, eyes are on the screen.

Suddenly the screen turns white and the lights go up. Horror.

Scarlett is just about to ask Rhett how she would ever survive without him when the old film gives out.

The movie buffs are not amused.

Assistant manager Alan Taylor decides to pacify them. Grabbing Linda Burke, the ice cream salesgirl, he takes to the stage and the two begin acting out that final scene.

The dialogue was a little rough around the edges, said 24-year-old Alan, "but at least the customers went home happy knowing how it all ended."

WIN A summerfunthing

Play it daily and be eligible to win weekly prizes. It's easy and it's fun — just follow the instructions below . . .

THIS WEEK'S PRIZES

1st

8-PIECE FILIGREE PATIO SET

2nd

SONY PORTABLE AM/FM RADIO

OUTBOUND BACK PACK
(4 to be won)

HOW TO PLAY
Locked inside the "SUMMERFUNTHING" safe are many valuable prizes. Some of those prizes could be yours if you find the correct PASSWORD that opens the combination lock. It's an exciting game that's fun and easy to enter. The instructions on the dial give you the position of the letters in the "SUMMERFUNTHING" PASSWORD. All you have to do is find the first letter to start. For instance, suppose you started at the letter E and the instructions read 2nd LETTER-FOUR COUNTER CLOCKWISE. Count four spaces in a counter-clockwise direction from the letter E and you arrive at the letter A. The next instruction reads 3rd LETTER-EIGHT COUNTER CLOCKWISE, so count off eight spaces in a counter-clockwise direction from the letter A and you arrive at the letter S. Finally the 4th letter. SIX CLOCKWISE means you count in a clockwise direction from the letter S and you arrive at the letter Y. In this example the PASSWORD is the word E-A-S-Y. To give you another clue and to add to the interest, each day's password is scrambled and you will find it at the bottom of the illustration.

GAME RULES
1. Winners will be chosen by random drawing from all valid entries. All winners must answer a skill testing question.
2. Winners from the previous week will be published in the Saturday Times and Sunday Colonist.
3. It is not necessary for contestants to buy the Colonist or Times to enter the SUMMERFUNTHING contest. An exact drawing of the entry form printed in the Colonist or Times may be made on a plain piece of paper. Note: copies produced by any other process will not be accepted.
4. The SUMMERFUNTHING judges will have the final decision on any interpretation of Game rules.
5. As a condition of receiving prizes, recipients agree to allow publication of their names and pictures in the Colonist or Times for no additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all rules. No prize substitutions.
6. The contest is open to all readers of the Daily Colonist and Victoria Times on Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands. Employees of Victoria Press and their immediate families are not eligible to enter.
7. In fairness to all, the Colonist or Times cannot answer questions or respond to phone calls or letters regarding THE SUMMERFUNTHING CONTEST.
8. All winners will be determined by a random draw from all valid entries.

HOW TO ENTER
Complete the puzzle and fill in the "PASSWORD" on the entry form. Clip out the entry form and send it to us in an envelope with the puzzle number printed in the top left hand corner of the envelope. (As illustrated.)

Be sure to include your name, address and phone number on the entry form.

Enter as many times as you wish but make sure each entry is in a separate envelope.

Mail your entries to:
"Summerfunthing"
Post Office Box 1390
Victoria, B.C.

or drop your entries off at Victoria Press
2621 Douglas St.
Monday through Friday
8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

A new puzzle will appear each day, but the weekly winners will be selected from all entries submitted for the previous week's puzzles.

To be eligible, your entry must be received by 5:30 p.m. on the Thursday following the week the puzzle was published.
Enter daily, or as often as you wish, but be sure each entry is submitted in a separate envelope.

BBC Shakespeare's ups and downs

By BARBARA ISENBERG
Colonist—Los Angeles Times Service

LONDON — Jonathan Miller, current producer of the British Broadcasting Corp.'s ambitious, six-year Shakespeare series, doesn't seem particularly happy with his assignment.

Never mind that it's a television landmark, a multi-million-dollar dramatic package already purchased by 22 countries. Never mind that the BBC calls the taping of William Shakespeare's 37 plays the largest project it has ever undertaken and the first time that shakespeare's complete works have ever been produced on television. Jonathan Miller finds it all rather dispirit.

Too little time, too many rules

Sitting in the tiny producer's box overlooking a BBC control booth, his head in his hands and his face sad, Miller considers it difficult enough moving Shakespeare from the stage to the television screen. Worse, he says, is being asked to do so with too little time and too many restrictions. "It is," laments Miller, "like being in a nutcracker."

Lined up on either side of Miller's nutcracker are several institutional heavies. The series is a co-production of BBC-TV and Time-Life Television and is being underwritten on PBS with grants from Exxon Corp., Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York. Not only have its underwriters (with the Corporation for Public Broadcasng) been distributing free teacher kits, records and such to every junior high and high school in the United States, but Time-Life is also already selling and renting films and video cassettes to schools, libraries and other educational institutions.

At first mixed press reviews

Pleasing, much less satisfying all those people has been no easy task, and the first two seasons of plays have received mixed press reviews both in England and the United States. A production of Much Ado About Nothing was never even aired because, says a BBC spokesman, "it didn't work.

Enter Jonathan Miller, former member of "Beyond the Fringe," highly regarded director and producer of stage, television and opera productions, the physician who authored The Body in Question and hosts the television series of the same name due on PBS this fall. About a year ago, Miller was asked to take over the project's third and fourth seasons and give it what he calls "a new approach."

The project was largely set

By the time Miller came in, of course, the project was largely set. Cedric Messina, its first producer and the man credited with the notion of doing the complete Shakespeare folio, said early on that there would be "no modern dress versions or eccentric interpretations." And Miller himself concedes that despite the "limitations of a so-called traditional presentation...I felt there was enough room to maneuver to do something quite interesting."

Lack of time the real problem

Miller is no longer so sure that's true. Part of the problem, he says, is simply time. Miller, who is directing some of the plays himself, feels he should have had seven or eight weeks of rehearsal time instead of five or six, and 12 days in the studio instead of seven. "But television is a car factory," laments Miller. "It just turns things out in order to meet production deadlines."

Jonathan Miller, however, doesn't like such pressures and indicates that given the chance again, he wouldn't take on the task. "You only discover these things once you get into the machine," he said.

Miller's past full of success

Yet Miller knew his machine. Not only have his Shakespeare productions played on countless stages, but he produced "King Lear" for BBC in 1975; according to his BBC biography, he's also been doing projects with BBC on and off since 1965.

Rather, it seems more likely that Jonathan Miller, the man who can do just about everything, simply yearns after whatever it is he isn't doing at any given time.

Slurred Burton leaves stage

Names in the News

Exhaustion and painkillers may have caused actor Richard Burton's slurred speech and unsteady movements and forced him to leave the stage during a performance of Camelot, five minutes after the curtain went up, a spokesman for the musical said in New York on Friday. Burton plays King Arthur in the revival of the 1960 musical.

Disco diva Donna Summer married Bruce Sudano, who co-wrote Summer's hit song Bad Girls, in Los Angeles this week.

The Supreme Court of Canada, in a 4-to-3 judgment, ruled in Ottawa that the 12 grandchildren of Nova Scotia industrialist Roy A. Jodrey must pay succession taxes on his estate of $3,784,273.

Cuba's Fidel Castro, sweating under a bullet-proof vest, arrived in Managua Friday to join PLO chief Yasser Arafat and Iran's foreign minister in marking the first anniversary of Nicaragua's leftist revolution. U.S. Ambassador Lawrence Pezzullo said the U.S. delegation, headed by UN Ambassador Donald McHenry, would walk out of the celebrations today as soon as the crowd begins to sing the ruling Sandinista party anthem that calls Americans "enemies of humanity."

The Botswana Parliament elected Vice-President Quett Masire as the new leader of the country to succeed Sir Seretse Khama who had governed since independence from Britain until his death. Masire, 54, a former journalist, was acting president since Khama died last weekend.

Swiss ecologist Franz Weber, in his most recent move to stop the Canadian seal hunt, said in Montreux, Switzerland, he was planning an "international demonstration" on Parliament Hill in Ottawa next March. The plan calls for 1,500 persons to fly to Canada from five major European cities.

In Paris, Quebec historian Francois Gendron was awarded the Biguet prize by the Academie Francaise this week for his recent book on the French revolution. Entitled The Gilded Youth, Episodes of the French Revolution, the book traces the history of young Parisians known for their extravagant dress and snobbish manners.

Opposition Leader Joe Clark and wife Maureen McTeer will make a three-day visit to interior British Columbia next week including a stop at the Kelowna Regatta. Clark will be honorary marshal of the Kelowna Regatta parade July 25. They will visit Vernon and Penticton.

Donald (Red) Barry, a Western character actor best known for his film portrayal of Red Ryder, shot and killed himself after a quarrel in North Hollywood, Calif., police said. He was 69. Officer Ronald Stringer said police settled a dispute Thursday night at the home of Barry's estranged wife. As officers were getting into their patrol car, Barry came out of the house with a .38-calibre revolver and shot himself.

Muskie flanks Queen, holding bouquet

Queen back, unsteady but smiling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Queen, the ailing American hostage recently freed from captivity in Iran, returned to the United States on Friday, walking unsteadily off a U.S. Air Force medical plane with a smile on his face.

"I really can't express with words what it's like to be back to America again," Queen told well-wishers at Andrews Air Force Base outside the U.S. capital. "I really can't say much more. I just wish there were 52 more with me."

Fifty-two Americans remain hostage in Iran.

An ambulance took him from air base to Georgetown University Hospital here for further treatment of a neurological disease diagnoised as multiple sclerosis.

The bearded 28-year-old Queen, held captive with the other Americans since Nov. 4, had trouble negotiating the ramp leading from the Starlifter plane that twice weekly makes a flight to West Germany for injured and sick American military men and their families.

He held onto the railing with his right hand, but made it on his own to the tarmac where State Secretary Edmund Muskie waited to guide him to a microphone.

A nurse helped Queen into a wheelchair. There he sat as Muskie voiced a personal appeal to Iranian authorities to let the other Americans go.

Queen's release is "the first indication we have had that his captors understand that the hostages are human beings, that they are people with families back home," Muskie said.

New hospital a bargain for region wallet

The new Victoria General Hospital will be a relative bargain for taxpayers in the Capital Region.

Estimated to cost $46 million, the new hospital will actually be built and equipped for a shade over $40 million.

Construction costs will be shared on a 60-40 basis by the provincial government and the region.

Bids by three companies for the third and final contract for construction of the hospital on Helmcken Road—two six-storey nursing towers—were all below the $21-million estimate when opened Friday at the Capital Region District boardroom.

The new hospital, scheduled for completion in 1982, will have cost about $40.1 million if the low bid is approved by the region's hospital and health planning commission.

The low bidder was Northern Construction Ltd. of Vancouver, at $17,812,000. Farmer Construction Ltd. of Victoria bid $18,384,293 and PCL Construction Ltd. of Vancouver bid $19,073,449.

Charles Perkins, chairman of the hospital and health planning commission, was present at the opening and described the tender opening as most satisfactory.

The two towers will each have five nursing levels providing a total of 450 beds, with the ground floors containing administrative and staff facilities.

A shell on one top level will be built to provide for an additional 54 beds to be added later as needed.

Regional staff will check the bids to ensure they meet contract speeifications before they go to the hospital and health planning commission and then to the ministry of health for approval.

Construction could start late this summer, a regional official said.

The second stage, the diagnostic and treatment centre, is already under construction.

That job went to a Vancouver firm, Dawson and Hall, in January, for $20.9 million. The diagnostic wing will contain the central plant and hospital services on the ground floor; emergency, daycare surgery, medical imaging, education, and physical medicine on the second floor, and the third floor will house obstetrics, surgery and the laboratory.

The first stage, site preparation, was won by Dura Construction of Victoria, for a bid of $408,760, but it actually cost slightly more because there was more rock excavation than estimated by regional engineers.

The other contract, for food service equipment, cost slightly more than $900,000.

Sally Ann captain and head nurse disagree on firing

A Salvation Army captain who said he was guided by God in decisions he made concerning the firing of a Sunset Lodge employee, found himself contradicted by his former head nurse on a pertinent point at a Labor Relations Board hearing Friday.

Capt. Alex Swan, administrator of the long-term care home, denied under cross examination that he smiled on discovering that the nursing director hadn't given permission for long distance calls made by maintenance man Larry Ward.

"Before God I deny that," said Swan, adding after a moment's pause that "throughout the years I've had the reputation of being called Smiley, even as a child."

But when confronted later with the same question about his reaction, Mary Patricia McKinnon, who resigned as nursing director last month, said: "He jumped to his feet and said 'Hallelujah—I've got him at last.'"

Ward was fired April 13, the same day Swan checked on three calls he had made from the home to Nova Scotia. But Swan indicated that the firing came for a number of reasons, including arrogance, endangering elderly residents by not taking proper security measures and for falling behind in his work.

He denied the firing had anything to do with the Hospital Employees' Union organizing drive that was underway. Both HEU and the Registered Nurses' Association of B.C. won certification at Sunset. Ward was a key figure in the HEU campaign.

The hearing, which began in Victoria Friday, involves an unfair labor practice charge HEU brought against Sunset in connection with Ward's dismissal. The charge includes union claims of intimidation and coercion.

Ward made no attempt to dodge responsibility for the phone calls. He signed for them, but didn't pay until the day he was fired.

McKinnon said she recalled Swan being "extremely concerned" about the two unions entering the picture at Sunset, which is located at 952 Arm near the Gorge.

"I had the impression he thought I should have stopped the organizing of the nurses," she told LRB panel chairman Jack Moore and panelists Arnold Smith and C.J. Alcott.

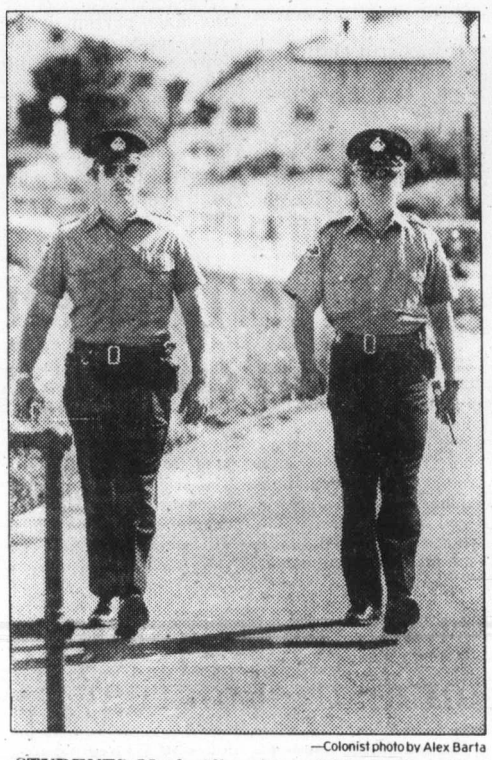

Sunset accountant Barbara Bradford, who admitted she wasn't fond of unions, said under sustained questioning by HEU counsel Rory McDonald that she believed Swan once told her he would have to close the home if the unions became certified.

In detailing how he discovered the calls made by Ward, Swan said: "Because of the cloth I wear the spirit of God led me to check on it."

Later, as he sought the exact motivation for the firing, Swan told him: "We (Salvation Army) are people of the spirit of God and we are thus moved."

"I'm sorry, I can't accept that as an answer to my question," said McDonald.

"It's the only answer I can give," replied Swan.

Police talks next week?

There were no moves Friday in the police dispute, although there was a belief in some quarters that new talks might be initiated next week.

The way could be cleared by the removal Thursday of an Esquimalt issue that prevented talks with mediator Bob Almgren from getting off the ground Wednesday. Police have received assurance that the police and fire departments there will continue as a combined operation, but on an expanded basis with room for 12 additional employees. The police union will retain jurisdiction.

Police in Victoria, Esquimalt and Oak Bay began limited strike action 10 days ago by wearing civilian clothes, refusing to shave (in many instances) and adopting a strategy that is going to force considerable overtime payment.

The main issue is standardization of area contracts.

Meanwhile, the only policemen who could be found in uniform Friday were students hired as special constables for the summer in Oak Bay. Student policemen in Victoria are also outside the union, but are staying out of uniform.

Donna Moroz: 'I've a good product'

By HUBERT BEYER

Scene One. Fan Tan Alley.

The sound of Chinese music drifts into your ear from somewhere. Opium dens invite you, offering their dubious delights.

Just across from where you stand, the Place of Ten Thousand Occasions sets your imagination soaring.

Scene Two: Fort Victoria.

A young farmer explains that the residents of this westernmost Hudson's Bay trading post are afraid of "the strange, dark canoe people" and fire a cannon every night to impress them.

Scene Three: Sir James Douglas speaks to you about Victoria and its importance as a West Coast outpost of civilization.

You'll meet them and many others who had a hand in founding and building Victoria on a new kind of walking tour of Old Town and the Legislative Precinct.

And your only companion need be a recorded tour guide.

The concept for VicStoria was developed by Donna Moroz. She has a little booth at the Victoria Visitors Information Centre where she rents out the machines and tapes.

Two tours are available. The Old Town Tour takes you through Old Town's hotel and business section and Chinatown.

The second tour is called Historical Splendor. It introduces you to the famous old buildings, personalities and native art.

Although recorded tour guides are nothing new—they were available at Expo in Montreal—a new twist makes Victoria unique.

The tapes aren't just informative. They contain more than directions and narrative explanations.

Moroz used two narrators and a dozen actors in the production of the recorded tours.

They act out legends and anecdotes, impersonate famous figures, and literally bring the past to life.

As you walk along the Inner Harbor, you'll hear the voice of Sir James Douglas booming at you. Francis Rattenbury talks of his famous architectural achievement, the Legislative Buildings.

Moroz says she spent more than four months on the production of the recorded tours.

"I practically lived at the Archives, researching the material," she says.

She wrote all the scripts, edited and re-edited them until they were ready for production.

She has 55 tape machines and each one has two earphone outlets, enabling two persons to take the tour together. The machines only play back; they don't record.

No, she isn't making a pile of money, not yet anyway. But she hopes that business will pick up.

"I know I've got a good product and the people who have taken the tours are raving about them. They tell me this is the greatest way to see Victoria," she says.

Mayor wants park-ride site meeting

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier wants the Capital Region's transit planning staff to meet with municipal employees to decide on a site for a park-and-ride bus terminal at Royal Oak.

The point arose during discussion of proposed routes for the Saanich Peninsula bus service due to come into service Jan. 1, 1981.

Couvelier objected to a recommendation by chief transit planner William O'Brien that the B.C. Hydro parking lot just south of Royal Oak shopping centre be used for the southern terminus of the proposed 74 West Saanich bus route from Saanichton and Brentwood on weekends.

The Route 74 bus will also serve as a collector for a proposed North Saanich service and was planned to run into Victoria during weekdays.

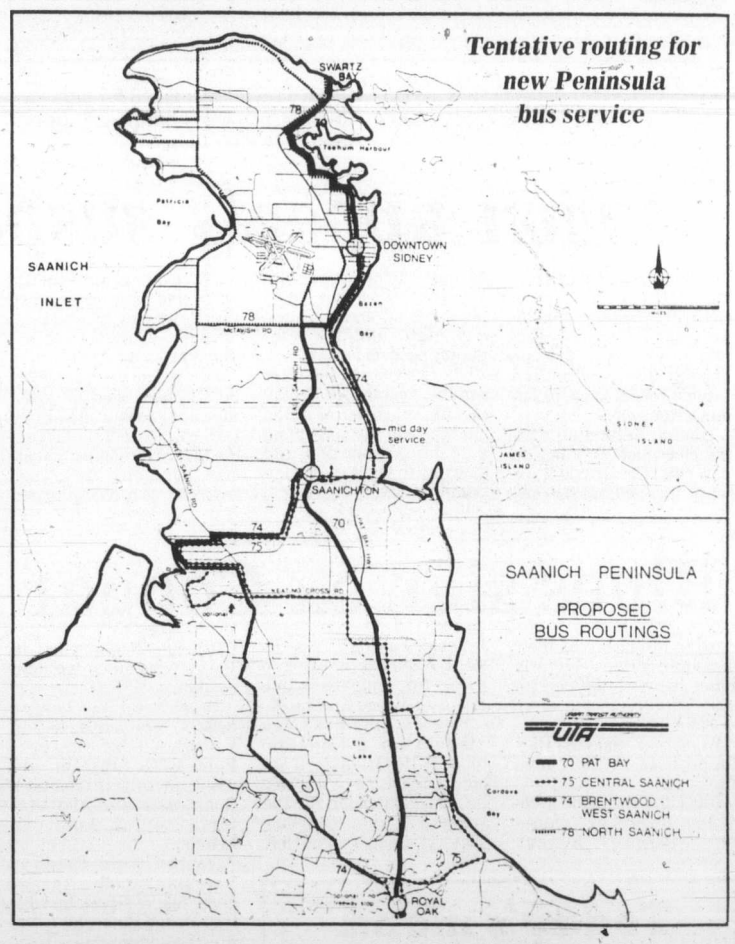

Victoria Mayor William Tindall told Thursday's meeting of the transit planning committee he wanted city staff in on any meetings to choose a park-and-ride site.

A downtown route for the 74 West Saanich service—if it is still to go into the city—has yet to be determined.

Directors threw out a proposal for a circuit of the Douglas-Humboldt-Blanshard-Belleville block with a layover point on Humboldt near Blanshard.

Directors also asked O'Brien to ensure that any bus depot at the Swartz Bay ferry terminal be within the ferry compound adjacent to the ferry dropoff point.

This move followed arguments Wednesday by Capital Region Board chairman James Campbell that putting the terminal 450 yards away from the ferry compound would destroy the effectiveness of the bus system for Gulf Islands residents.

He eyes Carnegie Building for books

Munro
. . . 'dignified use'

Munro's Books owner Jim Munro wants to move his Yates Street premises into the Carnegie Building, which used to house part of the Victoria Public Library.

Munro said Friday his plans call for preservation of the heritage building's exterior and restoration of its interior.

The Carnegie Building is almost directly across the street from Munro's and was built in 1904.

Munro's plans do not affect an addition to the Carnegie built in 1952.

Munro said the architectural plans for the proposed move were drawn up more than a year ago by Victoria heritage architect Nick Bawlf.

"I feel it's time people know there's a use for the building that's dignified and will enhance it," Munro said.

"I've asked to lease the building and I'm willing to pay. They've quoted me a price and it's high but I can do it.

"I feel the building should stay in books. My business would fit into it exactly, as few other business, banks, for example, would."

Munro has been interested in acquiring the building for about three years now.

When rumors started to circulate three years ago that the library was moving, Munro wrote city hall and spoke with the city manager about his plans.

Munro said city hall officials appeared to think his plan was a good idea.

In addition, Munro offered to buy the Carnegie Building last year when it was offered for sale. He said at that time he would also be interested in leasing it.

Kyle's Gallery on Fort Street also made an offer to buy.

But the city decided not to sell the building and Munro's $5,000 deposit was returned.

Munro said he spoke as recently as May with Victoria Mayor William Tindall and several aldermen about his plans, but so far no decision has been made.

"As far as I know," Munro said, "I'm the only serious commercial contender."

Munro said the Carnegie Building has a basement, main floor and upper floor, with about 2,500 square feet of usage per floor. This would give more space for displays and books.

The newer addition to the Carnegie Building may someday house the city's archives.

Victoria city archivist Ainslie Helmcken said Friday the building's 1952 addition would be a more suitable location for archives than the heritage building itself.

"The old part, as attractive as it is, is really not suitable. It would need considerable renovation, whereas the building in the back would cost less to do and we could move in almost right away," Helmcken said.

Nine beaches polluted, unfit for swimming

All beaches from Victoria Harbor to McMicking Point six kilometres to the east are polluted, Capital Region District health officer Allen Arneil said Friday.

In addition, Arneil said nine area beaches are so polluted they are unfit for swimming.

There are four Cordova beaches with high fecal coliform counts, the north and south ends of Mount Douglas Creek, part of Sayward Beach, the north end of Prospect Lake and the south end of Esquimalt Lagoon.

Arneil said he does not have the power to close beaches to the public if they have high fecal coliform counts.

He said it was not possible to compare the situation with pollution at the beaches last year.

Gorge Vale aces earn berths in PNWGA finals

There will be a distinctly British Columbia flavor to the championship matches in the annual Pacific Northwest Golf Association tournaments today.

Former B.C. champion Dorothy DeGirolamo of Gorge Vale will play Lynn Cooke of Vancouver Golf Club in the 36-hole women's final at Uplands while Island Open champion Stu Holroyd, also of Gorge Vale, meets Brian Haugen of Tacoma in the men's final, also a 36-hole test, at Royal Colwood.

The women's matches are scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. while the men will begin play at 8 a.m. and 1 p.m.

It will be the first time in five years that DeGirolamo has participated in a 36-hole final and it's the first time she has faced Cooke, a student on a golf scholarship at Lamar University in Beaumont, Texas, in three years.

"We played in the B.C. amateur at Uplands in 1977 and I defeated Lynn on the 19th," DeGirolamo said Friday. "I hope the hot weather continues for at least another day, it's good for my swing."

Today's match will be the sixth and seventh rounds in five days for DeGirolamo and Cooke, who qualified for the final with narrow victories Friday.

DeGirolamo edged Pat Derry of Royal Colwood, one up, while Cooke, B.C. amateur finalist last week, eliminated defending champion Nancy Peck of Eugene, Ore., 3 and 2.

DeGirolamo, one down after three holes, squared the match on the fourth, went one up on the seventh and held a two-hole advantage after the 13th and 16th.

Derry made a fine birdie on the 17th to close to within one and the players halved the 18th.

DeGirolamo shot approximately 79 and Derry 80.

In the first four flight finals, Val Westell of Vancouver meets Kelly Antolock of Port Angeles, Cynthia Webber of Seattle plays Kandy Holmes of Cheyenne, Wyo., Pat Curtis of Tacoma plays Jani Japar of Seattle, and Jeannie Hopps of Uplands meets Michael Harrison of Portland.

Victorians qualifying for the other 13 flight finals were Jean Smith of Gorge Vale, Flo Chapman of Colwood, Janie Gudewill of Victoria Golf Club, Bea Breffit of Uplands, Verle McKeown of Gorge Vale, Dorothy Bigsby of Victoria, Shirley Roberts of Gorge Vale and Flora Kirker of Gorge Vale.

At Colwood, Haugen and Holroyd reached their first PNGA finals with similar victories.

Haugen, a 20-year-old student at Seattle University, defeated Dave DeLong of Portland 5 and 4 after being two up following the morning round.

Haugen was four down after four holes but rallied strongly.

The 22-year-old Holroyd, a third-year computer science student at University of Victoria, held a four-hole lead after the first round and had at least a three-hole edge for the remaining play in a 5 and 4 win over Dr. Bob Lee of Everett.

In other action, Don Gowan of Glen Meadows defeated Jeff Tachell of Seattle on the 19th hole in the championship consolation, and Steve Berry of Vancouver downed Dick Price of Portland 4 and 3. Gowan and Berry will play a 36-hole final today while the other 12 flights will be decided over 18 holes.

In Class A (40 and over) semi-finals, B.C. seniors champion Bruce Pelmore of Colwood trimmed Herb Fritz of Vancouver 5 and 4 while Dick Booth of Eugene got by Bob Davis of Tacoma 3 and 2.

LEE TREVINO plays to first green from waist-deep bunker Friday during second round of the British Open. Trevino struggled for pars on the first two holes but pulled away from field after that.

Trevino favored by rivals after padding British lead

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Lee Trevino took advantage of some better weather and shot a four-under-par 67 that put him three strokes ahead of the field Friday after the second round of the 109th British Open golf championship.

It just may be the edge he needs.

Ben Crenshaw, one of Trevino's American rivals who refused to back off, hinted it may be.

"I think Lee's playing the best of his life," Crenshaw said. "He's full of confidence, and he's the greatest front-runner in the world."

Ken Brown, the slender, soft-spoken British Ryder Cup player who was one of the few non-Americans among the leaders, certainly didn't count himself a challenger despite his lofty spot in a tie for second at 138 with Tom Watson and Jerry Pate.

"A three-stroke difference is miles and miles," Brown said. "It's even more when the man in front is a better player than you are. My hopes of winning are pie in the sky."

Trevino, with a seven-under-par 135 total for two trips over Muirfield's windswept links, obviously thought so, too.

"I figure I need to get 10 under to win," he said. "I'm seven under. I need to shoot 69, 70. And if that isn't good enough to win the 109th championship, well, I guess I'll just have to come back next year and try again."

Watson, who shared the first-round lead with Trevino, struggled most of the day. He bogeyed two of the par-five holes on the way to a 70. Pate, a former U.S. Open champion who hasn't won in almost two years, counted an eagle-3 on his way to a 67. Brown had a 68.

Even Watson, the game's outstanding player for 3½ seasons, and the mighty Jack Nicklaus agreed that Trevino's lead will be difficult to overcome.

"He's going to be a hard man to catch on this golf course," Watson said. "He's playing well, and he's not making any mistakes.

"It's going to take a superb effort to catch him."

"Obviously, I'll have to play two very good rounds," Nicklaus said. "But I'm not entirely out of touch with the tournament.

"Trevino has been playing awfully well. But he, too, is capable of shooting a 72 or 73."

Nicklaus, who won the U.S. Open title last month, matched Trevino's 67, despite a deeply-frustrating finish that included a bogey on the 18th. He was one of six tied for fifth place at 140.

Also at that figure were Australian Open champion Jack Newton, defending titleholder Seve Ballesteros of Spain and American stars Crenshaw, Gil Morgan and Andy Bean.

Ballesteros, still pleading he has no confidence and isn't feeling or playing well, managed to sink a 20-foot putt for an eagle and shoot a 68. Crenshaw also had an eagle-3 in his round of 70 and Bean had another in his 69. Morgan shot a 70 and Newton matched par 71.

"The conditions were a lot easier," Trevino said. "It was still chilly and there was some wind, but it wasn't as cold and there wasn't any rain."

The scores showed the improvement in the playing conditions.

A major exhibit was the course-record seven-under-par 64 by Argentine longshot Horacio Carbonetti. He opened with a 78 and was at par 142.

But it was Trevino's day.

Stalking and swaggering, gesturing and joking with all the flair that has made him such a gallery favorite on two sides of the Atlantic, Trevino put on a show for the large portion of the crowd of 29,673 that followed his trek over the windswept moors.

His constant chatter was interrupted by moments of intense concentration during which he delivered that flat, effective swing with such remarkable accuracy.

Canada, U.S. unbeaten

TACOMA — Unbeaten Canada and the United States recorded decisions over The Bahamas and New Zealand Friday but they'll have to do it again today if they are to reach the final of the men's world fastball championships.

The Bahamas and New Zealand stayed alive with wins over Mexico and Taiwan, respectively, in elimination round action.

Canada, which finished the round-robin portion of the tournament with a 6-0 record, posted its seventh straight win as playoff action started with a 4-1 decision over The Bahamas.

Jim Cowdrey, who struck out 10 batters, earned the victory for Canada although he needed relief help from Gene McWillie in the sixth inning.

Bob Stewart had two singles and two runs batted in and John Green of Victoria Budgets, picked up by the national team, drove in a run with a sacrifice fly.

The U.S., also 6-0 in preliminary play, shaded the powerful New Zealand side 2-0.

Taiwan edged Japan 2-1 in 13 innings and Mexico eliminated Guam with a 6-0 victory in other first-round playoff action.

Then New Zealand kept its hopes alive with a 2-1, eight-inning decision which eliminated Taiwan and The Bahamas earned another shot at Canada with a 2-0 win over Mexico in nine innings. Richard Johnson fired a no-hitter for the winners and Fred Smith slammed a two-run homer in the top of the ninth for the only runs.

Canada and The Bahamas meet this morning at 10, with U.S. and New Zealand to play at 12 noon. The losers play for third-place at 4 p.m. with the championship game, which will be broadcast on C-FAX (1070), slated for 6 p.m.

Hudon appeals suspension

By STAN COOPER

Joe Hudon was back on the track Friday, pending an appeal of judges' ruling into an allegation that one of his horses tested positive after a recent race at Sandown Raceway.

Hudon, defending driving champion at both Sandown and Cloverdale Raceways and one of the best harness-racing drivers in Western Canada, was taken off all drives Thursday night under a temporary suspension.

The 29-year-old driver said between races Friday that he was innocent of the charges and was appealing a 15-day suspension and $250 fine to the B.C. Racing Commission.

"I've been driving 13 years and have never been charged with even a 'cloudy' (doubtful) infraction," he said.

The horse in question, B.C. Cinder, won the 10th race at Sandown on July 10 and was tested following the race. The winner and at least one other horse are required to give a urine sample after each race.

The test on B.C. Cinder, a three-year-old black gelding was positive and Hudon was informed of the ruling by track officials.

Commission secretary Bob Collis of Vancouver said Friday afternoon that a hearing would be held as soon as possible — probably early next week — either in Victoria or Vancouver and that Hudon would be allowed to drive pending the hearing.

An official ruling will be made 48 hours after the appeal is heard.

On the track, Hudon reeled off three wins, three seconds and a third in seven drives, connecting with Little Pence in the fourth, Pardner Jove in the eighth and Irish Dawn in the feature ninth.

Keith Quinaln also had three firsts.

Action resumes today with a 10-race card starrting at 1:30 p.m.

Friday results and today's entries on Page 28.

Blues sign ex-Cougar

After losing six of their last eight games, Victoria Blues came to the conclusion reinforcements were in order.

Wonder of wonders, they found help in their own back yard.

Blues have signed catcher Dan Rogers of Victoria to a Northwest League baseball contract. The 22-year-old is expected to dress for tonight's game against Eugene Emeralds.

Rogers, who has been playing for a Nanaimo team in the Mid-Island Senior League, is a former backup goaltender for the Western Hockey League's Victoria Cougars and has extensive background in the Victoria minor baseball system.

He played Little League locally, graduated to the Victoria Firefighters' Babe Ruth program and went on to join Farmer Construction of the Victoria Senior Amateur League.

On the field Friday, Blues snapped a three-game losing streak by edging Eugene Emeralds 8-6 at Royal Athletic Park.

Former Victoria Mussel outfielder Paul Kirsch, playing his first game for the Blues, returned in style, belting four hits in four trips, and driving in two runs with a double.

Joe Lorenz supplied three hits and two RBIs and catcher Don Hyman, Blues RBI leader, knocked in two more.

Wild pitch ruins shutout

Ray Beveridge was within one pitch of a shutout victory Friday but had to settle for a 1-1 tie in extra innings as Ingraham Hotel and Royal Oak Inn battled in Stuffy McGinnis men's softball league play at Central Park.

Beveridge had two out and two strikes on shortstop Pat Strandlund in the bottom of the seventh when he uncorked a wild pitch, allowing Rick Sutter to score from third.

In the Heywood Men's League, Jim Miller drove in four runs with a triple and two singles to power Athletics to a 12-8 win over Strathcona Hotel.

Three teams qualify for district tourney

Gordon Head, Esquimalt and Triangle qualified for the Greater Victoria district Little League baseball playoffs by scoring Friday victories in area playdowns.

Gordon Head, with Jim Senese contributing a two-run homer, trounced Oak Bay 18-7 at Lambrick Park; rightfielder Steve Reiser cracked two home runs and had four runs-batted-in as Triangle whipped Hampton 17-2 at Hollywood Park and winning pitcher Clint Bilton smacked a two-run single to lift Esquimalt to a 7-4 win over Layritz at Hillside Park.

In action tonight, Oak Bay meets Sidney, Hampton plays Lakehill and Layritz faces American. The winners move on to the six-team district playoffs at Hampton Park, starting Monday. The district champion advances to the provincial final in Vancouver early next month.

IT MAY NOT have been the biggest bomb since Hiroshima as one former Victoria Shamrock predicted but the Nations in 80 lacrosse tournament was a definite dud in Victoria.

The lack of support from Victoria fans prompted the organizers of the first world box lacrosse championship to move the semi-final game from Victoria to Coquitlam.

From a crowd standpoint, it was definitely a good move but from a financial standpoint it may have not been all that wise. The tournament organizers booked the arena some time ago and must pay the rental fee, $1,050 and five percent on the 70 some tickets that were refunded.

While knocking the Victoria fans, the tournament organizers praised the Vancouver fans.

Attendance at Mainland arenas was much better than on the Island but who's really to blame? Should the blazer boys really expect lacrosse fans to shell out $4 per game to watch teams which they have little or no interest in.

What would the attendance have been like in the various centres if Victoria Shamrocks had represented the West instead of Coquitlam?

The real blame for poor attendance on the Island rests with the organizers of the tournament and that strange schedule.

Mistakes were made, and that is expected in a first time deal, but many of those mistakes could have been avoided.

The first mistake was calling it Nations in 80. What does that mean anyway? Western Lacrosse Association commissioner Wally Donaldson said he tried to talk the organizers into simply calling it the world box lacrosse championships but was unable to convince them.

People who aren't big lacrosse fans might go to watch a world championship but aren't likely to get fired up about something called Nations in 80.

ANOTHER BIG MISTAKE was the schedule.

Anyone who knows anything about lacrosse knows that Canada East and Canada West would likely be the top two teams, so logically they should have met in the last game before the playoffs and they should have met at the home of the Western representative.

Both teams would have been 3-0 going into the game and the winner would have advanced to the final.

Instead Canada East played Canada West early in the round-robin in Victoria and 861 fans showed up and 33 get refunds because the Coquitlam Adanacs are two hours late in arriving.

Unbeknownst to the waiting fans — many waited at the bar down the road — the Adanacs were being scared to death in a hair-raising airplane ride. The Yellow Bird Airlines DC-3 they were flying in lost an engine shortly after take off from Vancouver Airport and had to return and make an emergency landing. The Adanacs had to go through the whole routine, head between the knees and that sort of thing. Visions of imminent death undoubtedly danced in their heads.

When another flight was arranged, some players had to be literally dragged on the plane and they were still white and shaken at midnight after they had beatrn Brooklin Redmen of the East 9-7.

That game decided the finalist and the previous night the North American Native Warriors decided the other semi-finalist by thrashing the U.S. 15-6.

So there it was with three days of round-robin play remaining in the tournament and the only thing left to be decided was who would finish last — the U.S. or Australia.

That game was played at Memorial Arena and although the teams weren't close to the other clubs in ability they worked hard, displayed great heart and provided the most entertainment of the tournament for Victoria fans.

THE VICTORIA FANS really took to the underdog Aussies and cheered harder for them than they did for any of the other teams, including the Adanacs.

That indicates that organizers would have been wiser to build area identities for the teams. Obviously Canada West would identify with Coquitlam, the Australians would have been warmly welcomed here, North Shore was an excellent site for the Native team, the U.S. could have been adopted by Vancouver and New Westminster would have been a good spot for Canada East.

Each team could have played two 'home' games in the arenas of the areas of identity.

Certainly booking five games for Victoria was too much. The only possible way the fans here would have supported that many games would have been if the Shamrocks had gained the berth or if there had been an all-star team.

They likely would have supported the semi-final fairly well regardless and only the final bookkeeping will reveal whether it was financially wiser to move the game to Coquitlam.

SO THE TOURNAMENT ended up a 50-50 proposition, not too good but not too bad and with experience and opportunity, it could grow and become a permament event. Apparently the Australians are keen to host the next world tournament.

The upsetting thing is that Victoria fans, who over the years have supported the game better than their Mainland counterparts, get knocked for being smart enough to avoid an inferior product.

Malcolm Ashford, a tournament organizer, was quoted in a Vancouver paper as saying that the big games — Canada East vs. Canada West, and Canada West vs. the Natives — were booked for Victoria because: "We wanted to give the people in Victoria some good games because their Shamrocks were not in it. We wanted to be fair."

That's odd when you consider the schedule was presented to the media in April, two months before anybody knew who would represent the West.

The same article purports that an individual wearing a Nations in 80 jacket said the games were scheduled for Victoria because if the Mainland fans saw how easily Coquitlam won, no one would show for the final.

Does that mean that tournament organizers knew the West would win easily?

Ed Linstead was chairman of the tournament and he was quoted in a press release dated April 18:

"We're expecting a wide open battle for the championship and any one of the five teams could win it. I expect the Americans will be especially strong."

Enough said.

The blazer boys do hate negative comment so let's finish on a positive note.

There were some good games, the Natives proved they're competitive with the best and it would be interesting to have them included in the Mann Cup playdowns. The world championship concept is good and in the long run could help the game of box lacrosse which is close to being placed on the list of endangered species. And the final game crowd of 7,971 is encouraging, even if it was bolstered by players and families involved with the peewee championships.

Oh, but one other thing. Next time use only senior "A" referees and be sure the calibre of officiating reaches world championship standards.

Cuban seeks third Olympic crown

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Teofilo Stevenson, the Cuban who broke the hearts of American boxing promoters when he refused to fight Muhammad Ali during the 1970s, will seek another niche in Olympic history over the next two weeks.

Stevenson, a quiet man who packs a powerful right hand, is already the only boxer to have retained the Olympic heavyweight title. Now he aims to become the first man to win three Olympic titles in the same weight category.

Stevenson punched his way into the world headlines at the 1972 Olympics in Munich when, as a gangling, 21-year-old, he won the heavyweight crown without once having to go the distance. In fact he has never had to go the full three rounds in seven Olympic fights.

His victims in Munich included U.S. Marine Duane Bobick, heralded as another Rocky Marciano when he entered the ring but looking more like a punch bag when he left it.

Another much-vaunted American, John Tate, later the World Boxing Associations heavyweight champion, was among Stevenson's victims at the 1976 games in Montreal.

If Stevenson has a flaw it is an occasional lapse in concentration which caused him to lose twice to the rugged but technically weak Russian Igor Vysotsky.

Stevenson, however, has never allowed his concentration to waver in an important bout and since losing to Bobick in the Pan-American Games nearly 10 years ago has not been beaten in a major tournament.

Stevenson has always been a difficult man to communicate with — some say he is shy, others that he is aloof — and no one has been more aggrieved at failing to make contact with him than the promoters of professional boxing in the United States.

They would have given him a blank cheque to take on Ali in the 1970s but Stevenson would not be lured, saying that he did not want to become a piece of merchandise and anyway money was a poor substitute for the love of the Cuban nation.

U.S. absent but presence felt

MOSCOW (AP) — Even in absentia, the United States has had a real presence at the Moscow Games.

The U.S. impact is felt by the athletes who sympathize with their missing fellow sportsmen and wonder how the Summer Olympics will be with the boycott — and would have been without it.

"The Americans would have had a very strong team," said Dennis Johnson, a coach with the Jamaican track and field team. "Their not being here will make it a lot easier for others to win medals."

And the U.S. influence is strongly felt outside the sports arena, in the political dispute over raising the U.S. flag and playing the Star Spangled Banner at the closing ceremony Aug. 3.

On Thursday, the White House demanded that the International Olympic Committee refrain from its unauthorized use of the U.S. flag and anthem, calling such an action inappropriate since the U.S. had chosen to boycott the Games in response to the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

The protest came in the form of a letter from Lloyd Cutler, counsel to President Carter.

"The United States objects to any use of its national flag and anthem at the Games in Moscow, including the closing ceremony," said the letter.

Monique Berlioux, the IOC's executive director, acknowledged receipt of the letter and said, "We are studying it."

IOC tradition dictates that the symbolic linking of one Games to the next be demonstrated by raising the flag and playing the anthem of the host country four years hence. The 1984 Summer Olympics are scheduled for Los Angeles.

"This is our protocol and this is what we're going to do," Berlioux had said prior to receiving Cutler's message.

In preparation for today's traditional Olympic pageant, the Olympic flame arrived Friday at Sovietskaya Square for public viewing.

Alberto Mercado of Puerto Rico, the 1979 Pan American and World Cup boxing champion in the 112-pound class, could be the only U.S. citizen to win a medal here.

"What I am concerned about is sports and my love for boxing and I came here to box," said Mercado, who will carry the Puerto Rican flag in the opening ceremony.

Mercado's government supported the Carter boycott and withheld all funds from Olympic athletes, but the boxer received financial aid from Olympic Solidarity, an IOC faction that aids international amateur sport.

Besides the U.S., the governments of Canada, West Germany, Japan and Norway, among the major countries, were able to persuade their Olympic committees to support the boycott. Some pro-boycott governments, like Australia and Great Britain, could not keep their teams home.

"We've received some nasty letters, but I'm glad to be here," said diver Chris Snode of Great Britain.

Mark Kerry, an Australian swimmer who lives in the U.S., said he received telephone calls from the U.S. state department urging him not to compete.

"They were very insistent," he said. "They even read headlines from Australian papers telling how badly the Russians were treating the Afghans."

Par Arvidsson, the favored butterfly swimmer from Sweden, said he would have been proud to support the boycott if his country had chosen to stay home.

"If I were an American, I would have gone along with the boycott, no question."

Events approved for '84 Olympics

MOSCOW (AP) — The International Olympic Committee has added 12 events to the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles and given a new look to its inner cabinet by electing four members to its executive board.

Apparently the IOC did not talk about the effect the increased number of events will have on the population of Olympic Village

"I really have not had time to think of numbers," said Arpad Csanadi of Hungary, chairman of the IOC's program commission which made the proposals. "I would have to sit down and work it out, sport by sport."

The new events are in track and field, swimming, cycling, yachting, shooting and gymnastics.

Meanwhile the IOC, having elected Juan Antonio Samaranch of Spain as president on Wednesday, built up its inner cabinet.

Alexandru Siperco of Romania, who filled a one-year vacancy on the executive board in 1979, was re-elected for four years.

New members elected were Virgilio de Leon of Panama, Ashwini Kumar of India and Prince Alexandre de Merode of Belgium.

Julian K. Roosevelt, American IOC member and an Olympic gold medalist in yachting, failed to win a seat although the IOC usually likes to have an executive board member from the country planning for the next Games.

James Worrall of Toronto, who unsuccessfully opposed Samaranch for the presidency, failed in a bid for election to the executive board.

The IOC rejected a proposal to bring table tennis into the Games in 1984. Tennis, which has been knocking at the door of the Olympics for years, was turned down again.

The new events to be admitted at Los Angeles are :

Track - women's 3,000 metres and 400-metre hurdles.

Swimming - men's and women's 200-metre medley, men's 4x100-metre relay, women's duet in synchronized swimming.

Gymnastics - Combined rhythmic gymnastics.

Yachting - Sailboard class.

Shooting - Separate women's events in air rifle, standard small bore rifle and pistol match.

Cycling - women's road race (50 or 70 kilometres).

Martina leads parade to semis at Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Martina Navratilova, yet to lose a set, outclassed eighth-seed Anne Smith of Dallas 6-4, 6-4 Friday night to advance to the semifinals of the Player's Challenge women's professional tennis tournament.

The Czechoslovakian-born Navratilova, now a resident of Charlottesville, Va., fell behind 2-0 in the first set after Smith, 21, broke her service and held her own.

The two-time Wimbledon champion, currently ranked second in the world behind Tracy Austin, stormed back and broke three of Smith's four other services in the set.

While Navratilova kept her winning streak alive, so did Joanne Russell of Naples, Fla., who ousted fifth-seed Ann Kiyomura 4-6, 7-6 (7-3), 6-4.

Greer Stevens of South Africa and Pam Shriver of the U.S. also reached the semifinals.

Stevens, seeded second, defeated Leslie Allen of New York City 6-2, 6-3, while Shriver, seeded fourth, downed sixth-seed Laura DuPont of Matthews, N.C., 6-1, 6-1.

Aztecs acquire Mexican scoring leader

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Forward Agustin Manzo, a top scorer for the Mexican national team each of his four years in professional soccer, has been acquired by Los Angeles Aztecs of the North American Soccer League.

"The acquisition of Manzo gives us excellent depth up front, something we needed," said Aztecs' general manager Marvin Milkes. "Manzo gives us added security going into the stretch drive for the playoffs."

Manzo, 21, has scored 10 goals and nine assists in 15 games for the Mexican Nationals. He was with Club America this year, scoring two goals and seven assists in 14 games.

MT. VERNON, Wash. — Odie Robertson of Denver, Colo., established a track record and won a 25-lap main event for open superstocks Friday as qualifying for Speedweek Northwest began at Skagit Speedway.

Robertson circled the dirt track in 16:22 seconds, beating the previous mark of 16:40 set by Roy Haslam of Victoria last year.

Bannister new junior champ

SQUAMISH (CP) — Glen Bannister is the new B.C. Junior Men's Golf champion, but the 18-year-old from Abbotsford had some tense moments late in Friday's final round before taking a one-stroke win over Rick Gibson of Vancouver.

Bannister had a comfortable lead after 16 holes but he triple-bogied the par five 17th after hooking a drive off the tee. He then three-putted the 18th green and had to watch Gibson attempt a five-foot putt to force a playoff.

Gibson, formerly of Victoria, missed and Bannister, with his two-over-par total of 290, had the championship.

In third place was Glen Heuser of Kelowna, who shot an even par 72 Friday and finished at 293.

Jamie Harper of Nanaimo tied with Neil Crofts of Vancouver at 295.

The 16-year-old Harper, younger brother of B.C. champion Sandy Harper, handily won the juvenile division of the tournament. Harper had a 12-stroke cushion over his nearest rival Neil O'Leary of Victoria.

The top 30 Canadian finishers of the tournament qualify to play in the B.C Invitational at Vancouver July 26 and 27. That tournament determines which four B.C. golfers will represent the province at the Canadian Junior August 27-29 at Red Deer, Alta.

Blair Piercy of Victoria and Rick Williams of Cowichan finished at 308 and Rick Taylor of Nanaimo at 309.

Lame Whitecaps may play tonight

VANCOUVER (CP) — Injured midfielders Steve Kember and Carl Valentine may play tonight when Vancouver Whitecaps meet San Jose Earthquakes in a North American Soccer League game at Empire Stadium.

Kember and Valentine suffered ankle injuries Wednesday against Los Angeles and had to leave the game in the first half.

The Whitecaps finished the game with their starting fullbacks, Canadians Bobby Lenarduzzi and Buzz Parsons in midfield, with reserves Peter Roe and Paul Nelson coming off the bench to take up positions on the back line.

New champions crowned

Jessie Kinneard and Ivy McLeod of Burnside Lawn Bowling Club defeated Muriel Thompson and Sadie McArthur of Victoria 21-6 this week to capture the Silver Tray at Oak Bay in the annual women's scotch doubles competition.

Mary Atherton and Flora Martin of Burnside, the defending champions, placed third while Joan Burgess and Lillian Mason came fourth.

On the 'B' side, Jean Vantreight and May Shepherd of Gordon Head downed Eleanor Jarvis and Nancy Baker of Burnside 23-12 to take the tile.

Placing third were Cordy Norgrove and Olga Reihl of the Victoria club, followed by Bessie Thompson and Peggy Keating of Victoria West.

Cosmos pass first Ruth test

SQUAMISH — Gordon Head Cosmos of Victoria vaulted the first hurdle at the B.C. Babe Ruth (13 years) baseball championships Friday, slipping by Trail 14-12 in their first game.

Ian Smith started for Cosmos but was pulled in the first inning. Brad McAdam came on in relief and pitched the rest of the way.

Brent Polischuk rapped out three hits and Dave Parenteau added two more for Gordon Head, which plays today at 3:30 p.m. The opposition will be either Vancouver or Kimberley.

Hard hitter upsets Connors

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Hard-hitting Jose-Luis Clerc outslugged erratic top seed Jimmy Connors, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3 Friday in a stunning quarter-final upset at the $175,000 U.S. Pro tennis championships.

It was the second meeting between Connors, ranked third in the world, and the 22-year-old Clerc, ranked No. 19. In March, Connors defaulted with a sprained back leading 6-4, 6-2 in a best-of-five sets championship match in Costa Rica.

Coach put on ice for year

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Manitoba minor hockey league coach has been given a one-year conditional discharge after being convicted of punching one of his players in the face.

Wayne Reid Smith, 25, coach of the Morse Place juvenile team, was handed the sentence Thursday.

The incident occurred last Jan.6 in the dressing room after the team had lost a game.

Coquitlam peewees prevail

VANCOUVER — Coquitlam won the national peewee lacrosse championship Thursday by defeating Burnaby 9-5 and Ross Tyler of Coquitlam was named most valuable player.

In the "A" division bronze-medal game, Victoria Seasprays defeated North Delta 12-10 in overtime after the teams finished regulation time in an 8-8 tie.

Graham Bewdley scored three Victoria goals in the extra time.

Victoria players Clayton MacGregor and Tom Marechek shared "A" division scoring honors with 25 points each. Marechek had 11 goals and 14 assists while MacGregor scored five goals and set up 20 others in the week-long event.

Hoch pads Quad Cities lead

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (AP) — Scott Hoch expanded his lead in the $200,000 Quad Cities Open to four strokes Friday in shooting a 66 for an 11-under par 129 that equals the lowest 36-hole tally on the Professional Golf Association tour this year. Curtis Strange's 129 at Houston, however, was 13-under-par.

Hoch was the first-round leader with a 63, equalling the lowest single round on the tour this season as well as the course record at the Oakwood Country Club.

Hoch, 24, a rookie on the tour from Raleigh, N.C., has tied for 23rd in the Atlanta Classic and 19th in the Western Open. He has won only $6,165, but can pick up $36,000 by taking the Quad Open title.

Grouped at 133 were Tom Jones, another rookie, who had a 68; Howard Twitty, runner-up Sunday in the Greater Milwaukee Open with a 67; and Mike Sullivan also with a 67, who has missed the cut seven times since taking five weeks off the tour because of back muscle spasms.

Dan Halldorson of Brandon, with a 71 was at 136 in the bunched field along with Rod Curl, and Lindy Miller.

Joyce, Julie set pace

LUTHERVILLE, Md. (AP) — Joyce Kazmierski and Julie Stanger both shot five-under-par 68s to take share the lead after the opening round Friday in the $100,000 Greater Baltimore golf tournament.

Five players were tied for second at 69 — Nancy Lopez-Melton, Pat Bradley, Angie Tasai, Vicki Fergon and Louise Bruce.

Kazmierski picked up four birdies on the front nine to go out with a four-under 33. On the back nine she played par golf until reaching the par 5, 496-yard 18th where she dropped a 15-foot putt for birdie.

Stanger had an eagle three on the 435-yard, par-five first hole. She bogeyed the second, but birdied the third and stayed two-under through 11 holes, then ran three straight birdies before bogeying 15. She moved back to five-under by hitting a six-iron to within four feet on the 156-yard par-three 17th hole and sinking the putt.

Bill Britton, a rookie from Staten Island, N.Y. had the best round of the day with a 65 over the 6,514-yard, par-70 course and was at 137.

Defending champion D. A. Weibring had a 75 for 147 and failed to make the cut at 141.

Looking ahead for job security

By JOANNE HOOKER
Colonist-New York Times Service

MIAMI — So you don't know what you want to be when you grow up?

Well, there are some 20,000 choices listed in the Dictionary of Occupational Titles, but the wise ones are saying "think carefully"— because the job that looks good today may be obsolete 10 years down the road.

The way the job market is shaping up, hairdressers and dry cleaners are going to be in far greater demand than the law student, the anthropologist, the engineering student or the education major.

Or farming. Predictions show the number of farmers will decrease in the next 10 years.

Those professions predicted to be the 15 fastest growing through 1985 are, in descending order:

Practical nurses
Personnel-labor relations
Physicians
Nurses aides, orderlies
Clinical lab technologists and technicians
Registered nurses
Secretaries, legal
Receptionists
Secretaries, other than legal and medical
Sewers and stitchers
Computer, peripheral equipment operators
Bank, financial managers
Typists
Sales managers, except retail trade
Guards

According to the U.S. Department of Labor's Occupational Outlook Quarterly, "Over the 1978-90 period, the growth in employment of professional and technical workers is expected to be even slower than it was during the 1970-78 period, because of the lack of growth in education and a slower growth in high technology industries."

Indeed, it is already harder for a college graduate to get a job in the field he prepared for. Between 1962 and 1969, of the 575,000 graduates who entered the labor force annually, about 73 per cent entered professional and technical occupations (includes accountants, engineers, doctors, lawyers, teachers).

Between 1969 and 1978, 1,150,000 graduates entered the job market each year but only 46 per cent found professional or technical jobs—because many more graduates were competing for a smaller number of available positions.

The pyramid is expected to continue building. The National Centre for Education Statistics projects that about 13.5 million college graduates will enter the labor force between 1978-90, competing for only 10.2 million job openings in traditional fields.

"About one graduate in four will probably have to enter a non-traditional occupation," the report says.

Some colleges and universities are already gearing their curriculum toward future needs. For example, Miami-Dade Community College, a two-year institution, is phasing out its Marine Science program "because the job outlook is so bad," says Gene McDonald, career development officer, "and because there is such stiff competition from other colleges in this field.

"Employers are very skills based now," continues McDonald. "They are interested in a person who has something he can do even at the entry level."

To try and satisfy the needs of employers, there is a major trend to 'experiential' education, says Pat Koksal, the school's job placement officer.

'Experiental' or co-op education, is a fancy word for a higher level on-the-job training. Koksal foresees a time when many students will already have acquired entry level skills in their profession by the time they graduate.

Up until recently, most students went to school and majored in whatever field they, or their parents, thought looked OK. If the student thought psychology or social work was interesting, he majored in that, never thinking that it takes at least a masters degree to get a foot in the door, that the field might already be overcrowded, or that the pay is low.

"We used to say, 'Here are our students. Where are the jobs?' " says McDonald.

"One of the worst things that has happened in education is that we have not brought more business and industry people into our colleges and universities.

Hairdressers are going to be in greater demand than law students or educators

"It's a complaint from employers nationwide that students are just not educated to meet the needs. We cannot afford to offer courses in majors that will not allow a person to be employed afterward."

But it's no easy task for counsellors who know the career road may be rocky to get their message across to students.

"Some want to get into school for two years and then want to make $30,000 a year," says McDonald.

"A lot talk in dollar figures. They think it doesn't matter what you do as long as it pays a certain amount of money," adds Koksal. "Or sometimes the parents will say, 'do this,' and the student will do it. Sometimes it's just a matter of laziness to explore anything else."

Nancy Lipp is one career counsellor who tells her clients to "pay attention to the timeliness of whatever it is you decide to do."

Lipp was a teacher who took her own advice and phased into vocational counselling when she realized she could not just be working with teenagers. "I looked at the trends and realized women and senior citizens will be a big part of the job market. One of the key questions I ask is, 'Is your profession outdated?'

"It isn't enough to know how to type. You have to know about word processing. I try to tell a client it isn't enough to sit behind a desk. The biggest key to promotion is being first, second or third to learn how to do these things."

Lipp talks to hundreds of women each year who are just entering or re-entering the job market, and she believes "absolutely that they should be steered in a career direction."

Some of the "hot" fields Lipp steers her clients to are: property insurance, insurance claims, health planning, import-export sales and banking.

Ruthless competitor for secretary's job

Canadian Press

TORONTO — With experts predicting that computerized word processors will bring the same ruthless efficiency to white-collar work that the production line brought to 19th-century factories, some typists and secretaries say their days may be numbered.

"I don't see being a secretary for 30 or 40 years, because the job won't be there," said Lee-Anna Wright. "You don't get a one-to-one relationship with a boss anymore."

Mrs. Wright, 29, is a secretary with the consulting firm of Hickling-Johnson Ltd., which uses word-processing computers and companion printers.

There has been tremendous growth in the field since IBM introduced word-processing typewriters with memory capacities in the mid-1960s.

Office systems now provide editing, filing, graphics and photo-composition and printout capacities.

Last year, 71,000 word processors were sold in the United States, a 23-per-cent increase over the previous year. And experts estimate that between $1.8 million and $2 million worth of word processors were sold in North America last year.

In 1964, fresh out of high school, Marilyn Weir was hired at $64 a week by Ontario Hydro to do secretarial work.

At the start of every month, she began typing on ditto paper a several-hundred-page voltage report — typing, correcting, submitting a draft to an engineer, retyping, submitting another draft and retyping again.

If she was lucky, she would finish in time to begin next month's report.

"Today, you could do the same job in a day or less on the word processor and not end up going home being covered all over, feet to socks, in ditto blue. You make your few changes and send them through to the word printer and it does all the work."

Robert Fabian, a former computer science professor at York University in Toronto and now a consultant in the field, said experts estimate there is a 25-per-cent increase in typing efficiency with the word processors, which means one out of 10 secretaries will lose their jobs.

One reason more jobs aren't lost is because managers have increased the number of times they revise documents because revision is so much easier. And the introduction of computers in offices has also created a number of new more highly-skilled jobs, particularly for women.

But, the pressure for management to use word processors may become inexorable if they fall to the $300 to $1,000 price range which some experts predict for 1990.

Computers' efficiency becoming threat

Challenge for home hobbyists

Canadian Press

TORONTO — For the 25,000 to 30,000 Canadian homes with computers the advent of the devices has led to a resurgence in individual experimentation the likes of which has not been seen since the development of the crystal set.

Home computers have become tools on which the users can create their own programs, many of which are good enough to sell in the ever-growing market of computer software.

"Traditionally, people don't know what to do with them when they buy home computers," says Jim Butterfield, a telecommunications executive who has written a book and several articles on home computers.

"They just want to find out what these things are. They want to test themselves and rise to the challenge to see if they can make them do something."

Robert Lando, who at age 15 has already marketed a computer variation of the old "hangman" word game, says home computers give operators more control than larger, "mainframe" computers.

"You have control over what is happening with the little machines—a control which you lose with the larger machines. With them you end up working with little bits of somebody else's computer."

The first microcomputer company, Micro Instrumentation and Telemetry Systems of Albuquerque, N.M., got its start when thousands of people sent money in response to a single ad offering a build-it-yourself computer kit.

One of the leading home computer manufacturers, Apple, with $200 million in sales last year, grew out of a garage experiment by two young men who wanted to see if they could build a computer.

But the real growth has been in software—the programs which are fed into the computers to make them do specific things. Nearly all commercial software programs come from hobbyists who invent them on their machines.

Instant Software of Peterborough, N.H., receives about 40 programs a week from people who want the company to market them. Of the 3,000 they have received, 250 are on the market or will be soon. The inventors receive a royalty of about 20 per cent on the programs, which retail from $10 to $200.

David Gordon, president of California-based Programmers International, estimates it takes 100 hours to devise a program and 200 hours to write it down and the relative ease with which programs can be invented has led to the explosion of interest in computer software.

"It truly is a new cottage industry, fashioned by experimenters in basements and workrooms, and all the software companies will do is provide services the individual doesn't have the means to perform for himself," says Alexander Curran, assistant vice-president for technology planning at Northern Telecom Canada Ltd.

"The software companies will put their tentacles out to find where the interesting programs are and they will market them, but the innovation will still come out of that cussed man in his garage sitting behind his computer and working something out for himself."

The field may grow even further with the increasing availability of "turnkey systems"—computer programs for business or home which can be used by a complete novice.

—CP

Disco or hospital, Herbie Too a hit

Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Before 7 a.m. one day, the automatic garage door at Harold D. Aggeler's house rumbled open and a cylindrical metal object moved slowly down the driveway.

The radio-controlled robot headed for the morning newspaper, its single arm nearly scraping the ground. It grasped the paper and returned to the garage.

A few mornings later, as Aggeler directed the robot to the newspaper, he noticed neighbors peering from their windows. Before long, people in cars were lining the street at paper time.

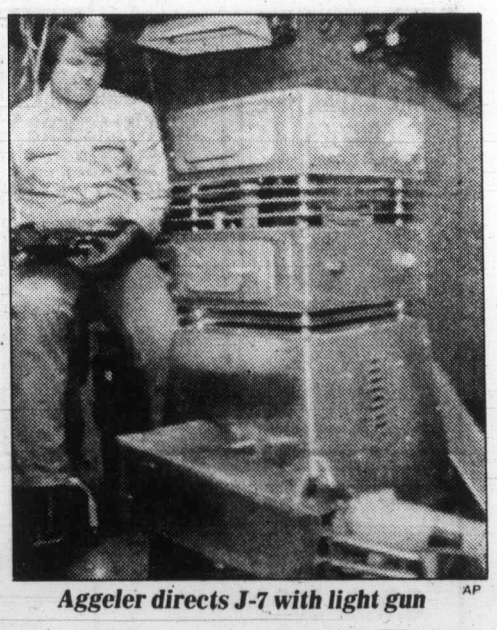

That was nine years ago.

"Most people believe that if you build robots you're this tall," Aggeler says, holding his hand about four feet off the ground, "and you wear thick glasses and walk with a limp."

The description doesn't fit Aggeler, a self-described "ordinary guy" who is marketing manager for a technical firm. While some men collect stamps or coach Little League baseball in their spare time, the 36-year-old Aggeler builds robots in his basement.

Armed with a couple of years of technical training and after collecting parts "for ages," he was able to build Herbie, the newspaper-fetching machine.

Three robots, each 1.2 metres tall, now stand watch over Aggeler's basement workshop, which is cluttered with spare metal arms, hands, sheet metal and solid-state components.

AP

Aggeler directs J-7 with light gun

His recently completed J-7 is shaped like a four-sided pyramid with claw-like hands. Its radio controls have a one-mile range, it can broadcast any cassette tape and it can "talk" via a hand-held microphone within 60 metres.

Three wheels allow J-7 to move and turn quickly and accurately. His arms move much like a human's, and his hands can grasp and carry things, such as the pulsating light gun Aggeler's young son provided for J-7.

But it was Herbie Too, the second robot Aggeler completed in 1973, that stole his creator's heart.

Herbie Too made the original one-armed model look almost primitive. His rounded-aluminum body, glass-domed head with facial features and whirling radar on top make him look friendly, a quality that endears him to children.

Herbie Too has made frequent trips to hospitals to cheer up children. His rubber hands can grasp the handles of a child's wheelchair and push it down the halls.

Sometimes Aggeler takes his robot to a disco.

"I'll order a drink at the bar, and ask the bartender, 'Do you mind if I bring my robot in?' " The bartender usually says it's OK, and Aggeler's companion rolls in.

Hypoglycemia symptoms not exclusive to the disease

Your Good Health
By PAUL G. DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Why do doctors think hypoglycemia isn't worth looking into? I had it for 30 years before I found out that was what was causing me to feel the way I did. I could have ended up in a mental hospital. I had to read up on it to finally discover that I had to stay on a diet of high protein. — A.F.

It is not a reluctance to diagnose hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) so much as a tendency to discount it in most people who think they have it. The symptoms —nervousness, sweating, tremulousness, heart palpitations, headache—are far from being exclusive to that disease. Many people experience some or all of these symptoms without having low blood sugar.

Too, it's important to observe a patient for some length of time before making even a tentative diagnosis. Once low blood sugar is suspected, things don't get any simpler.

There are two kinds. One is due to an insulin-producing tumor of the pancreas. Insulin, as you know, causes sugar to leave the bloodstream and enter the cells of the body to nourish them. Normally, the pancreas keeps the blood sugar at an ideal level; as sugar enters the body cells, its insulin production stops.

But if there is an insulin-producing tumor of the pancreas, insulin keeps being made. More and more sugar is drawn from the bloodstream and you have hypoglycemia. This is a rare condition, and to test for it the patient must fast, sometimes for as long as 72 hours, so the doctor can watch what the blood sugar level is doing.

The more common kind of hypoglycemia is "reactive." People with this have symptoms a few hours after eating. When they fast, their blood sugar is normal. That distinguishes their problem from the one involving a pancreatic tumor.

Reactive hypoglycemia is diagnosed by having the person drink a sugar solution and then checking blood sugar levels for four to six hours. If there is an unexpected drop, the diagnosis can be made if the patient has the symptoms during the drop. A protein regimen (six daily feedings) helps. Carbohydrates are kept at a minimum to avoid the same thing happening that occured when the sugar solution was drunk during the test.

I am glad you are feeling so much better on your diet. You are fortunate to have found your problem and its cure. No one can argue with success. But it is true that low blood sugar is too easily diagnosed (by patients) and too seldom confirmed by tests. When an ailment gains wide publicity, as has hypoglycemia in recent years, this happens.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Quite some time ago a lady wrote you asking for advice on how or with what she might treat a very painful heel. A friend of mine advised me when I complained about my heels and my husband's heels giving us so much pain. She said her doctor told her to buy a package of foam rubber powder puffs, the kind ladies use in compacts.

Place one in the heel of each shoe (for men). Women can place these inside their hose to hold them in place when wearing sling pumps, etc. The doctor said she would probably think he was crazy, but it stopped the aching. I tried it. My husband tried it, and several friends tried it after doctors had been unable to help. It works. — Mrs. M.A.R.

That is a very good idea. I'm going to try it myself.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please discuss platelets. Is prednisone used when a person has too few platelets in the blood? What does it do? — D.M.

Having too few platelets is called thrombocytopenia (platelets are also called thrombocytes). Since platelets make clots, a very low count causes bleeding problems.

Sometimes the platelets get coated with antibodies. This makes them have a shorter life because they tend to be removed from the blood earlier than normal. This is where the prednisone comes into the picture. It lengthens the life of antibody-coated platelets and also helps slow down the production of antibodies. This is why the drug is used in thrombocytopenia.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is it true that blood gets thicker in wintertime? — P.J.

Blood doesn't get thicker in wintertime. Many factors may boost the production of red blood cells—low oxygen at higher elevations, for example—but cold weather is not one of them. I'll anticipate the next question by saying that blood does not get thinner in the summer.

Taking control of heart

NEW YORK (UPI) — The American Heart Association, taking issue with a recent report, says evidence shows controlling cholesterol and fat intake is an effective strategy against heart disease.

The AHA report, previewed at a news briefing this week, reaffirms most of the dietary and lifestyle factors implicated in development of stroke and heart attack during the last 20 years.

Guidelines in the report to be published in the August issue of Circulation, a medical journal, are the first revision of a 1968 document on the same subject for the nation's doctors.

They said many Americans have been heeding advice to control risk factors and, as a result, there has been an unprecedented dip in deaths from stroke and heart attack.

In an unusual step, AHA officials said the new report was circulated in advance of publication because of the "confusion" over conflicting statements on dietary fat and cholesterol, AHA officials said.

"The atmosphere for this conference includes some confusion on the part of the American people, in part due to reaction to and interpretation of the recent report from the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences," said Dr. Thomas N. James, AHA president.

Hiking expert's first rule is keep it simple

Author explores new trails

By SANDY SENYK

MONTREAL (CP) — Elliott Katz has some plain advice for those who are thinking of taking up the growing pastime of backpacking: keep it simple.

Katz, a 25-year-old Montrealer, is author of the Complete Guide to Backpacking in Canada, a how-to and where-to handbook for hikers recently published by Doubleday Canada Ltd.

"I decided to write it because it was the kind of book I had been looking for for a long time," Katz says.

"I remember a trip to British Columbia, when I was looking at a map and I could see all these parks. I kept wondering how do you get to them? What's there?

"Trails in the United States are really well-known, but I wanted to show that there are just as many opportunities for good backpacking in Canada."

Guide has informative nuggets of how-tos and with-withs of backpacking in Canada

Katz, who teaches classical guitar when he isn't on the trail, has hiked in British Columbia, Alberta, the Yukon, Ontario, Quebec and several New England states.

The result of his year's research and writing is a 250-page guide, divided into two sections.

The first part deals with the how-tos and what-withs of backpacking.

"There are lots of books on the subject, but what I tried to do was keep it simple. Some of them get so complicated."

For a neophyte backpacker, it's an all-in-one guide with many useful nuggets of information. It is readable and often amusing.

Katz starts quite literally at ground level, with advice on how to walk in the wilderness—which isn't exactly like walking downtown.

He spends considerable time describing essential equipment. Anyone who has visited an outdoor sports store knows there is a bewildering range of equipment available, some of it extremely sophisticated and much of it breathtakingly expensive.

"Backpackers can sit around and talk about equipment for hours and hours," he says, rolling his eyes.

His own backpack is an elderly, frayed-looking nylon bag on an aluminum frame, to which he has added extra pockets and zippers. It's hardly pretty, but the bag suits his purposes.

He recommends a framepack rather than a rucksack because the frame bears the load higher on the back for better balance. And he strongly suggests a pack with a waist strap, which transfers the weight from the shoulders to the hips.

Forget those professional-looking mountain climbers' boots, Katz says. Their soles don't bend and they aren't meant for walking long distances. Instead, opt for light- or medium-weight hiking boots.

"Buy them at a store where they are knowledgeable and will fit you properly."

For the first couple of hikes, a beginner will do well in work boots or even running shoes.

As for tents, the range of exotic designs and prices is "crazy."

"The idea is not to get carried away," he says. What is desirable in a tent is a fly—the extra roof that helps keep out rain—and good mosquito netting.

After that it's a question of preference and your pocketbook.

"My tent cost $25. It probably costs $35 today."

There are also sections on sleeping bags, lightweight stoves and clothing.

And bugs. And map reading. And cooking on the trail. He even has a suggestion on growing alfalfa sprouts in a backpack to add spice to a wilderness meal.

For those interested in more challenging experiences, Katz has chapters on hiking with children and winter camping.

Perhaps most important, he includes a chapter on the new ethics of backpacking. As a rapidly growing sport that is attracting crowds to the forests and mountains, hiking demands a keen understanding of the effects of human intrusion on the wilderness.

The second section of the book, Katz acknowledges, is its real raison d'etre. It is a province-by-province guide of all the chief backpacking areas in Canada, garnered from the superintendents of provincial and national parks as well as the country's various trail associations.

There are maps, trail lengths, information on temperatures and weather, history and addresses where guidebooks and maps can be obtained.

British Columbia and Ontario have familiar hiking routes, but "there are marked trails in just about every part of the nation."

For the adventuresome, Katz suggests a trail through the rocky barrens of Newfoundland or a trip on the Pangnirtung Pass trail of Baffin Island.

Katz's own favorite? "That would be the West Coast Trail on Vancouver Island," he says, his eyes lighting up with the memory.

"I was on it for nine days. That's rain forest and there were only two days when it didn't rain.

"But there are miles of beaches and you can see the whales playing in the ocean. I remember going down to pick up mussels . . . oh, it was spectacular."

She must get therapy to break dangerous habit

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: When I was in high school I was fat and miserable. Staying on a diet was impossible, and I hated myself.

I read in your column about a girl who had the habit of gorging herself and then throwing up. You told her it was dangerous and to stop it before she ran into serious physical and emotional problems.

I decided I was smarter than you and that it was a neat way to take off weight and stay thin. Since that time, I have been forcing myself to throw up three or four times a week. That was 10 years ago. I am still not thin but I have done some awful things to myself. Please let me use your column to warn anyone who may be tempted to try it.

After throwing up, I feel physically exhausted. My skin becomes blotched and greenish in color. My eyes hurt and I get sores around my mouth.

As the years go by it is harder and harder to make myself throw up. When I was 16 I used my finger. Now I use all sorts of instruments and have to stick them farther down my throat. Sometimes it takes me an hour or more to vomit.

I am trapped in this behavior and am so embarrassed I haven't been able to ask for help. It's horrible, just like drug addiction or alcoholism, because it controls me. The more I do it, the worse I feel and the more I want to do it again. I know it's crazy, but aren't all addictions?

Can you tell me more about the damage I am doing to my eyes, ears, stomach, skin and glands in my throat? It might help me stop. Thank you. — Having A Devil Of A Time In Denver

Dear Denver: Telling you more about the damage you are doing to your body will not help you stop. You are trapped in a compulsive pattern of behavior and common sense won't work.

You need the help of a trained professional, and I urge you to get it at once. Look in the phone book under "mental health." You can get counselling for little money or maybe without charge. Get going immediately and please let me hear from you. I want to know how you are doing.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I was told by a knowledgeable person that it is against the law to engage in sex with a female sheep. The reason given was that the offspring of such a relationship would be half-sheep and half-human. This person also said the reproductive system of the female sheep is almost identical to that of a human, which is why the sheep would become pregnant.

I realize this sounds awfully crazy, but it was explained to me in such a logical and convincing way that I believe it. Please advise me of the validity of this statement in the paper. I need to show it to a person in the office who claims it's a lot of nonsense. — Ba-Ba-Baffled In Trenton, N.J.

Dear Trenton: Have you ever heard of a half-sheep, half-human? Well, neither has anyone else. A few years ago someone wrote and asked me the same question about a dog. I replied, "No way." I was promptly inundated with letters from readers who said they had heard of babies born of such unions, covered with hair, that barked and had tails.

Nowhere in medical literature is there any evidence of half-human, half-animal births. You can bet the rent that I am right about this.

Challenge in hospital for women chaplains

TORONTO (CP) — Women chaplains are finding the responsibility and challenge they seek—not in churches but in hospitals.

More and more hospitals are hiring women chaplains who find they can perform on an equal footing with men; something often denied them in a church setting.

The job market is growing for both men and women as hospitals start to treat a patient's spirit as well as the body and mind—but there are times when a woman has the advantage.

Rev. Culleen Bryant, supervising chaplain at Toronto Western Hospital, said her patients, including men, are often more relaxed because she is a woman. Men "feel more comfortable crying in front of a woman."

Rev. Bryant, ordained 15 years ago, practised seven years in team ministries with men before she finally realized: "I would never get a church of my own, and as a woman, I wasn't considered an equal partner."

Too often, she found herself steered into the female-dominated field of Christian education, which was important to her but seldom provided either the challenge or the responsibility she wanted.

In one team ministry she found her male partner did not trust her with a fair share of the duties, nor did the congregation show confidence she could handle the whole range of clerical duties.

"It really hit home once when he was on holiday and I was the acting pastor," she said. "A family actually called in an outside male minister to perform a funeral instead of calling on me.

"I realized then I was just a little girl in their eyes. I could see my future as the deaconess handing out crayons at Sunday School.

"It will take the church and the community a long time to realize women can do everything a man can."

Rev. Floyd Green, chaplain of a Toronto mental health centre and secretary of the Canadian Association of Pastoral Education—which trains clergy to become institutional chaplains—knows the problem well.

"In the church, as in society at large, women are the last hired and the first fired," he said. "Regardless of recent history, women in the church find it harder than a man to find a parish of their own.

"But hospitals, being secular institutions, cannot shirk their responsibility to provide equal opportunity as easily as a church can."

LIVING

Food cache eases strain

VANCOUVER (CP) — A growing uncertainty about the future has created burgeoning sales of dehydrated foods, says retailer Ralph Sadler.

Sadler's Survival and Health Foods store sells dehydrated food products to distributors and wholesalers across the country.

"I've never seen people so concerned as they are right now," he said in an interview.

Everyone who buys food for storage isn't necessarily waiting for nuclear war to strike, he added. Many believe the move makes economic sense.

"In 10 years you can imagine what $1,000 worth of food will be worth."

In a personal crisis such as the loss of a job, a supply of food could provide a welcome source of security, Sadler said.

Dehydrated foods, which are not the same as dried foods, have had up to 98 per cent of their water content removed. A vacuum process replaces oxygen in the tins with nitrogen to slow down the process of deterioration.

The food has a storage life of 10 to 15 years if it is kept in a cool, dry place away from sunlight. After that, it remains edible but loses some of its nutritional value.

The selection includes cereal, fruit and vegetables, milk, cheese and egg powder and soy granules flavored with beef, chicken and ham.

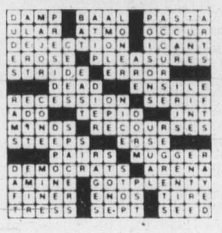

Byard Wood started putting away a supply of wheat, rice and dried foods for his family of five about seven years ago.

"It's not as if I'm waiting for a disaster," he said. "I think it's part of prudent living. There have been times when I haven't been working and having a supply of food has made the strain on the budget that much less."

THE ACES®

IRA G. CORN, JR

"Tomorrow I will live, the fool does say: Today itself's too late; the wise lived yesterday." -- Martial.

Declarer was thinking of the wrong tomorrows in his play of today's puzzling game. To make the hand, he had to think about the right todays.

There is much to be said for East bidding two spades at his first turn. Had he done so, his side may have bought a part score or may have kept South out of his makable game.

On the other hand, East may have known more about South than we, for it was East who got the plus score.

South ruffed the third spade with his low trump and crossed to dummy's diamond king for a trump finesse. Dummy's trump queen was led for a winner and another successful finesse put declarer in is own hand.

There were no more entries to the dummy and declarer had found his own tomorrow -- it was too late today to make the hand. The defense collected a trump and a club and another good game was gone forever.

To make his game, South should have ruffed the third spade with his trump nine and crossed to dummy with the diamond king. The trump finesse would then follow, but declarer would have to be careful about how he played the trumps.

First he should lead the eight from dummy, playing his four when East follows low. This maneuver leaves the lead in dummy, where declarer needs it, and the next play is the trump queen.

After this sequence of plays, East's king is captured, whether he covers or not, and declarer loses no trump tricks to land his game.

Perched on a high, sunny acre overlooking a 60-acre park is a unique and exceptionally, well-planned, family home comprising over 2400 sq. ft. on 6 levels, with 4 fireplaces, 3 bedrooms, 3 baths, sunken living room, family room, office and more. Each level provides a separate activity area. The center of activity surrounds a fabulous kitchen and dining enclave. The dining room is spacious (16'3"x14'), cedar vaulted, and has its own heatilator fireplace. Across the hall is a streamlined almond arborite kitchen, superbly outfitted for the preparation of the most extravagant feast. Adjoining is a utility and sewing room and through the sliding glass doors 900 sq. ft. of terraced decks, extend the full length of the house (also accessible from the living room and family room). Another equally exciting feature is the sumptuous master bedroom suite tucked away, at the top of the stairs, on the top level, 500 sq. ft. in all, it includes a bedroom (21'10"x10'6") with vaulted cedar ceiling, warm fireplace, and private Romeo and Juliet balcony, adjoining a huge dressing room and tiled 5-pce. (bidet) bath. Only the lingering aromas from the kitchen could lure you away. Among the many extras to tempt you are: 4 skylights, sauna, wiring for stereo throughout, exposed aggregate drive, no maintenance landscaping, floor of quarry tile, parquet oak flooring and much more but the finest feature of all is the functional flow of inter-related spaces. It is a home that captures the sophisticated concepts of modern living. See it and you'll agree. $169,000. Follow the arrows from Landsend Rd.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

309 IN MEMORIAM

BINKS - In loving memory of Margaret, who passed away July 19th, 1974.
We do not forget her, we love her too dearly,
For her memory to fade from our lives like a dream;
Our lips need not speak when our hearts mourn sincerely,
For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.
Husband Louie and family.

HUME - In loving memory of our son, Bradley, who passed away July 19, 1977. Sadly missed by Mum, Dad, Les, Brenda, Gerald, and Chris.

LAVALLEE - In loving memory of Gary Bruce who passed away July 19, 1979.
Our family circle has been broken,
A link gone from our chain;
But though we're parted for a while,
We know we'll meet again.
Some days we hope to meet you,
Some day, we know not when,
We shall meet in a better land,
And never part again.
We shall meet with many a loved one
That was torn from our embrace,
We shall listen to their voices,
And behold them face to face.
Sunshine passes, shadows fall,
Love's remembrance outlasts all.
Sadly missed, Mom and Dad, brothers Ray and Garth, sisters Gaye, Wendy, Jo-Anne and families.

LAVALLEE-In loving memory of a dear brother and uncle, Gary, who passed away July 19, 1979.
We do not forget you, nor do we intend,
We think of you often, and will to the end;
Gone and forgotten by some you may be,
But dear to our memory you ever will be.
Lovingly remembered by Gary, Wendy, Gordon, Susan and Teresa.

Duncan Mountie given leave for appeal to Supreme Court

By DEREK RHIND
Colonist correspondent

DUNCAN — The appeal by a 30-year-old Duncan RCMP constable will be allowed to go ahead, it was disclosed here Friday.

RCMP said that the case of Constable Lorne James Harper, who was sentenced to 30 days in jail June 18, will go before the Supreme Court of Canada sometime this fall.

The leave to appeal was granted in Vancouver Friday morning, RCMP said.

In the meantime, Harper will continue doing his regular duties at the Duncan detachment until the case is dealt with by Canada's highest court.

Harper was setenced to the jail term for punching a man in the mouth during an arrest after a crown appeal.

The 30-day jail sentence, which was to have been served on weekends, was imposed by the B.C. Court of Appeal in Vancouver as it allowed the crown appeal against a conditional discharge given Harper in April of last year in Nanaimo County Court.

Harper was convicted of assault causing bodily harm to Gerald Higginson, then 23, who had been hitchhiking to Victoria from Duncan in February of 1978 and was eating at a fast-food outlet when Harper motioned him to go outside and get into a police car.

According to testimony, Higginson refused and Harper then struck him in the mouth, knocking out a tooth, and punched him in the face several more times.

A young woman cashier at a self-serve gas station protested to Harper, who told her to go back inside or he would arrest her for obstructing.

Mr. Justice James Macdonald of the appeals court said he agreed a conditional discharge was unlikely to deter other police officers from assault.

The bizarre thing about the case was that Harper was on a six-week European vacation at the time of the sentencing and apparently wasn't even aware of it.

When he got back this week, Victoria lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood said he was acting for Harper and announced Tuesday he had filed an application seeking leave to appeal the sentence to the supreme court.

Harper has been an RCMP member for about 4½ years.

ISLAND, briefly . . .

Champion sunk?

NANAIMO (CP) — Less than 48 hours before the 14th annual World Bathtub race to Vancouver from Nanaimo, defending champion Gary Deathridge of Melbourne, Australia has had his new Japanese engine disqualified by the Nanaimo bathtub society.

Deathridge's outboard developed 6.31 minimum horsepowe on a dynamometer and broke the race limit of six horsepower.

The 25-year-old maintenance engineer, said he and his mechanic will attempt to clear up the dispute with the rules committee before the start of the race.

Crewman lost

A crewman was lost aboard from the Cohu Maru 1,100 kilometres off the Vancouver Island coast Friday, the Pacific Rescue Centre reported.

The man was not wearing a lifejacket or any other life-saving gear.

No 1980 directory

The popular directory of services published by the Capital Region's Community Health Service will not be published this year because of insufficient funds to hire students, but some copies of last year's directory are still available at $9 from the Community Health Service office at 524 Yates.

Solitary tender

Only one tender, from Demaniel Valley Investments Ltd., of Sooke, was received by the Capital Region Board for construction of a new firehall at Otter Point. The bid, of $52,660, will be checked by engineering staff before being sent to the Otter Point Volunteer Fire Department for approval.

Poorer service

The New Democratic Party's communications critic Frank Mitchell (Esquimalt-Port Renfrew) said Friday the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission should hold hearings in seven communities which will be without telephone operators next year, resulting in poorer service.

B.C. Telephone Co. plans to withdraw operators from Vernon, Cranbrook, Nelson, Williams Lake, Dawson Creek and Terrace by September, 1981 and concentrate services in larger communities.

Heads PoW delegation

Lionel Speller of Saanich will head a delegation of former Canadian prisoners of war to the national convention of American Ex-Prisoners of War, Inc.

Schools defended on 3 fronts

ST. ANDREWS, N.B. (CP) — Representatives of teachers, trustees and parents agreed Friday to join forces to fight what they see as an attack on education programs by budget-cutting governments.

Former Saanich school board chairman and B.C. School Trustees Association president Rubymay Parrott, now president of the Canadian School Trustees Association, challenged the Canadian Teachers Federation to work more closely with trustees and others who are interested in education and want to press for needed change.

Pascal Chisholm of Saint John, N.B., elected the new president of the federation at its annual meeting here, said accepting the challenge to co-operate would be a priority for his term.

"This is something we've talked about for years," Chisholm said at the end of the federation's three-day annual meeting here. "We've worked too long in isolation and sometimes in opposition . . . to trustees and parents."

Chisholm said teachers were being forced to act now to combat threatened job security and jeopardized teaching programs that have resulted from a low priority on education.

Chisholm said new educational programs would mean new jobs—a vital concern to teachers faced with layoffs and school closures as enrolment continues to decline.

He said teachers are also concerned that schools should be prepared to meet new demands that will be placed on graduates by rapid changes in society.

NANAIMO — A fisheries research scientist who formerly headed the groundfish program at the Pacific Biological Station here has been appointed director of the resource services branch, fisheries and oceans, Pacific region.

Dr. Richard Beamish, 37, was appointed director of the fisheries' scientific and technical arm by Dr. Wally Johnson, Pacific region director-general.

Beamish's new responsibilities will include the direction of salmon, groundfish, herring and shellfish and habitat research being conducted at the Pacific Biological Station in Nanaimo; the West Vancouver fisheries laboratory, and management biology groups at Vancouver headquarters.

A native of Toronto, Beamish graduated from the University of Toronto with a bachelor of science degree in 1966 and obtained his doctorate in 1970.

He received a National Research Council post-doctorate fellowship for work at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution in Massachusetts in 1971 and then worked as a research scientist at the federal fisheries Freshwater Institute in Winnipeg, where he conducted research on the effects of atmospheric transport of pollutants on fish populations.

Published results of this work constituted the first scientific warning in North America of the effects of acid rain on freshwater lakes and fish in the Canadian and U.S. industrial heartland.

In 1974, Beamish joined the Pacific Biological Station, where he became head of the groundfish program in 1977.

Pipe go-ahead hinged on Congress vow and unions

CALGARY (CP) — It took more than a letter from U.S. President Carter guaranteeing completion of the Alaska Highway Pipeline before the Canadian government approved the project, Economic Development Minister Bud Olson said Friday.

Olson told a news conference that Ottawa's decision to approve prebuilding of southern parts of the pipeline was tenuous; it was almost a rejection.

APPROVAL required resolutions by the U.S. Congress and telegrams of support to the Canadian government from labor unions across the country, Olson said.

In an interview, Olson said that Ottawa could not rely exclusively on President Carter's support for the project, knowing Congress can overturn presidential decisions.

He said that because opposition Republicans in Congress were totally committed to the project, he doubted U.S. support would change if Carter was defeated in the November presidential election.

"I DO NOT believe that there is much risk involved in the United States welching on an agreement simply because of a change in personalities."

Olson emphasized that assurances obtained from the U.S. government were "substantially higher" than those the former Conservative government had obtained last December. At the time, current Liberal Energy Minister Marc Lalonde criticized the project as lacking "ironclad" guarantees.

OLSON charged that the Conservatives were irresponsible and endangered Ottawa's approval of the prebuild project by trying to portray the Lalonde remarks as strong opposition to the project.

"What does ironclad mean? The word and the honor of the U.S. Congress and the U.S. administration? That we have. . . .

"For that little bit of political gain trying to embarrass Marc Lalonde, unsuccessfully, they almost killed the entire project."

AND IN Kamloops, a native Indian spokesman said the Alaska natural gas pipeline would destroy the native Indians' environment and culture so that "fat cats in southern Canada can live off our resources."

Bill Wilson, president of the United Native Nations, made the comment following the federal cabinet decision Thursday to proceed.

PRINCESS IN CANADA

OTTAWA (CP) — Princess Margaret flew in Friday for a two-day rest stop before heading west to attend 75th-birthday celebrations in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Queen Elizabeth's younger sister arrived on time on the regularly-scheduled armed forces Boeing 707 passenger flight from Gatwick, England, under sunny skies and temperatures in the high 20s.

She will spend less than 48 hours in Ottawa and has no official engagements. The official visit starts in Saskatoon on Sunday afternoon when she begins a seven-day tour of six cities in the celebrating provinces.

Princess Margaret's last visit to Canada was in May 1974, when she attended Winnipeg's centennial celebrations.

She returns to Britain July 27.

Chair-bound helped on home

OTTAWA (CP) — The handicapped can apply for a special grant from the federal government to modify their homes so they can live as normally as possible, a special Commons committee was told Friday.

Jean-Remi Champagne of the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corp. said residents who are medically handicapped can get financial help under the residential rehabilitation assistance program to alter their homes.

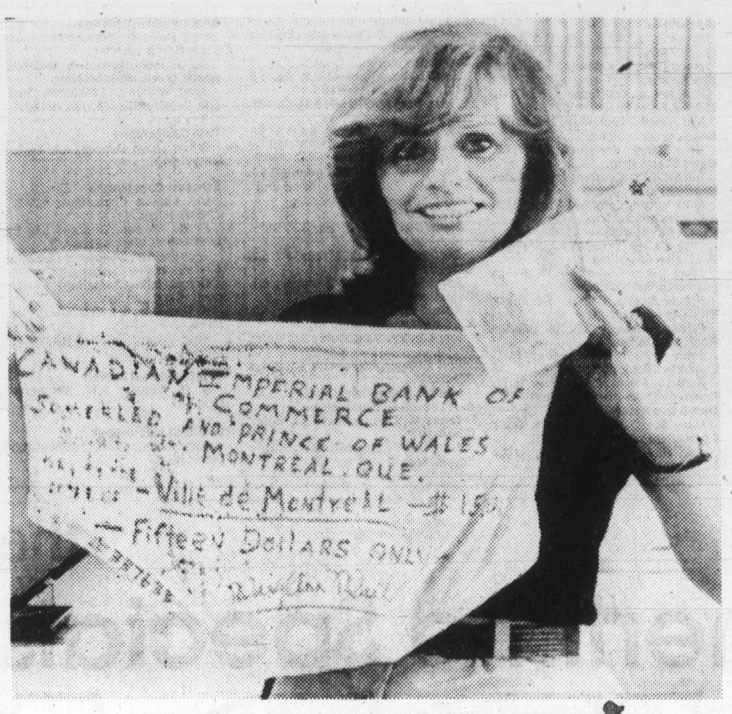

Champagne, an architect specializing in housing designed for the physically disabled, said the plan has been in effect since 1976 and that most applicants are over 65 years old.

The provision was made then that "where a dwelling is occupied by a person or persons who are medically handicapped, modifications which improve the livability of the dwelling should be regarded as eligible to the extent that assistance is available after the basic health and safety requirements have been met."

Modifications for the wheelchair-bound would mean adding entrance ramps, widening doorways, lowering cupboards and sinks and renovating washroom facilities.

Champagne was speaking before a committee of seven MPs who were appointed in May to investigate and report on difficulties affecting the disabled—the crippled, blind, deaf and persons handicapped by mental illness and retardation.

There were no figures on the number of persons eligible.

'It's an uncaring world'

OTTAWA (CP) — The industrialized world has produced uncaring people preoccupied with worries about frequency of sex, ounces of alcohol, number of days away from work and number of rooms in a house, says William Dyson, head of the Vanier Institute of the Family.

In a speech in Hong Kong Friday to delegates attending an international conference on social welfare, Dyson painted a dismal portrait of the citizens of the richer countries and stressed that poor nations should not strive for the same goals in creating freedom from hunger and want.

The most serious problem facing modern man is the loss of community ties and personal relationships, he said.

Joy and satisfaction now are "measured in days away from work, frequency of sex, ounces of alcohol, number of rooms in a house, marks at school."

Because man no longer can rely on his neighbors and community for help "we now construct social security programs, because we have lost our old way of life that provided natural social security, a social security as found in people close to us."

He said that for thousands of years man's mutual dependence on other people in his family, neighborhood and village was the basis of life and growth.

Life has changed immensely.

"In its crudest yet most prevalent terms, this way of life is epitomized today in the well-known phrase of the English-speaking world: 'Screw you Charlie, get off my turf.'"

People now have little respect for the aged, place children from broken homes with strangers, make men and women place their jobs before family needs, and use strangers to bare their souls.

Dyson offers no solutions, but says it is time now for people to help themselves and others.

Split in four of nine cases by high court

OTTAWA (CP) — The word "unduly" once again tripped up federal prosecutors as the Supreme Court of Canada threw out the conviction of three major sugar companies that controlled 90 per cent of the eastern Canada sugar market between 1969 and 1973.

In a 6-to-1 decision, the court ruled that the government lawyers had been unable to prove that the companies "unduly" lessened competition during that period.

It was one of nine judgments handed down by the court and was one of four involving dissents.

Among the others, the court ruled that:

- Manitoba can't tax Air Canada for flying over the province, for drinks served to passengers during such flights, and for landing at Winnipeg. British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia had supported Manitoba's case.
- A federal law prohibiting the dumping of harmful substances into fishing grounds is valid. Northwest Falling Contractors Ltd. of British Columbia, charged with dumping 3,000 gallons of diesel fuel into waters north of Vancouver Island, sought to have the law struck down.
- The 12 grandchildren of Nova Scotia lumber baron Roy A. Jodrey must pay succession taxes to the province of $3,784,273 left them by Jodrey, who died in 1973. The court, in a 4-to-3 split, said that three Alberta companies set up by Jodrey before his death were "mere conduits" to avoid provincial succession duties.
- Wayne Kenneth Rabey, now 26, was insane when he struck a girl friend in 1974 and must spend the rest of his life under a Lieutenant-Governor's warrant in Ontario. The decision was a 4-3 split.

In a dissenting judgment in the sugar case, Mr. Justice Willard Estey said he would have upheld the Quebec Court of Appeal judgment fining the three companies—Atlantic Sugar Refineries, Redpath Sugar Refineries and St. Lawrence Sugar Ltd.—a record $750,000 each under the Combines Investigation Act.

Estey said the three companies shared 98 per cent of the eastern sugar market for 11 years and 90 per cent for another 14 years.

"For almost a quarter of a century they remained in almost arithmetically perfect formation," he said of the trio, noting that they evidently had a tacit agreement to limit competition.

Corporate Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet could not be reached for comment. He had to apologize to Mr. Justice Kenneth Mackay after criticizing the trial judge for acquitting the sugar companies three years ago.

No mail rate hike for year

OTTAWA (UPC) — Legislation to make the post office a crown corporation will not mean any immediate increase in postal rates to cover the operation's huge annual deficit, Postmaster General Andre Ouellet promised.

While the bill has set "self-sufficiency" in the post office as a goal, Parliament will have for the time being to subsidize those deficits, currently running at about $500 million a year, he said.

Ouellet Thursday introduced to the House of Commons the long-awaited legislation that will turn the 66,000-employee post office into the crown Canada Post Corp. by fall.

Ouellet said postage rates—which now stand at 17 cents for first class letters—will be set by the new corporation but the public will be able to file an appeal with the Canadian Transport Commission.

The avowed goal of self-sufficiency "could be achieved over a number of years," he said. But increases in rates wouldn't be allowed in the coming year.

Jean-Claude Parrot, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, welcomed the legislation and said it would improve labor-management relations but not solve all the problems in the troubled postal system.

"It's a good thing for postal workers," he said. "We will have free collective bargaining . . . and for post office management it will allow them the proper authority to take decisions in negotiations and administration."

Heat won't lift Canada food tab

TORONTO (CP) — The head buyer for a fruit and vegetable wholesale firm that imports produce from the southern United States said Friday that the heat wave in the U.S. should not mean increased prices to Canadian consumers next fall.

Nick Luciano, who buys about 85 per cent of the produce for F. G. Lister Wholesalers at the Ontario Food Terminal, said in an interview that consumers should ignore reports about rising prices as a result of the drought "because the fears of imported produce shortages simply doesn't exist."

"For one thing, the bulk of the produce we import from Texas is grown in the lower Rio Grande Valley which hasn't been as hard-hit as other regions in the state."

Also, Texas farmers "don't start planting until the fall—the first cabbage isn't ready for pulling until late November."

Two new leaders in race for heaviest-fish crown

Two new leaders have emerged in the King Fisherman Contest competition for heaviest fish.

Gordon Richards, 800 Royal Oak, takes over the small-mouth bass lead with a 6¼-pounder from Elk Lake caught on Bomber. He breaks the tie lead held by Kent Moss and Russ Walker who caught 5¾-pounders in Langford and Elk Lakes.

Richards is in line for the King Fisherman trophy and as a Colonist subscriber is also in line for the merchandise prize, a waterproof wristwatch from the Old Gold Shop, should his lead hold up throughout the contest.

He weighed his catch in at Royal Oak Automotive.

Visitor Rhonda Epperson from Nampa, Idaho, takes over the coho lead with an 11-pounder caught at Secretary Island on minnow and weighed in at Sooke Harbor Marina.

Epperson is in line for the King Fisherman trophy but she is not a Colonist subscriber so is not in line for the merchandise prize. Subscriber leader is D. R. Thornley who caught a 10.3-pound coho at Norris Rocks on strip July 7.

For now the above anglers win King Fisherman Contest fun decals.

Eagle soars on tricky Atlantic flight

Sarmont starts long solo flight from Farmingdale —AP

FARMINGDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Suspended from a red and yellow motorized hang glider named The Spirit of California, Eagle Sarmont took off from Republic airport Friday in his attempt to make a solo crossing of the Atlantic.

In a trip reminiscent of the famous New York-to-Paris flight by Charles Lindbergh, Sarmont wobbled off the runway and headed for the Statue of Liberty, his official starting point two hours away.

He had perfect weather for takeoff but was delayed almost two hours, partly because of a leaky battery but mostly because of a crowd of more than 75 film crews, reporters and spectators who hampered last-minute preparations.

Wearing a T-shirt with the name of the craft emblazoned across the back and sitting in a hammock seat under the glider, Sarmont waved to his girl-friend as he lifted off.

It will not be a non-stop venture like Lindbergh's aboard the Spirit of St. Louis 50 years ago.

Sex bias erases draft sign-up

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The U.S. government's draft registration of men, scheduled to begin Monday, is unconstitutional on grounds it discriminates against women, a federal court panel ruled Friday. The court "permanently enjoined" the government from requiring the registration of any male.

It means the government cannot proceed with registration unless it obtains a stay of the ruling from a U.S. Supreme Court justice pending an appeal to the entire Supreme Court.

"Complete exclusion of women from the pool of registrants does not serve important governmental objectives," ruled Appeal Judge Max Rosenn and District Judges Joseph Lord and Edward Cahn.

A U.S. justice department spokesman, Robert Stevenson, said in Washington that the government filed a notice of appeal and a motion for a stay of the court's ruling but Lord denied the request.

Missippi Democratic Representative G.V. Montgomery, chief sponsor of the peacetime draft registration bill, said in Meridian, Miss., the court's action could "be a disaster for the security of our country."

In Boston, meanwhile, a federal judge refused to block next week's scheduled registration of 20-year-old men but referred his decision to an appeals court for review.

"Women do serve a useful role in the military and provide important skills," Cahn wrote in the 41-page Philadelphia opinion.

"Congress could not constitutionally require registration under the Military Selective Service Act of only black citizens, or only white citizens, or single out any political or religious group simply because those groups contain sufficient persons to fill the need of the selective service system," he said.

Registration of four million men was to start in post offices across the U.S. on Monday. Failure to register was punishable by up to five years in prison and a fine of $10,000.

The challenge to the registration law was brought by the American Civil Liberties Union on behalf of two former draft resisters —David Sitman, 26, and Robert Goldberg, 27—and Owen Jones, 19, who intervened on behalf of current draft-age men.

In Boston, lawyers for three college students argued before U.S. District Judge Walter Jay Skinner that peacetime registration amounts to an unconstitutional invasion of privacy. They also raised the issues of sex and age discrimination, the legality of a draft when there are no hostilities, and the justification for a government intrusion that could lead to death.

Europe soaked and shivering

● U.S. heat wave toll tops 1,000. Page 3

● Sizzler won't hit Canada food costs. Page 51

LONDON (UPI) — An advertisement for anti-freeze in a London street market said it all: "Mix some with your suntan oil."

As much of the southern United States blisters in 40-degree sunshine, Europe is suffering one of its harshest summers in recent memory.

Rain and low temperatures damaged vineyards in France and West Germany, delayed the grain harvest in Britain, clogged mountain passes with snow in Austria and Switzerland and ruined thousands of summer vacations across the continent.

Olympics athletes find it too cold to train in Moscow.

It is France's coldest summer in 22 years. Beaches are half empty and hoteliers are facing a 30 to 50 per cent drop in business.

West Germany's rainfall is 130 per cent above normal and its hours of sunshine 30 to 70 per cent less. Temperatures have barely made it to 15 degrees.

Even the birds are leaving. Ornithologists report that migratory birds already have begun flying south, apparently because the rain is washing away many insects they eat.

Britain, with one of its wettest summers on record, has been given a forecast no better than "unsettled" conditions. Wheat and barley crops are three weeks behind schedule.

For only the third time in 70 years, Swiss farmers have brought their cattle down from summer pastures in the Alps because of heavy snowfalls.

Odd parade to Olympics

MOSCOW (AP) — The opening ceremonies today of the Olympic Games—the world's most famous sports fashion show—will have an odd look. (See also Page 25)

The name boards of 81 countries are expected to be carried in the parade. But for 10 of them, there will be no athletes marching, and 29 will not carry their national flags according to tradition.

This is all part of the reaction to the Soviet military action in Afghanistan, which has prompted 36 countries to boycott the Moscow Games. Many national Olympic committees which decided to support the Games did so in defiance of their national governments.

The Australians, one of the last delegations to make up its mind, decided Friday to march in the parade as usual. But they will use the flag of the International Olympic Committee—the symbol with the five rings—and not their national flag.

A similar gesture is planned by 28 other countries.

Six months ago this would have been a breach of the Olympic rules. But last February at Lake Placid, N.Y., the IOC—for reasons that had nothing to do with Moscow and Afghanistan—changed the rule about flags in the opening parade.

This was a manoeuvre to try to bring the two Chinas into the Games for the first

Rations of beer dry up

They put a two-dozen limit on beer at the government liquor stores Friday, but by evening it didn't really matter. There wasn't any to be had.

With the uncertainty of the brewery dispute still hanging over its head, a thirsting public hit the stores early in the day once again and—like some giant vacuum cleaner—sucked up whatever supply there was.

"It's unreal," said a harried employee long after the Foul Bay store had gone dry. "Lately this store has sold four times its normal amount.

"Talk about your hoarders. Once they say the stuff is rationed everyone wants it, even people who never drink it.

"Pretty soon the little old ladies who normally sip white wine will be coming in for the beer just because there's a limit on it."

The two-case limit, imposed by the B.C. Liquor Distribution Branch, matches a situation that existed in the industry shutdown two years ago.

But the difference this time is that there hasn't even been a shutdown.

The three major brewers —Labatt, Molson and Carling-O'Keefe—are in a position to implement a lockout, but haven't done so. The Victoria local of the Brewery, Winery and Distillery Workers Union has a strike mandate, but hasn't been in a hurry to serve strike notice.

The distribution branch says liquor stores throughout the province have been told they are to impose the two-case limit if their supplies are well below normal.

The Gorge store on Tillicum put the two-case limit into action during the day but still sold its one shipment of 2,000 cases in 90 minutes.

The big McKenzie Avenue store remained without beer all day. It was hoping for a delivery today. Most stores didn't know whether they would be receiving anything.

Workman dies, hit by panel

A 55-year-old worker at the site of the new Helmcken Road hospital was killed in an industrial accident Friday.

The man, whose name was withheld pending notification of next of kin in West Germany, was operating a scissors hoist to handle decking panels used in pouring concrete floors at the hospital, Colwood RCMP said.

The operation involves pushing the hoist platform against the panel, removing scaffolding which normally holds the panel up, and then lowering the panel.

As one of the forms was being lowered it caught on one side, flipped over and hit the hoist operator as it fell to the ground.

Inflation hits 10%, no action till fall

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers, faced with price increases above 10 per cent for the first time since late 1975, have to wait until fall for measures from the Liberal government to combat inflation, Prime Minister Trudeau indicated Friday.

After Statistics Canada released figures earlier in the day showing an annual increase of 10.1 per cent in the June consumer price index, Conservative leader Joe Clark challenged the prime minister in the Commons to produce a economic statement by the end of August.

Instead, Trudeau promised a budget before the end of the year which would do more than the defeated Conservative budget to bring down inflation.

However, a fall budget would only affect the economy in 1981 when prices were expected to rise less quickly following an end of the current recession.

A 2.2 per cent month-to-month jump in food prices is the sharpest rise in the over-all monthly increase of 1.1 per cent in the index, a commonly-used but not fully accurate measure of inflation.

The combined effect of higher import costs and domestic factors such as poor weather conditions, especially a drought in western Canada, created a worrisome outlook for food prices in months ahead.

● In Washington, officials said the U.S. economy plunged at an annual rate of 9.1 per cent from April through June, matching the worst quarterly drop since the Second World War, the government announced Friday.

The steep downturn, as measured by real gross national product—the inflation-adjusted output of goods and services —was widespread and steeper than the administration expected.

About 90 per cent of the second-quarter drop was attributed to two sectors of the economy, the auto and housing industries.

● Britain's annual inflation rate fell by nearly one per cent to 21 per cent in June, the first significant drop for two years, the government said Friday.

Bakhtiar stalking ends in shootout

PARIS (AP) — A three-man assassination squad posing as journalists made it as far as Shahpour Bakhtiar's apartment door Friday, but their attempt to kill the former Iranian prime minister collapsed in a wild shootout that left a French policeman and a woman neighbor dead.

All three gunmen were captured, one of them wounded, police said. Three other policemen were also reported wounded in the battle.

The 65-year-old Bakhtiar, leader of Iranian exile forces opposed to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary regime in Iran, was unharmed in the attack, which he blamed on "professionals that the government in Tehran sent to France."

Police said the captured trio all claimed to be Arabs —a Syrian, a Lebanese and a Palestinian—but they could not be immediately identified. The Iranian revolutionaries have established close relations with some Arab militants.

B.C.'s export-tax salvo may signal referendum

By JIM HUME
Colonist staff

B.C. fired another salvo at Ottawa Friday, charging that plans to impose an export tax on natural gas "attacks the very fabric of Confederation."

The man pulling the trigger was again provincial Energy Minister Robert McClelland and some observers viewed his latest outburst in the war between the west and Ottawa as the opening shots in a campaign which could lead to a fall referendum.

Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed is already on record as saying that unless east-west energy differences can be amicably solved he would not "hesitate to present a particularly-worded question" to the people of Alberta.

That "particularly-worded question" would undoubtedly be in the form of a referendum seeking public support for Alberta's stand on higher oil prices and against the export tax on natural gas.

PREMIER Bennett has not yet followed that line but has admitted that such a show of strength from the people could be a possibility.

In an "open letter" Friday to all newspaper editors in B.C., McClelland added fuel to the fires of speculation.

From a bold first statement that "the federal government intends to impose an export tax on all energy exports from this country" to a closing accusation that Ottawa was attempting to rob the provinces by "offering dimes for dollars," McClelland gave full vent to his concerns.

His opening statement that the imposition of an export tax was already a fait accompli came as a surprise to reporters who only a few hours before had been writing that Ottawa had still not decided whether to go ahead with the tax or drop the idea.

McCLELLAND left no doubt that as far as he was concerned the tax would be imposed and that "the direct impact on this province will be severe and will do irreparable damage to the unity of Canada."

Accusing the federal government of confusing energy and constitutional matters, he said the export tax would cost B.C. taxpayers a loss of $750 million a year.

"Make no mistake," he said, "any tax on exports will skim off the cream and drink up most of the milk as well."

In the strongest language yet used in the east-west fight for control of provincial natural resources and the export of excess energy, McClelland said the loss of $750 million a year in revenue to B.C. would have serious repercussions in the provision of services to all British Columbians.

"In the current budget $750 million would pay

Airport study against moving

COURTENAY — It is unlikely that commercial air services will ever be relocated from Comox to Cumberland, according to a position paper prepared by T. M. Thomson and Associates.

The firm was retained by Comox-Strathcona Regional District to study the airport feasibility and presented a position paper which was studied by the C-SRD's District 71 committee.

The position paper deals with what was termed as "the analysis of the socio-economic benefits of constructing a new airport facilities near Cumberland; to consider the alternate justifications of the relocation, and to consider how the justificaton can be made acceptable to the governing bodies concerned."

However, the paper did indicate the feasibility of constructing an airstrip of about 2,500 feet, possibly paved, with minimum terminal facilities.

It pointed out that while CFB Comox might feel that removing some services from the base would improve security and solve other problems, the commercial services could not be moved unless equivalent services were provided.

Further, the paper said, it was difficult to justify using Comox in winter and Cumberland in summer.

"It is the banning from the base of small, private aircraft that can be justified," the report said, adding that the pilots are relatively slow in getting out of the way of military aircraft and are not as consistent in flight patterns as commercial pilots.

They also require parking space, which presents security and control problems for CFB Comox.

Operations which could be transferred to a new airport near Cumberland would be private flying, a flying school, corporate aircraft requiring parking and not having permission to land at CFB Comox and any charter flights which could not obtain base landing permission.

The paper also pointed out that there does not appear any possible use of the airport by air ambulance or forestry service.

Miss Parksville crowned

She couldn't believe it

'Shock' for winner

Colonist correspondent

PARKSVILLE — Seventeen-year-old Debbie Hasler had to "listen to it again" when she heard her name called to become Miss Parksville 1980.

The competition was part of the annual Pageant Days celebrations.

Debbie, representing the Island Hall Hotel, was chosen from the 10 girls running after 15 minutes of deliberation by the judges.

"It was a shock," she confessed. "I just didn't expect anything."

She was joined by Miss Kinsmen, Gwen Klees, who was chosen first princess, and Miss Royal Bank, Karen Green, picked as second princess.

The Miss Congeniality award, handed out while the judges were deciding, went to Miss Legion, Jennifer Moore.

The new Miss Parksville was crying as she accepted the tiara and banner from last year's queen Karen Slaney and made her first official walk before the packed Community Hall.

Debbie, the oldest of four children in her family, said the pageant drew the girls together.

"It's just a happy feeling between everybody," she said.

Plans are being made to raise money so both princesses can escort Debbie on her official functions, and that "will keep us all together."

Debbie Hasler was so happy over her triumph she cried

She enjoyed the afternoon disco routine and overcame nervousness for her speech at the banquet prior to the dance.

"Once I got there it was okay," she said of her talk on smiles.

And meeting the judges wasn't that hard, she said.

"I was more relaxed around them."

She realizes she'll have to change a few things in her life as a result of the victory and admits she'll probably change "a little bit."

"But it should be a good experience."

She feels the hardest part will be being away from her family.

But even with missing out on that she looks forward to the upcoming events such as the Nanaimo Bathtub Race this weekend and the PNE in August.

The 23rd Miss Parksville said she was glad to take part in the pageant and "I'd encourage others to go in it."

And even though she's been queen for only a short time, she can't wait until the 1981 pageant to share her joy.

"I can't wait till next year to give the crown away and make somebody else happy."

Cowichan Valley

Island setting for movie of exciting race

By DEREK RHIND

Colonist correspondent

DUNCAN — The Cowichan Valley and Mt. Prevost will shortly be the scene of a full-length motion picture.

The comedy, titled 4 x 4, features four-wheel drive vehicles and their race over a mountain top.

It has a budget of $1.5 million and will be filmed between Sept. 8 and Oct. 20.

North Cowichan council at its recent meeting approved the project in principle.

Fraser Film Associates Ltd. of Edmonton were represented by Randolph Cheveldave of Victoria.

Cheveldave said he had on behalf of the company investigated the areas of southern Vancouver Island suitable for filming the required scenes "and the one area that met all the requirements for the race sequences is Mt. Prevost."

He said the filming of the race sequences will be a fairly large undertaking, spanning three to four weeks.

Mt. Prevost's main road would be used on a daily basis. In addition, tributary roads and trails would be used from time to time.

The filming will involve a crew of 30 and a number of four-wheel drive vehicles six days per week, as well as equipment vehicles, portable dressing rooms and crew transportation vehicles.

Cheveldave said there will be two major film stars. Their names could not be announced as contracts still have to be signed.

The film would involve several stunts and crashes, staged by an experienced stunt co-ordinator and executed by professional stunt personnel.

He said the production would be good for local business and would provide employment in the area.

Council expressed some concerns regarding danger of fire and other damage.

Administrator John Berikoff suggested a bond should be posted by the film company.

Ald. Alan Hussey's motion that permission be granted to the film company to use Mt. Prevost, subject to the following condition—a bond be provided, any physical changes be made only after prior agreement and consulation with the engineering department, no entry in the event of fire closure and approval of the wood lot lessee—was approved unanimously by council.

Meanwhile, council was informed by the environment ministry that a flood and erosion prevention project for Chemainus River will be undertaken by the ministry.

The work will entail bank protection by filling the bank to a 1.5-metre slope and a one-metre-thick layer of rock riprap along the bank begining 120 metres below the railway bridge and extending to the downstream end of the Hick's retaining wall.

Proposed flood protection is limited to a dike set back from the bank a distance of up to 60 metres. The dike will be 1.3 metres high and the crest elevation is 0.3 metre above the December, 1979, flood level.

Estimated cost of the project is $65,000 and construction will commence following approval of right-of-way arrangements of landowners and water management branch and fisheries agencies.

The environment ministry is hoping for early approvals from the various agencies involved since fall salmon runs will preclude work later in the year.

Ald. Tom Burge summed up the feeling of council when he said: "This is a great benefit to the municipality to have this fixed up once and for all, particularly the Chemainus River bridge footings."

The environment ministry will do all of the work involved. North Cowichan will pay a minimal share of the costs.

Still on the subject of flooding, council was forced to cut down a $13,500 creek clearing program to $7,000.

Council had originally intended to spend $13,500 for the job of clearing, with the use of a backhoe, the debris and floating vegetation from Richards Creek inlet and Somenos Creek outlet.

However, the program had to be reduced as fish and wildlife would not allow the use of a backhoe.

Ald. Burge said to undertake the project without the backhoe "would only be a temporary improvement at best."

"There is no use us spending $13,500 for something that would have to be done again next year. Now the work will all have to be done by hand from a boat. We need a long-term plan."

Acting Mayor Margaret Robertson said: "We could be throwing good money after bad if this is only a temporary measure."

Ald. Glen Ridgeway said: "We must do something to help the farmers with the problem this year."

Municipal Engineer Ken Stinson told council that a lot of the debris and floating vegetation could be removed for $7,000.

Council then approved the expenditure of $7,000 for the reduced program.

Council also agreed to hold a joint meeting with city of Duncan to further discuss North Cowichan's proposed $160,000 flood control project—the raising of Lakes Road and Beverly Street diking.

Duncan has complained that North Cowichan's project will necessitate Duncan having to spend $60,000 to alleviate possible flooding in the city caused by the North Cowichan project.

NANAIMO — A fisheries research scientist who formerly headed the groundfish program at the Pacific Biological Station here has been appointed director of the resource services branch, fisheries and oceans, Pacific region.

Dr. Richard Beamish, 37, was appointed director of the fisheries' scientific and technical arm by Dr. Wally Johnson, Pacific region director-general.

Beamish's new responsibilities will include the direction of salmon, groundfish, herring and shellfish and habitat research being conducted at the Pacific Biological Station in Nanaimo; the West Vancouver fisheries laboratory, and management biology groups at Vancouver headquarters.

A native of Toronto, Beamish graduated from the University of Toronto with a bachelor of science degree in 1966 and obtained his doctorate in 1970.

He received a National Research Council post-doctorate fellowship for work at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution in Massachusetts in 1971 and then worked as a research scientist at the federal fisheries Freshwater Institute in Winnipeg, where he conducted research on the effects of atmospheric transport of pollutants on fish populations.

Published results of this work constituted the first scientific warning in North America of the effects of acid rain on freshwater lakes and fish in the Canadian and U.S. industrial heartland.

In 1974, Beamish joined the Pacific Biological Station, where he became head of the groundfish program in 1977.

The groundfish program had the responsibility for investigating important fisheries resources within Canada's 200-mile offshore zone and coastal waters.

Beamish distinguished himself as head of the groundfish program by drawing the group into a cohesive unit and enabling it to develop many new concepts and strategies important for the management of Pacific groundfish stocks.

Beamish has published more than 60 scientific articles on fisheries-related topics.

In addition, through his regional groundfish responsibilities, he has earned the respect and support of fishermen and industry.

Married and the father of two children, Beamish will continue to live in Nanaimo.

Revival of fair?

COURTENAY — An attempt to revive the fall fair concept will be made by a group of local citizens who will sponsor a country fair.

A kickoff event is planned for the exhibition grounds Sept. 12 and 13.

Many of the people involved in the project are 4-H club leaders. It is felt by the leaders that many young people in the Comox Valley need a medium in which to display their projects and animals.

A catalogue is to be printed but only a few selected classes will be of a competitive nature this year—baking, sewing, crafts, fruits and vegetables.

The classes will qualify the group to become a registered society and apply for government grants toward next year's fair.

Classes for sheep, beef, goat and poultry will be of an exhibition nature only.

There will also be demonstrations of lace-making, wool-carding, spinning, 4-H grooming and animal shows, square dancing, horse jumping, sheep dog and dog obedience trials.

A featured event will be a draft horse demonstration followed by hay rides.

Acting president of the group is Mabel Onnes; Don Turner is vice-president; Joyce Nykamp, recording secretary; Heather McWilliam, corresponding secretary; Audrey Burgess, entry secretary; Mary Hanson, treasurer.

Constable will continue his duties

Duncan Mountie given leave for appeal to supreme court

By DEREK RHIND

Colonist correspondent

DUNCAN — The appeal by a 30-year-old Duncan RCMP constable will be allowed to go ahead, it was disclosed here Friday.

RCMP said that the case of Constable Lorne James Harper, who was sentenced to 30 days in jail June 18, will go before the Supreme Court of Canada sometime this fall.

The leave to appeal was granted in Vancouver Friday morning, RCMP said.

In the meantime, Harper will continue doing his regular duties at the Duncan detachment until the case is dealt with by Canada's highest court.

Harper was setenced to the jail term for punching a man in the mouth during an arrest after a crown appeal.

The 30-day jail sentence, which was to have been served on weekends, was imposed by the B.C. Court of Appeal in Vancouver as it allowed the crown appeal against a conditional discharge given Harper in April of last year in Nanaimo County Court.

Harper was convicted of assault causing bodily harm to Gerald Higginson, then 23, who had been hitchhiking to Victoria from Duncan in February of 1978 and was eating at a fast-food outlet when Harper motioned him to go outside and get into a police car.

According to testimony, Higginson refused and Harper then struck him in the mouth, knocking out a tooth, and punched him in the face several more times.

A young woman cashier at a self-serve gas station protested to Harper, who told her to go back inside or he would arrest her for obstructing.

Mr. Justice James Macdonald of the appeals court said he agreed a conditional discharge was unlikely to deter other police officers from assault.

The bizarre thing about the case was that Harper was on a six-week European vacation at the time of the sentencing and apparently wasn't even aware of it.

When he got back this week, Victoria lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood said he was acting for Harper and announced Tuesday he had filed an application seeking leave to appeal the sentence to the supreme court.

Harper has been an RCMP member for about 4½ years.

Gorge Vale aces earn berths in PNWGA finals

There will be a distinctly British Columbia flavor to the championship matches in the annual Pacific Northwest Golf Association tournaments today.

Former B.C. champion Dorothy DeGirolamo of Gorge Vale will play Lynn Cooke of Vancouver Golf Club in the 36-hole women's final at Uplands while Island Open champion Stu Holroyd, also of Gorge Vale, meets Brian Haugen of Tacoma in the men's final, also a 36-hole test, at Royal Colwood.

The women's matches are scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. while the men will begin play at 8 a.m. and 1 p.m.

It will be the first time in five years that DeGirolamo has participated in a 36-hole final and it's the first time she has faced Cooke, a student on a golf scholarship at Lamar University in Beaumont, Texas, in three years.

"We played in the B.C. amateur at Uplands in 1977 and I defeated Lynn on the 19th," DeGirolamo said Friday. "I hope the hot weather continues for at least another day, it's good for my swing."

Today's match will be the sixth and seventh rounds in five days for DeGirolamo and Cooke, who qualified for the final with narrow victories Friday.

DeGirolamo edged Pat Derry of Royal Colwood, one up, while Cooke, B.C. amateur finalist last week, eliminated defending champion Nancy Peck of Eugene, Ore., 3 and 2.

DeGirolamo, one down after three holes, squared the match on the fourth, went one up on the seventh and held a two-hole advantage after the 13th and 16th.

Derry made a fine birdie on the 17th to close to within one and the players halved the 18th.

DeGirolamo shot approximately 79 and Derry 80.

In the first four flight finals, Val Westell of Vancouver meets Kelly Antolock of Port Angeles, Cynthia Webber of Seattle plays Kandy Holmes of Cheyenne, Wyo., Pat Curtis of Tacoma plays Jani Japar of Seattle, and Jeannie Hopps of Uplands meets Michael Harrison of Portland.

Victorians qualifying for the other 13 flight finals were Jean Smith of Gorge Vale, Flo Chapman of Colwood, Janie Gudewill of Victoria Golf Club, Bea Breffit of Uplands, Verle McKeown of Gorge Vale, Dorothy Bigsby of Victoria, Shirley Roberts of Gorge Vale and Flora Kirker of Gorge Vale.

At Colwood, Haugen and Holroyd reached their first PNGA finals with similar victories.

Haugen, a 20-year-old student at Seattle University, defeated Dave DeLong of Portland 5 and 4 after being two up following the morning round.

Haugen was four down after four holes but rallied strongly.

The 22-year-old Holroyd, a third-year computer science student at University of Victoria, held a four-hole lead after the first round and had at least a three-hole edge for the remaining play in a 5 and 4 win over Dr. Bob Lee of Everett.

In other action, Don Gowan of Glen Meadows defeated Jeff Tachell of Seattle on the 19th hole in the championship consolation, and Steve Berry of Vancouver downed Dick Price of Portland 4 and 3. Gowan and Berry will play a 36-hole final today while the other 12 flights will be decided over 18 holes.

In Class A (40 and over) semi-finals, B.C. seniors champion Bruce Pelmore of Colwood trimmed Herb Fritz of Vancouver 5 and 4 while Dick Booth of Eugene got by Bob Davis of Tacoma 3 and 2.

LEE TREVINO plays to first green from waist-deep bunker Friday during second round of the British Open. Trevino struggled for pars on the first two holes but pulled away from field after that.

Trevino favored by rivals after padding British lead

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Lee Trevino took advantage of some better weather and shot a four-under-par 67 that put him three strokes ahead of the field Friday after the second round of the 109th British Open golf championship.

It just may be the edge he needs.

Ben Crenshaw, one of Trevino's American rivals who refused to back off, hinted it may be.

"I think Lee's playing the best of his life," Crenshaw said. "He's full of confidence, and he's the greatest front-runner in the world."

Ken Brown, the slender, soft-spoken British Ryder Cup player who was one of the few non-Americans among the leaders, certainly didn't count himself a challenger despite his lofty spot in a tie for second at 138 with Tom Watson and Jerry Pate.

"A three-stroke difference is miles and miles," Brown said. "It's even more when the man in front is a better player than you are. My hopes of winning are pie in the sky."

Trevino, with a seven-under-par 135 total for two trips over Muirfield's windswept links, obviously thought so, too.

"I figure I need to get 10 under to win," he said. "I'm seven under. I need to shoot 69, 70. And if that isn't good enough to win the 109th championship, well, I guess I'll just have to come back next year and try again."

Watson, who shared the first-round lead with Trevino, struggled most of the day. He bogeyed two of the par-five holes on the way to a 70. Pate, a former U.S. Open champion who hasn't won in almost two years, counted an eagle-3 on his way to a 67. Brown had a 68.

Even Watson, the game's outstanding player for 3½ seasons, and the mighty Jack Nicklaus agreed that Trevino's lead will be difficult to overcome.

"He's going to be a hard man to catch on this golf course," Watson said. "He's playing well, and he's not making any mistakes.

"It's going to take a superb effort to catch him."

"Obviously, I'll have to play two very good rounds," Nicklaus said. "But I'm not entirely out of touch with the tournament.

"Trevino has been playing awfully well. But he, too, is capable of shooting a 72 or 73."

Nicklaus, who won the U.S. Open title last month, matched Trevino's 67, despite a deeply-frustrating finish that included a bogey on the 18th. He was one of six tied for fifth place at 140.

Also at that figure were Australian Open champion Jack Newton, defending titleholder Seve Ballesteros of Spain and American stars Crenshaw, Gil Morgan and Andy Bean.

Ballesteros, still pleading he has no confidence and isn't feeling or playing well, managed to sink a 20-foot putt for an eagle and shoot a 68. Crenshaw also had an eagle-3 in his round of 70 and Bean had another in his 69. Morgan shot a 70 and Newton matched par 71.

"The conditions were a lot easier," Trevino said. "It was still chilly and there was some wind, but it wasn't as cold and there wasn't any rain."

The scores showed the improvement in the playing conditions.

A major exhibit was the course-record seven-under-par 64 by Argentine longshot Horacio Carbonetti. He opened with a 78 and was at par 142.

But it was Trevino's day.

Stalking and swaggering, gesturing and joking with all the flair that has made him such a gallery favorite on two sides of the Atlantic, Trevino put on a show for the large portion of the crowd of 29,673 that followed his trek over the windswept moors.

His constant chatter was interrupted by moments of intense concentration during which he delivered that flat, effective swing with such remarkable accuracy.

Veteran Rams upset

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Because a rookie has signed a $1.1-million contract, some veteran Los Angeles Rams might not report when they are scheduled to be at the National Football League team's training camp July 26.

Johnnie Johnson, All-American defensive back from Texas and the Rams' No. 1 draft pick, signed a six-year, $1.1-million pact with the team recently. In an apparent effort to calm resentment by veterans, Rams' general manager Don Klosterman said he has talked about the Johnson deal with about 20 players in the last few weeks.

Klosterman said some players inquired about renegotiating their still-running contracts upward, but were told renegotiation is against club policy.

The Rams clawed their way into the Super Bowl last January and battled defending champion Pittsburgh to a standstill until the final minutes.

"I know a lot of guys are upset," said defensive end Fred Dryer, at 34 oldest of the Rams. "Johnson's deal opened a can of worms.

"The players probably feel there has been a rupture of payroll integrity."

One Ram veteran who has a different view is quarterback Pat Haden.

"I'm delighted Johnson got what he got," Haden said. "The next time around, guys are going to have better bargaining leverage at contract time.

"His signing set a new standard for players of that calibre."

Ram officials stress that Johnson is worth it.

"This guy can play right now," said Klosterman. "In my judgment, he is going to be a major contributor to our defensive success and a major player in this league."

Hudon appeals suspension

By STAN COOPER

Joe Hudon was back on the track Friday, pending an appeal of judges' ruling into an allegation that one of his horses tested positive after a recent race at Sandown Raceway.

Hudon, defending driving champion at both Sandown and Cloverdale Raceways and one of the best harness-racing drivers in Western Canada, was taken off all drives Thursday night under a temporary suspension.

The 29-year-old driver said between races Friday that he was innocent of the charges and was appealing a 15-day suspension and $250 fine to the B.C. Racing Commission.

"I've been driving 13 years and have never been charged with even a 'cloudy' (doubtful) infraction," he said.

The horse in question, B.C. Cinder, won the 10th race at Sandown on July 10 and was tested following the race. The winner and at least one other horse are required to give a urine sample after each race.

The test on B.C. Cinder, a three-year-old black gelding was positive and Hudon was informed of the ruling by track officials.

Commission secretary Bob Collis of Vancouver said Friday afternoon that a hearing would be held as soon as possible — probably early next week — either in Victoria or Vancouver and that Hudon would be allowed to drive pending the hearing.

An official ruling will be made 48 hours after the appeal is heard.

On the track, Hudon reeled off three wins, three seconds and a third in seven drives, connecting with Little Pence in the fourth, Pardner Jove in the eighth and Irish Dawn in the feature ninth.

Keith Quinaln also had three firsts.

The 1,207 fans wagered $97,718.

Action resumes today with a 10-race card starrting at 1:30 p.m.

Blues sign ex-Cougar

After losing six of their last eight games, Victoria Blues came to the conclusion reinforcements were in order.

Wonder of wonders, they found help in their own back yard.

Blues have signed catcher Dan Rogers of Victoria to a Northwest League baseball contract. The 22-year-old is expected to dress for tonight's game against Eugene Emeralds.

Rogers, who has been playing for a Nanaimo team in the Mid-Island Senior League, is a former backup goaltender for the Western Hockey League's Victoria Cougars and has extensive background in the Victoria minor baseball system.

He played Little League locally, graduated to the Victoria Firefighters' Babe Ruth program and went on to join Farmer Construction of the Victoria Senior Amateur League.

On the field Friday, Blues snapped a three-game losing streak by edging Eugene Emeralds 8-6 at Royal Athletic Park.

Former Victoria Mussel outfielder Paul Kirsch, playing his first game for the Blues, returned in style, belting four hits in four trips, and driving in two runs with a double.

Joe Lorenz supplied three hits and two RBIs and catcher Don Hyman, Blues RBI leader, knocked in two more.

Three teams qualify for district tourney

Gordon Head, Esquimalt and Triangle qualified for the Greater Victoria district Little League baseball playoffs by scoring Friday victories in area playdowns.

Gordon Head, with Jim Senese contributing a two-run homer, trounced Oak Bay 18-7 at Lambrick Park; rightfielder Steve Reiser cracked two home runs and had four runs-batted-in as Triangle whipped Hampton 17-2 at Hollywood Park and winning pitcher Clint Bilton smacked a two-run single to lift Esquimalt to a 7-4 win over Layritz at Hillside Park.

In action tonight, Oak Bay meets Sidney, Hampton plays Lakehill and Layritz faces American. The winners move on to the six-team district playoffs at Hampton Park, starting Monday. The district champion advances to the provincial final in Vancouver early next month.

Sugar Ray to retire after 'getting' Duran

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard says he wants to fight only twice more and then retire from boxing. Of course, he wants to meet Roberto Duran again.

"I'd like to fight Duran as soon as possible, get him while he's still recuperating," Leonard said Friday. "But he's saying that he doesn't want to fight me until 1981.

"If that's the case I think I'd like to fight the winner of the Cuevas-Hearns fight in October or November, then fight Duran.

"When I beat Duran, that will be it, the end. I want to get the title back and I want to get him. Once I've done that, I'll quit."

Leonard lost the World Boxing Council version of the welterweight title to Duran in Montreal on June 20.

"I still feel as if my title was confiscated. I've looked at it on film now and there's no question in my mind about it. The problem was the judges had never seen Sugar Ray Leonard fight that way before. They didn't know what to look for.

"I hit him two punches for every one he hit me. But he kept bullying me towards the ropes so it looked like he was the aggressor. I hit him more often and I hit him cleaner."

Leonard fought Duran toe-to-toe because, he said, "I wanted to beat him at his own game."

"I want to beat Duran. He talks about moving up a weight class to try and win three different titles. If he moves up, I'll follow him. I definitely want him."

Leonard said he is determined to retire after he fights Duran again even if he is offered major financial enticements to continue in the ring. He said he doesn't need the money.

"After I won the Olympics I said that I was going to quit fighting and go to school. That didn't happen, though, because funds were low and I had to become a fighter.

"That's not a factor anymore. I'm well set financially now."

Martlet editor resigns after libel settlement

The editor of the University of Victoria's student newspaper has resigned after the student society had to pay damages to a university staff member in an out-of-court libel settlement.

A story in the June edition of the Alma Mater Society's Martlet on the resignation of Michael Elcock, manager of athletics and recreation services at UVic, made allegations about Elcock's performance which the Martlet retracted on the front page of its July edition as "completely erroneous." The article had been written by Martlet editor Geoff Weidner.

Alma Mater Society Angus Christian said Thursday that in addition to the retraction, the AMS offered to pay Elcock a $5,000 cash settlement (which was declined) and sent copies of the edition containing the retraction to all the delegates to two conferences which were taking place at UVic at the time. The conferences involved physical education and student services personnel, and as a result Elcock's opportunity for employment in his field could have been damaged by the article, the AMS agreed.

But the same edition of the Martlet which contained the retraction and apology also noted in its nameplate that "The opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily those of the AMS or the University of Victoria, and in this issue, the opinions may not even be those of the Martlet."

The first part of the statement usually appears in the nameplate, but the last clause was new.

According to AMS lawyers, it also seriously jeopardized the AMS's legal position, and Elcock's lawyers have asked for additional damages from the AMS, Christian said.

"We felt there were grounds for terminating (Weidner's) contract and were going to pass a motion to that effect," Christian said. The AMS held a meeting Wednesday, and asked Weidner to present his case, but he submitted his resignation instead, Christian said.

No new editor has yet been selected.

Merger study greeted by yawns

Colonist correspondent

PARKSVILLE — The long-awaited study on amalgamation has been greeted with yawns and disappointment by representatives of the three areas involved, Parksville, Qualicum and French Creek.

All were represented at a recent meeting with Chris Woodward, assistant deputy minister in the department of municipal affairs, when he presented the report and answered a few questions.

Parksville Mayor William Kurtz said he was "a little bit disappointed in the amount of money he (Woodward) offered," referring to the two government grants to aid in the transition. They total about $1 million.

"I was looking for more money," Kurtz said. However, he said, Woodward has "handed us something to go to the people with."

But he also said it will probably be the fall before council makes a decision on the alternatives.

Ald. Anton Kruyt was also disappointed with the amount of money offered and he felt the two alternatives were not necessarily in Parksville's best interest.

"It would cost you more to provide services (to French Creek) than you would collect in taxes," he said.

He also singled out roads as a major point of concern.

No figure is provided in the report to cover the extension of this service.

Kruyt cautioned people to be careful with their vote, should a referendum on the matter be called.

"Most people vote with their heart, not with their head," he noted.

Both Paul Smith, Area G director on the Nanaimo Region Board, and John Kennedy, president of the French Creek Residents' Association, expressed disappointment with the money offered by the government.

"I would have hoped that the grants would have been a little greater," Smith said, while Kennedy said he was "somewhat" disappointed with the amount.

"I was a little bit disappointed that there didn't appear to be any economies of amalgamaton," Kennedy added.

He pointed out budget figures were taken for Parksville and Qualicum, with French Creek expenses simply tacked on.

The water provision would be a touchy subject for the French Creekers, with the report suggesting the various systems be taken over by a central municipal council if amalgamation went through.

But Kennedy knew the problem would continue, even with amalgamation.

"We never really expected to draw water out of Parksville or Qualicum," he said.

Smith, the region's chairman, said with the proposed amalgamation "my job (as Area G director) would in fact disappear."

He said he felt the proposal would have to wait until the fall, because substantial community input is needed, and "it's pretty hard to get the community involved in the summer."

The report was not what Qualicum Mayor Art Skipsey was looking for.

"We're not interested in being part of a district municipality," he said.

"Qualicum would be better off if we stay as we are."

Skipsey had hoped the study would include the third option suggested, the so-called river-to-river proposal.

But Woodward later said the ministry had "boiled it down to two options."

As it now stands, Skipsey said, "the people of French Creek will have to decide what they want to do" before any decision can be made.

The mayor also expressed concern that should a referendum be called, the whole area involved would vote, meaning Parksville and French Creek could combine to outvote Qualicum.

He said the amalgamation offers little to Qualicum.

While it may provide a larger tax base, it will also mean more services will have to be provided, he said.

"Whatever we do, it's going to cost us more."

The electorate of the village has already made its opinion known.

A petition circulated by the Qualicum Beach Residents' Association drew 1,113 signatures, or 95 per cent of the electorate, opposing amalgamation of any form.

Eagle soars on tricky Atlantic flight

—AP

Sarmont starts long solo flight from Farmingdale

FARMINGDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Suspended from a red and yellow motorized hang glider named The Spirit of California, Eagle Sarmont took off from Republic airport Friday in his attempt to make a solo crossing of the Atlantic.

In a trip reminiscent of the famous New York-to-Paris flight by Charles Lindbergh, Sarmont wobbled off the runway and headed for the Statue of Liberty, his official starting point two hours away.

He had perfect weather for takeoff but was delayed almost two hours, partly because of a leaky battery but mostly because of a crowd of more than 75 film crews, reporters and spectators who hampered last-minute preparations.

Wearing a T-shirt with the name of the craft emblazoned across the back and sitting in a hammock seat under the glider, Sarmont waved to his girl-friend as he lifted off.

It will not be a non-stop venture like Lindbergh's aboard the Spirit of St. Louis 50 years ago.

Sex bias erases draft sign-up

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The U.S. government's draft registration of men, scheduled to begin Monday, is unconstitutional on grounds it discriminates against women, a federal court panel ruled Friday. The court "permanently enjoined" the government from requiring the registration of any male.

It means the government cannot proceed with registration unless it obtains a stay of the ruling from a U.S. Supreme Court justice pending an appeal to the entire Supreme Court.

"Complete exclusion of women from the pool of registrants does not serve important governmental objectives," ruled Appeal Judge Max Rosenn and District Judges Joseph Lord and Edward Cahn.

A U.S. justice department spokesman, Robert Stevenson, said in Washington that the government filed a notice of appeal and a motion for a stay of the court's ruling but Lord denied the request.

Mississippi Democratic Representative G.V. Montgomery, chief sponsor of the peacetime draft registration bill, said in Meridian, Miss., the court's action could "be a disaster for the security of our country."

In Boston, meanwhile, a federal judge refused to block next week's scheduled registration of 20-year-old men but referred his decision to an appeals court for review.

"Women do serve a useful role in the military and provide important skills," Cahn wrote in the 41-page Philadelphia opinion.

"Congress could not constitutionally require registration under the Military Selective Service Act of only black citizens, or only white citizens, or single out any political or religious group simply because those groups contain sufficient persons to fill the need of the selective service system," he said.

Registration of four million men was to start in post offices across the U.S. on Monday. Failure to register was punishable by up to five years in prison and a fine of $10,000.

The challenge to the registration law was brought by the American Civil Liberties Union on behalf of two former draft resisters —David Sitman, 26, and Robert Goldberg, 27—and Owen Jones, 19, who intervened on behalf of current draft-age men.

In Boston, lawyers for three college students argued before U.S. District Judge Walter Jay Skinner that peacetime registration amounts to an unconstitutional invasion of privacy. They also raised the issues of sex and age discrimination, the legality of a draft when there are no hostilities, and the justification for a government intrusion that could lead to death.

LONDON (UPI) — An advertisement for antifreeze in a London street market said it all: "Mix some with your suntan oil."

As much of the southern United States blisters in 40-degree sunshine, Europe is suffering one of its harshest summers in recent memory.

Rain and low temperatures damaged vineyards in France and West Germany, delayed the grain harvest in Britain, clogged mountain passes with snow in Austria and Switzerland and ruined thousands of summer vacations across the continent.

Olympics athletes find it too cold to train in Moscow.

It is France's coldest summer in 22 years. Beaches are half empty and hoteliers are facing a 30 to 50 per cent drop in business.

West Germany's rainfall is 130 per cent above normal and its hours of sunshine 30 to 70 per cent less. Temperatures have barely made it to 15 degrees.

Even the birds are leaving. Ornithologists report that migratory birds already have begun flying south, apparently because the rain is washing away many insects they eat.

Britain, with one of its wettest summers on record, has been given a forecast no better than "unsettled" conditions. Wheat and barley crops are three weeks behind schedule.

For only the third time in 70 years, Swiss farmers have brought their cattle down from summer pastures in the Alps because of heavy snowfalls.

Rations of beer dry up

They put a two-dozen limit on beer at the government liquor stores Friday, but by evening it didn't really matter. There wasn't any to be had.

With the uncertainty of the brewery dispute still hanging over its head, a thirsting public hit the stores early in the day once again and—like some giant vacuum cleaner—sucked up whatever supply there was.

"It's unreal," said a harried employee long after the Foul Bay store had gone dry. "Lately this store has sold four times its normal amount.

"Talk about your hoarders. Once they say the stuff is rationed everyone wants it, even people who never drink it.

"Pretty soon the little old ladies who normally sip white wine will be coming in for the beer just because there's a limit on it."

The two-case limit, imposed by the B.C. Liquor Distribution Branch, matches a situation that existed in the industry shutdown two years ago.

But the difference this time is that there hasn't even been a shutdown.

The three major brewers —Labatt, Molson and Carling-O'Keefe—are in a position to implement a lockout, but haven't done so. The Victoria local of the Brewery, Winery and Distillery Workers Union has a strike mandate, but hasn't been in a hurry to serve strike notice.

The distribution branch says liquor stores throughout the province have been told they are to impose the two-case limit if their supplies are well below normal.

The Gorge store on Tillicum put the two-case limit into action during the day but still sold its one shipment of 2,000 cases in 90 minutes.

The big McKenzie Avenue store remained without beer all day. It was hoping for a delivery today. Most stores didn't know whether they would be receiving anything.

Workman dies, hit by panel

A 55-year-old worker at the site of the new Helmcken Road hospital was killed in an industrial accident Friday.

The man, whose name was withheld pending notification of next of kin in West Germany, was operating a scissors hoist to handle decking panels used in pouring concrete floors at the hospital, Colwood RCMP said.

The operation involves pushing the hoist platform against the panel, removing scaffolding which normally holds the panel up, and then lowering the panel.

As one of the forms was being lowered it flipped over and hit the hoist operator.

Inflation hits 10%, no action till fall

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers, faced with price increases above 10 per cent for the first time since late 1975, have to wait until fall for measures from the Liberal government to combat inflation, Prime Minister Trudeau indicated Friday.

After Statistics Canada released figures earlier in the day showing an annual increase of 10.1 per cent in the June consumer price index, Conservative leader Joe Clark challenged the prime minister in the Commons to produce an economic statement by the end of August.

Instead, Trudeau promised a budget before the end of the year which would do more than the defeated Conservative budget to bring down inflation.

However, a fall budget would only affect the economy in 1981 when prices were expected to rise less quickly following an end of the current recession.

A 2.2 per cent month-to-month jump in food prices is the sharpest rise in the over-all monthly increase of 1.1 per cent in the index, a commonly-used but not fully accurate measure of inflation.

The combined effect of higher import costs and domestic factors such as poor weather conditions, especially a drought in western Canada, created a worrisome outlook for food prices in months ahead.

● In Washington, officials said the U.S. economy plunged at an annual rate of 9.1 per cent from April through June, matching the worst quarterly drop since the Second World War.

The steep downturn, as measured by real gross national product—the inflation-adjusted output of goods and services —was widespread and steeper than the administration expected.

About 90 per cent of the second-quarter drop was attributed to two sectors of the economy, the auto and housing industries.

● Britain's annual inflation rate fell by nearly one per cent to 21 per cent in June, the first significant drop for two years, the government said Friday.

Odd parade to Olympics

MOSCOW (AP) — The opening ceremonies today of the Olympic Games—the world's most famous sports fashion show—will have an odd look. (See also Page 25)

The name boards of 81 countries are expected to be carried in the parade. But for 10 of them, there will be no athletes marching, and 29 will not carry their national flags according to tradition.

This is all part of the reaction to the Soviet military action in Afghanistan, which has prompted 36 countries to boycott the Moscow Games. Many national Olympic committees which decided to support the Games did so in defiance of their national governments.

The Australians, one of the last delegations to make up its mind, decided Friday to march in the parade as usual. But they will use the flag of the International Olympic Committee—the symbol with the five rings—and not their national flag.

A similar gesture is planned by 28 other countries.

Six months ago this would have been a breach of the Olympic rules. But last February at Lake Placid, N.Y., the IOC—for reasons that had nothing to do with Moscow and Afghanistan—changed the rule about flags in the opening parade.

This was a manoeuvre to try to bring the two Chinas into the Games for the first

Bakhtiar stalking ends in shootout

PARIS (AP) — A three-man assassination squad posing as journalists made it as far as Shahpour Bakhtiar's apartment door Friday, but their attempt to kill the former Iranian prime minister collapsed in a wild shootout that left a French policeman and a woman neighbor dead.

All three gunmen were captured, one of them wounded, police said. Three other policemen were also reported wounded in the battle.

The 65-year-old Bakhtiar, leader of Iranian exile forces opposed to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary regime in Iran, was unharmed in the attack, which he blamed on "professionals that the government in Tehran sent to France."

Police said the captured trio all claimed to be Arabs —a Syrian, a Lebanese and a Palestinian—but they could not be immediately identified. The Iranian revolutionaries have established close relations with some Arab militants.

B.C.'s export-tax salvo may signal referendum

By JIM HUME
Colonist staff

B.C. fired another salvo at Ottawa Friday, charging that plans to impose an export tax on natural gas "attacks the very fabric of Confederation."

The man pulling the trigger was again provincial Energy Minister Robert McClelland and some observers viewed his latest outburst in the war between the west and Ottawa as the opening shots in a campaign which could lead to a fall referendum.

Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed is already on record as saying that unless east-west energy differences can be amicably solved he would not "hesitate to present a particularly-worded question" to the people of Alberta.

That "particularly-worded question" would undoubtedly be in the form of a referendum seeking public support for Alberta's stand on higher oil prices and against the export tax on natural gas.

PREMIER Bennett has not yet followed that line but has admitted that such a show of strength from the people could be a possibility.

In an "open letter" Friday to all newspaper editors in B.C., McClelland added fuel to the fires of speculation.

From a bold first statement that "the federal government intends to impose an export tax on all energy exports from this country" to a closing accusation that Ottawa was attempting to rob the provinces by "offering dimes for dollars," McClelland gave full vent to his concerns.

His opening statement that the imposition of an export tax was already a fait accompli came as a surprise to reporters who only a few hours before had been writing that Ottawa had still not decided whether to go ahead with the tax or to drop the idea.

McCLELLAND left no doubt that as far as he was concerned the tax would be imposed and that "the direct impact on this province will be severe and will do irreparable damage to the unity of Canada."

Accusing the federal government of confusing energy and constitutional matters, he said the export tax would cost B.C. taxpayers a loss of $750 million a year.

"Make no mistake," he said, "any tax on exports will skim off the cream and drink up most of the milk as well."

In the strongest language yet used in the east-west fight for control of provincial natural resources and the export of excess energy, McClelland said the loss of $750 million a year in revenue to B.C. would have serious repercussions in the provision of services to all British Columbians.

"In the current budget $750 million would pay

TV Starscene

By RUTH THOMPSON

In addition to being a great read in its first incarnation, "Empress," (Morrow) Sylvia Wallace's new novel is so juicy with glamour, intrigue, the use (and misuse) of power from Boston to Hollywood to the Middle East that you know it's destined for a further life on film. Should it be movies or television?

Petite, earnest, honest Sylvia starts to speak, murmurs softly what sounds like, "TV," then edits herself. (At the fledgling-writer stage of her career — before she married novelist Irving Wallace — Sylvia edited a major movie magazine).

"Maybe I shouldn't tell."

"Sylvia, tell!"

"Well, television. Because of the mini-series format . . . six hours would be ideal." Yes it would. Sylvia has devised a non-stop plot, but she hasn't skipped any nuances involving an American beauty who marries a royal ruler. No it isn't Princess Grace (nee Kelly) of Monaco. And it isn't Queen Noor of Jordan (nee Lisa Hallaby), but the book was already drafted, in fact, before Miss Hallaby wed King Hussein.

Sylvia says, that royal marriges aside, she drew a lot on her own life and that the heroine's own dismal relationship with her mother is as vital to the plotting as all that Hollywood insight.

Have you ever thought of NBC's new daytime host, David Letterman, as somewhat to the right of Terry-Thomas but to the left of Lauren Hutton? No, not politically. Just in that little league of big-time entertainers who refuse to let cosmetic dentists eradicate, or even shrink, the gap between their two front teeth.

I am writing to make an inquiry about Gale Gordon of The Lucy Show. I recently remarked to my neighbor that Goron played the banker on The Beverly Hillbillies. My neighbor, disagreed with me. If he didn't play the banker, who did? — Mrs. A.E. Baker, Genoa, Ill.

Raymond Bailey played Mr. Drysdale, the Clampett's banker. Gordon was Lucy's banker, Mr. Mooney, from 1962 until 1968, when the show was rewritten and he was cast as her brother-in-law and owner of an employment agency.

Didn't Barry Miller, who is now starring in the movie Fame, star in a TV series a few years back about a man and his two sons? I think Jimmy Baio of Soap was the other son, but I can't remember the father. — J. Lemos, Santa Rosa, Calif.

You're right, about Miller and Baio — they were the sons of the title, Joe and Sons. Richard Castellano, remembered for The Godfather, played the father.

Toning down the grain in wood

Q. The doors on my kitchen cabinets are ordinary fir plywood that has been stained and varnished. The grain is overpowering with a wild, almost flamelike pattern and extreme contrast between the dark and light tones. Is there anything I can do to subdue the grain and still keep a natural wood-tone look? — R.H., Westcrot, Cres.

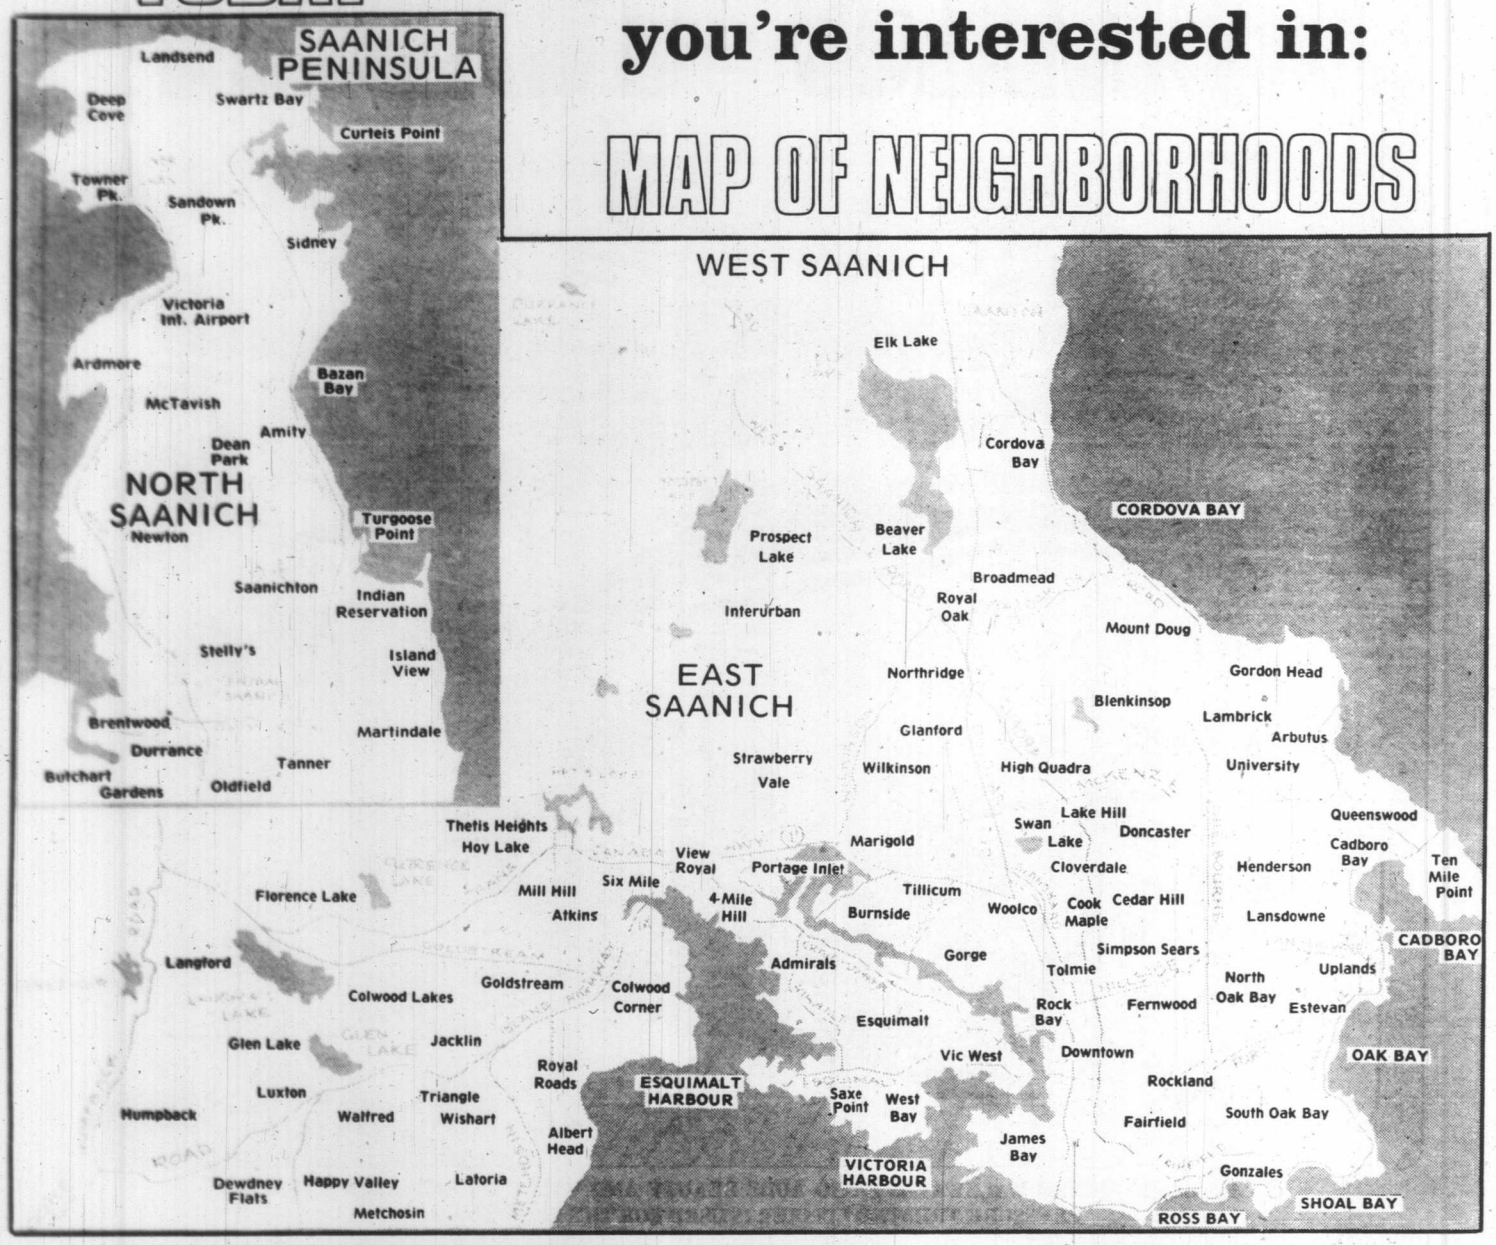

A. Probably the best solution would be to use a product called varnish stain. It's nothing more than a varnish with transparent stain mixed in. Put it over the existing finish and it will darken it and subdue the grain pattern. The more coats you apply, the darker the finish and the tamer the grain. For best results, remove the doors and lay them flat for varnishing. This will make it easier to get a good smooth finish without drips and sags. That's important because these defects are quite conspicuous when you are using a varnish stain.

Tip-up table made in China?

By JAMES G. McCOLLAM
Member, Antique Appraisers Assoc. of America
Copley News Service

Dear Mr. McCollam: This small dresser has a dark crackle finish over hard maple wood. The drawer pulls are brass with oval protective plates. There are keyholes for each drawer and supporting shelves for lamps or decorative objects. Grooved accents dress up the drawers and supporting framework. Can you tell me its probable age and value? — M.K.G., Kenmore, N.Y.

Dear M.K.G.: This is a typical Victorian dresser made in the third quarter of the 19th century. It would sell in the low to middle hundreds. The crackled finish is oxidized varnish. It should be stripped and refinished in natural maple.

Dear Mr. McCollam: This three-legged tip-up table was given to my grandfather by a man whose father was engaged in the China trade in the mid-19th century. We have always believed that it was made in China.

The picture shows a winged woman with two children in her arms and is made of beads in shades of white, silver and dark gray against a blue background.

I would appreciate any information you can give me as to origin and value. — E.L.J., Uncasville, Conn.

Dear E.L.J.: If you hadn't raised the possibility of Chinese provenance, I would simply assume that it was made in this country during the Empire period. The acanthus carving and paw feet are typical. However, much Chinese Export furniture was made in the styles prevailing in the Occidental world.

In any case, it was made in the second quarter of the 19th century and would be worth from $500 to $1,000, depending on the local market.

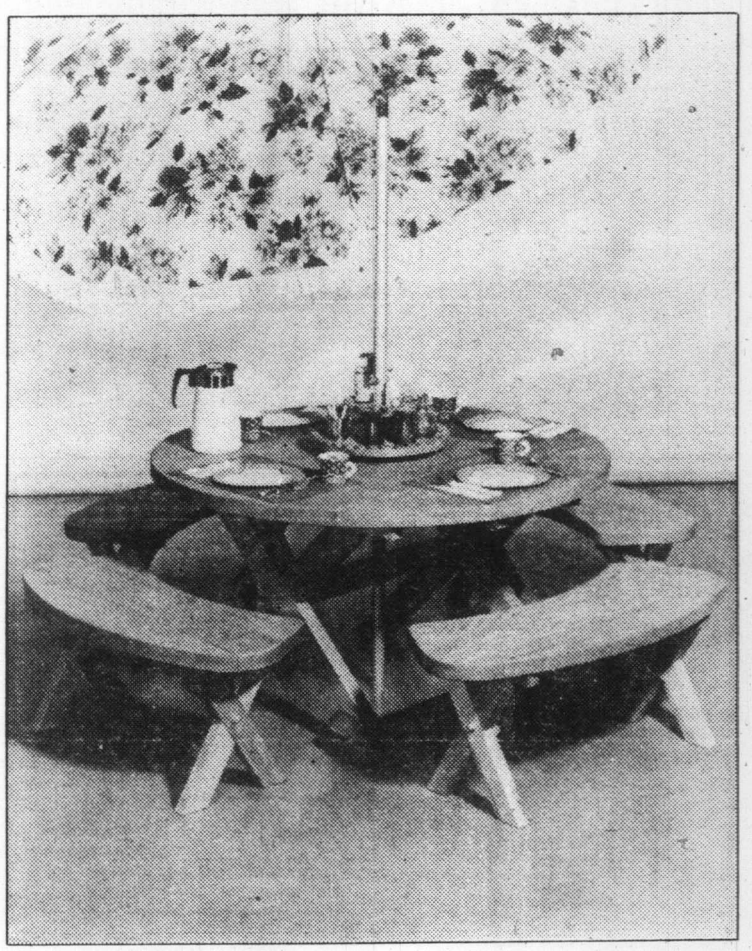

BOOK REVIEW: "Antique Metalware" edited by James R. Mitchell, Universe Books. Here is complete coverage of practically evrything made by our ancestors using various metals. One of the most significant sections is devoted to Franklin stoves and the many small ones that many think are Franklin stoves.

There is complete information on fireplace equipment, which is also an important segment of collecting. Metal furniture, brass candle holders, decorated tinware, keys and locks, toys, cooking and eating utensils, weathervanes, ad infinitum.

All non-precious metalware is covered briefly in the suitably illustrated text. The scope is so broad that any collector or dealer will find a wealth of information pertaining to their special interests.

YOU CAN MAKE IT!

Picnic fun at home with this wheeled set that seats eight

Most folks enjoy having family dinners out-of-doors as well as patio parties on weekends, especially in hot summer weather. It's much easier and far more fun. Furthermore, what's the use of having a yard if we don't make use of it?

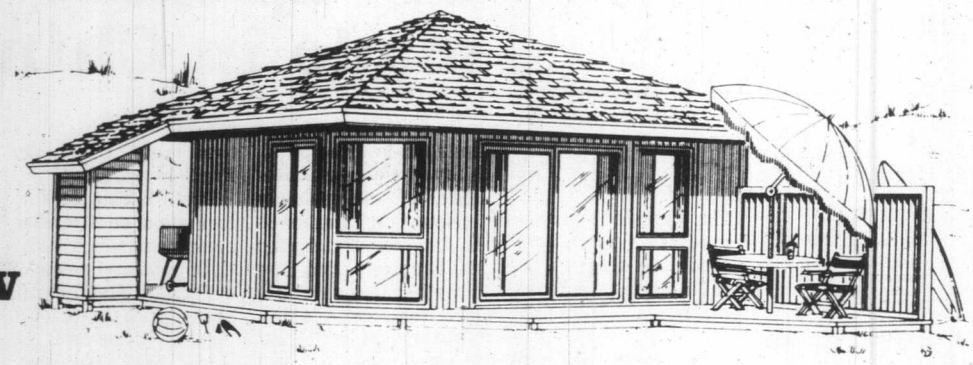

So Dad, here's your chance to save some real money while enjoying yourself. Build the handsome, durable, barbecue table and benches shown here . . . you can easily complete the whole set in three evenings. The table top is over four feet in diameter and will seat eight people, but can be made larger if you wish. The pattern shows how. It was made to support a colorful umbrella to give the set a gay appearance as well as shade for the diners. Wheels make it easy to move.

Here's a project that any inexperienced amateur can undertake with confidence when he uses the full-size pattern. You just trace the pattern parts on wood, saw them out and assemble. Even the bolt and screw holes are located for you along with easy-to-follow directions and lots of step-by-step illustrations.

To obtain the full-size circular table and benches pattern number 239, send $3.00 (please add fifty cents extra for postage and handling) by cheque or money order to U Bild Patterns, Box 160, Cote St. Luc, Montreal, 24V 2X3.

PLAN FOR THE WEEK

Budget-conscious cottage for narrow recreational lot

PLAN N° 0-419

38,9 m² // 419 sq. ft. / pi²

8,1 m // 26 ft. / pi 10 in. / po

Here's a delightfully simple and informal compact second home design which would be perfectly suited to the budget-conscious young family who have a narrow frontage recreational building lot. The unpretentious exterior contains almost 500 square feet of nicely arranged finished floor area, which could easily be increased through addition as time passes and income and space requirements increase.

Simple platform construction, vertical channel siding and traditional shingle roofing make this an easy and economical summer building project for the home handyman, depending upon site location and material availability on location.

The entry opens into a spacious enclosed reception foyer and outerwear and equipment storage area, from whence traffic moves directly forward into the large and informal living-dining-bedroom combination. The area features full-length windows and sliding glass walk-throughs on two exterior walls, for view and convenient access to the wrap-around patio decking.

A conveniently arranged U-shape kitchen provides an exceptional work-saving triangle, generous countertop work surfaces and ample cupboard storage.

A three-piece bathroom with tub is back-to-back with the kitchen, allowing for simplicity and economy of plumbing installation.

A small storage shed connects to the main entranceway decking for storage of barbeque and recreational equipment. This facility could easily be installed closer to the main structure for narrower lots and increased building security during off-seasons.

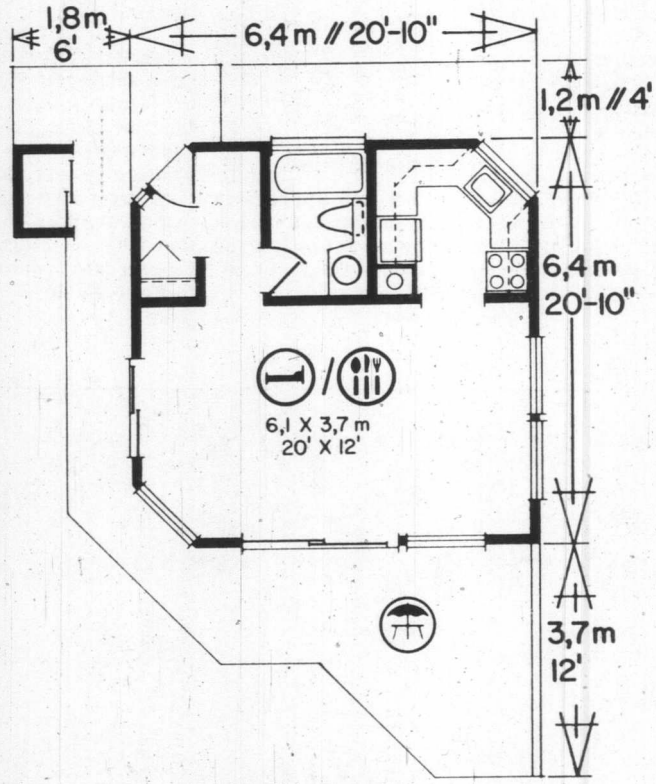

Plans for design No. 0-419 may be purchased either by the single set, at a cost of $85.00 for the first set and $15.00 for each dditional set, or by the package. A five-set plan package, including the first set, is economically priced at $135.00 and an eight-set package, also including the first set, is only $175.00.

Whichever method you choose, please include $5.00 for postage and handling. B.C. residents add 4% sales tax.

Send for the current edition of Select Home Designs' cottage magazine, Series 45, featuring money-saving, do-it-yourself ideas and informative articles on the Canadian cottaging scene, plus 16 full-colour pages of quality cottage plans for all seasons. # Old disc collectors music lovers

By JOHN HEARN

I have been bugging my friends at Van Nostrand Reinhold for a new book which I am convinced should prove to be a modest best seller if the letters I receive from readers are any indicator. I have got to the point where I am hesitant to talk about old 78 records at all for fear of unleashing another flood of unanswerable questions about the 'value' of the writers' old discs; I am delighted, therefore to receive at last a copy of Peter Soderbergh's 'Olde Records Price Guide (1900-1947)' — and doubly delighted because the book limits itself to the obvious records which most of us will recognize rather than those rarities beloved only of collectors.

Having said that I have to point out that the results are bound to be a little disappointing to those who hoped that their old Bing Crosbys were worth a small fortune; in fact, those millions of records he made for Decca from 1934 onwards rate in the $2-$3 range and then only if they are in pristine condition. On the other hand, Crosby's pre-1934 records on Brunswick are surprisingly pricey — Love In Bloom, $7.50; Brother Can You Spare A Dime, $8.00; St. Louis Blues, $15.00 — right back to 1926 when Bing recorded I've Got The Girl on Columbia, now listed at $40.

For the most part, flicking through the book, it is apparent that only exceptional records break out of the $2-$5 bracket. The author dismisses most of them with the letters NMP meaning Negligible Market Potential — thus Dietrich, Marlene, generally NMP except Falling In Love Again ($4.00) and You Go To My Head ($3.00).

Other NMPs include such stars as Eddy Duchin, Deanna Burbin, Wayne King, Dorothy Lamour, Carmen Miranda, Vaughan Monroe, Dick Powell, Frank Sinatra and Jo Stafford.

The golden goodies are Louis Armstrong's pre-1939 records ranging from Jeepers Creepers ($1.50) back to Gut Bucket Blues ($35.00). As a matter of fact there are 20 old Louis Armstrong records in the over $25 category. Early Duke Ellingtons, Jim Europes, Fletcher Hendersons, Earl Hines, and the New Orleans Rhythm Kings all list at $25-$50 while early Oliver Kings weigh in at $150.

Peter Soderbergh describes his pricing as conservative; certainly they are realistically priced but I remain convinced that they bear no relationship whatever to the actual long-term potential. Here is something which will never come again. The records which most of us find in our attics are regarded as completely worthless because they are too worn to be of interest to serious collectors (and it is only serious collectors who will pay that kind of money). Records of the pristine condition required to rate even those modest $2 prices are incredibly rare and to me this adds up to a badly underpriced market.

It must be remembered that record collectors are not, generally speaking, people with a lust for round black flat things, they are music lovers. When they do buy a fine old record they immediately put it on tape and never play the original again. Condition therefore is paramount and how any of them survived the crushing weight of those old sound boxes, the grit, the dust and the scratching of one unprotected surface on another, is hard to imagine.

Huge numbers of 78 records were issued in their day and the Olde Records Price Guide does not pretend to cover them all. It concentrates on the popular, ignores country and western altogether as too big a category to cover in the same book, and throws in a short supplementary section on opera and the classics — which is itself a shocker. What, Galli-Curci for less than $4? It is worth that to hear her and De Luca singing Dite alla giovane from Traviata just once!

Olde Records Price Guide is a Wallace Homestead publication and should be in your bookstore at $10.95. If you have problems in finding it, drop me a line and I will inform the Canadian distributors accordingly.

Prior Street

Prior Street, in the Hillside area, was named for Edward Gawlor Prior — one of the two men in B.C. history who have been both Premier and Lieutenant-Governor. Prior was born in Engand in 1853, son of aclergyman, and came to Vancouver Island in 1873 as assistant manager of the Vancouver Coal Company. In 1877 he was named government inspector of mines, and three years later he resigned to enter the hardware business here. He went into politics, and in 1886 was elected to the B.C. Legislature, and two years later to the House of Commons. In 1902 he became B.C.'s 15th Premier, and was in office a year. In 1919 he was appointed 11th Lieutenant-Governor, and died at Government House in 1920. For long he was colonel of Victoria's famous 5th Regiment.

As a ground cover, nothing beats versatile and popular sedum

One of the more versatile and popular types of ground covers is sedum.

There are hundreds of varieties to choose from. They vary from tiny sedums which form a one-inch high mat to others which can grow to a height of two feet.

Sedum is defined as a rock plant, but its use is by no means confined to rock gardens.

There are a number of species that are effective on slopes, as a mass planting and as container plants.

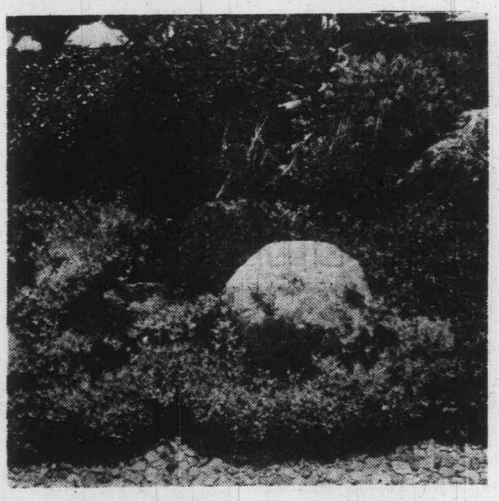

According to the Ortho book "All About Ground Covers," sedums are especially effective when blended with other ground covers, such as the prostrate junipers.

Many varieties remain green through the coldest winters, such as the hardy sedum acre and sedum sarmentosum.

In general, sedums require little water and will root easily from cuttings, often propagating themselves from broken leaves.

While the true beauty of sedums are in the shape and color of their leaves, a few varieties flower abundantly.

Since they are generally not particular about soil and water, and seed so easily, sedums can be effectively used by either the weekend gardener or the landscape professional to bring color, variety and harmony to almost any area.

Wax film and sloping floors

NOW YOU KNOW

By GEORGE DALGLEISH

Q. My mahogany coffee table has a film on it that polish does not help. Where the cloth is on the table there is no film. What can I do to remove this film without interfering with the beautiful shine?

A. The dullness likely has to do with a build-up of polish and other residues from using the table. Likely a petroleum solvent available at your local paint store or building supply store will remove it. Moisten a rag with the solvent and wipe the table until the film disappears. Use a soft cloth to polish the table after the solvent has been used. If this doesn't work try a furniture cleaning cream that has a small amount of pumice or other abrasive material in it.

Q. Our basement floor has an eight inch slope from the perimeter to the centre floor drain. The slope is I realize that this is more than normal so we want to put in a wood sub-floor to take care of the slope in our basement when we finish it as a rec room. How do we do this?

A. I don't recommend that you put in a wood sub-floor in the basement if you can get away from it. You may find it is just as cheap and maybe more practical to repour a topping on the concrete floor.Of course remember not to take all the slope away from the floor because you still want to have it sloped towards the drain. However if you do insist on putting in a wood sub-floor make sure that air can get under it in all areas. This would mean that any sleepers you install should be kept short of the wall.That is, a sleeper would run parallel to the wall andan inch or two of space would be left between it and the sleepers that run at ninety degrees to it. This will allow for good air circulation. Also it is a good idea to install a floor register every ten feet or so to allow air under the floor. In the centre area where there is an eight inch difference in height, there will obviously be lots of air circulation. I would recommend 2x6's sixteen inches on centre in this area and the 2x6's could be set on blocks nailed to the side of the 2x6 solidly and sitting on the floor. The centre section could be made by running 2x6's across the low section and cutting the 2x6's so that they fit to the floor feathered to the sleepers around the perimeter. Of course this method would be used if the span were not too great for a 2x6. If so,then you would have to go to a 2x8 or a 2x6 with blocking in the centre. I know this all sounds confusing but your local building supply dealer can help you sort it out. It is more complicated to install a sub-floor in an area like this than it is to install a completely new floor when building a house. While it is a do-it-yourself project, you may want to consult a professional for technical advice.

Q. We have very hard water in our area and it cakes up the inside of my steam iron. Is it possible to use the water that is drained from our central air-conditioner in the basement? We just had the new central air-conditioning installed and so far we don't have a drain for the water that comes from the unit when it is running and it simply drains into a large five gallon pail. Is this water safe to use in a steam iron?

A. Yes it is. It is distilled water in that it is taken from the air of the house and is condensed on the cooling coils inside the air-conditioning unit. I recommend that if you've installed a new air-conditioning unit you let it run for a while before using the water since there may be a bit of dust or dirt on the coils. But after operating for a while this will be gone. There are no impurities in distilled water so it certainly would be good to use in your iron.

Q. We just had new insulation and venting installed in our attic. We wanted to have it done in the summer months so that we are ready for next fall. However when we look up in our attic we can't see any light coming through the roof vents that were installed by the contractor. How do we know that they are working properly?

A. You really don't by just looking in the attic. However, some roof vents are made in such a way that it is hard for light to get through the vents. Of course it is important that air gets through it, not light. In keeping out rain the canopy has been designed in such a way that it may not let light come into the attic. However, I would suggest that you check them more closely because just recently I had a letter from a reader who had attic vents installed but the contractor did not cut the roof out for the vent. He simply slid the vent underneath the shingles and nailed it in place. The hole in the roof is really the vent and the mechanical apparatus that is installed on top of it is simply to keep out the rain and the bugs.

Put sparkle in your kitchen

DECOR SCORE

By BARBARA HARTUNG
Copley News Service

Q. I've remodeled my kitchen for an open look througout my home. Living room, dining room and kitchen will blend from one area into another. I have sleek-lined furniture in the living and dining areas now and would like to keep to that general feeling in the kitchen.

What sort of ideas could you suggest for the kitchen so it will blend well and be a part of the rest of the house — W.C.B.

A. If you like chrome furniture and glass, as I would imagine from your explanation, why not repeat the same materials in your kitchen?

Designer Jack Denst did in a kitchen that sparkles with decorating drama. Denst mirrored the lower portion of the kitchen base cabinets and covered the work area in natural, off-white marble. Inset in the marble slabs are a sleek, smooth cooktop and a stainless steel sink. He used a plain, off-white simulated marble vinyl tile for the floor and plexiglas murals on the walls.

He also created a mirrored bar which swings up into the roof of the adjoining patio — especially pleasant during benign weather. When the bar wall swings down into place, the mirror reflects a Space Age kitchen.

Q. Our master bedroom has natural wood parquet floors that are beautiful and walls that I have just had painted an old gold shade. What colors would you suggest for the room besides gold and brown?

I'd like quite a bit of rich color in the room which is very traditional. The furniture is antiqued white Italian-styled. I want to buy a rug for part of the room where I will have a sitting area with perhaps two lounge chairs and a table. Also I will need draperies and a bedspread. — E.E.

A. You might like to use light brown and a soft coral as contrasting colors with the old gold of your walls and off-white of your furniture. You might use a light brown plush area rug for your sitting area. Two matching lounge chairs in a soft coral damask might be elegant.

For your draperies, use the same fabric as you put on your chairs. The bedspread might tie the old gold and the soft coral together with a tailored design using a dust ruffle of the coral and a top fashioned from a gold fabric. Accessorize with gold, white and pale shades of coral.

Q. We are living in a mobile home which we plan to refurnish. We bought the home furnished and I believe that we will be rearranging the rooms because they do not seem to have good furniture arrangement. There does not seem to be adequate space in certain areas.

Is there a rule of thumb for how much space one should have for traffic patterns through a living room and bedroom? I'd like some general idea to know how I might plan new furniture for the rooms. — R.P.

A. The amount of space one feels comfortable with will vary. Each person probably has his or her own idea of what's right or what's too crowded. However, furniture planners generally agree that four to six feet is usually the space needed for a major traffic path through a frequently used room such as a living room. Usually there are secondary traffic paths in a room and those require anything from one and one-half feet to four feet in a living room.

In a bedroom most designers suggest that three feet of space in front of a chest of drawers is about minimum and you need probably three to four feet in both directions for a dressing space. Anything less than that is going to make you feel cramped though anything greater than that will be more pleasant.

Richardson Street

Richardson Street runs through Fairfield, from Vancouver Street in the west to Foul Bay Road in the east.

It commemorates a noted Scottish-born Canadian explorer — James Richardson, of the Geological Survey of Canada. He was sent to the Pacific Coast by the Ottawa government in 1872 to make a geological survey of the coal measures of Vancouver Island. Richardson was born in Perthshire, Scotland, and came to Canada as a child.

His vessel, the Triumph, of 15 tons, was built at Cowichan Bay in 1872. This little ship took Richardson to Gardiner Inlet when he was assisting the C.P.R. in finding a suitable Pacific Coast railway terminus. The H.B.C. steamer Otter, during this exploration, met the Triumph and towed her to Kemano Bay, where the giant new aluminum industry has been established in recent years.

Functional blinds now high fashion

MONTREAL — A rebirth of the venetian blind as a fashion item has excited the interest of interior decorators, designers and Canadian consumers alike.

The once bulky, ugly blinds of the past have been replaced by decorative blinds — elegantly thin and now available in a plethora of natural and metallic colors: burnt orange, copper, polished brass, etc. And this year's fabric vertical Flexalum Blinds and a new dimension to interior design.

For the first time in Canada, Flexalum blinds, made by Hunter Douglas Canada Limited, are also available in vertical and horizontal patterns.

"The blind concept has changed radically," said Taylor, general manager of the largest manufacturer of venetian blinds in Canada. "This year, we have introduced four types of fabrics into our vertical line and these blinds are available in 21 assorted colors." Last year, Hunter Douglas made its horizontal decor blinds available in 50 colors.

"The difference with venetian blinds today," continued Mr. Taylor, "is that literally any way you look at blinds — as a scource for controlling light, as a color contributor or as a design element — blinds are now truly fashionable and up-to-date."

The slats are wafer thin, so that the blind all but vanishes in the open position, but makes a significant design contribution when closed. By choosing either vertical or horizontal Flexalum Blinds, the lines of any room can be effectively accented to provide today's consumer with the widest range of decorating possibilities.

The high fashion blinds are all available custom fitted for the home or apartment. This feature allows the blinds to be used in any number of ways — as space dividers, and where wall-to-wall windows present decorating problems.

"Some interior decorators have produced startlingly handsome effects using blinds to highlight a mural, as a graphic influence, or to effect an illusion of height by hanging the blinds floor-to-ceiling," Mr. Taylor added. Drapery stores which carry Flexalum Blinds are aware of the numerous possibilities the product offers.

Mildew; what it is, how to cure it

By CHRISTOPHER WEBER
The Washington Post

One of the problems that seems to crop up persistently at this time of year, outside and inside many homes, is mildew or mold — a creeping blackish discoloration that is often mistaken for dirt.

As the mold thrives and spreads, it eats its way into and eventually destroys the surface on which it is growing including clothing, paper and wood. The thin surface growths, which spread by means of spores, can cause a musty odor and worsen alergies. For living conditions, mildew needs moisture, a reasonableamount of warmth and a finite lack of sunlight and ventilation. Basements, bathrooms, closets and kitchens are particularly susceptible, because in those areas ventilation is often not adequate to dispel moisture and dampness.

"If you've got it, you've got to kill it," said Doris Erickson, home economics consultant at the Nassau County (N.Y.) Cooperative Extension Association. "it's not enough to just wash it off with detergent. That just takes it away visually."

Generally, common laundry bleach or denatured alcohol are best for removing mildew, Erickson said. First however, either vacuum up any visible mildew and dispose of the bag, or take mildewed objects outside to brush off what you can.

To remove mildew from painted bathroom walls, where the use of bleach is safe, use a cup of chlorine bleach to a gallon of hot water. Scrub this solution on mildewed areas and then flush with clean water. Outside, if mildew is a problem on walls, siding or trim, use a quart of bleach to a gallon of hot water. Don't work if you cannot vent the fumes. Regular bleach is also safe to use in the wash with mildewed white cottons, but a milder "safety bleach" should be used with colored clothing and synthetics.

If the mildew is on a surface that cannot be bleached, such as carpeting, denatured alcohol is an alternative cure, Erickson said. First vacuum up any visible mold and dispose of the bag. Then mix the alcohol half-and-half with water. Dip a sponge or cloth in it, squeeze out and sponge over the mildewed area.

The alcohol solution also may be suitable for removing mildew from some furniture. Test first on an inconspicuous spot to see if the alcohol will ruin the finish. Don't use on shellac.

If neither alcohol nor bleach are safe, another alternative, which is not quite as good, is washing soda. Mix six tablespoons of washing soda to a gallon of warm water to make the solution.

After the mildew has been killed, preventing a recurrence is a matter of providing light, dryness and ventilation as much as possible. Dryness can be ensured by opening a bathroom window for a few minutes after a bath or shower, using air conditioning or running a dehumidifier, and by not leaving damp objects lying around. Make sure furniture placed against a wall has adequate space behind it to allow ventilation.

In problem closets, dryness can be encouraged by hanging up a packet of silica gel, a water-absorbing crystal available at florists. Usually, the gel is tinted to be blue when dry and pink when saturated. Do not use calcium chloride for water absorption anywhere except in a basement with a concrete floor. The high caustic material can destroy a wood floor, Erickson said.

Painted walls prone to mildew should be repainted with paint containing a fungicide to discourage future growth. A fungicide can be bought at paint stores to be added to paint.

Before going on vacation, dry the house as thoroughly as possible to avoid a mildew-stained return, either by running the air-conditioning system or, on a dry day, airing the house thoroughly.
